MUSSOLINI SENDS NEW COMMANDER TO AFRICAN FRONT

Recalls Gen. de Bono and Puts Chief of Staff Badoglio in Charge of Armies in Ethiopia.

POLITICAL MOTIVE HINTED IN SHAKEUP

New Leader World War Veteran — Regarded as Italy's Greatest Strategist, Popular With Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Premier Mussolini changed his commanders in Ethiopia today, removing the white-haired veteran, Gen. Emilio de Bono, as chief of the invading Italian forces, and substituting Gen. Pietro Badoglio, Chief of the General Staff, who only a week ago reported his first-hand observations of the war situation after an inspection in East Africa.

In a message to Gen. de Bono—one of Mussolini's four leaders in the Fascist march on Rome—the Premier thanked him "for having achieved your mission under extremely difficult circumstances and with a result that entitles you to the gratitude of the nation."

Mussolini said Gen. de Bono, sent to East Africa 10 months ago, had finished the task he undertook and recalled him to Italy.

To Make Him a Marshal.

He proposed to King Victor Emmanuel that the 69-year-old veteran be elevated to the rank of Marshal, a title which Gen. Badoglio, who is 64, already holds. Of course, the King's compliance is certain.

Selection of Gen. Badoglio as the new Commander-in-Chief at the front was in line with Italian political developments. Gen. Badoglio is reputed to be popular with the army because he is known as probably the best war-time general, and Italy's greatest strategist.

In the World War he led the successful attack on Monte Sabotino which preceded the fall of Gorizia. He commanded the Twenty-seventh Corps in the disastrous defeat at the hands of the Austrians at Caporetto.

He is a veteran of the Eritrean and Libyan campaigns and in 1921 was sent to the United States on a diplomatic mission. He has served as Ambassador to Brazil and as Governor of Libya.

Italians are being told that, as hard fighting begins in Africa, the best soldier will command the Italian forces.

Gen. Badoglio is known to be friendly with the royal family. It is said, however, that years ago he refused to accept Fascist principles, but his appointment, first as Chief of the General Staff and now as leader at the war front, is taken as evidence that he is in Mussolini's confidence.

Gen. de Bono's Career.

Gen. de Bono first met Mussolini when the latter was a humble soldier. Recognizing the younger man's organizing genius, De Bono became a Fascist follower and rose to a trusted position as Mussolini's adviser on military matters. He became Chief of Police, Commander of the Militia, and then Governor of Tripolitania. In 1929 he was made Minister of Colonies.

He is an expert on Ethiopian military topography and is familiar with the customs of the tribes.

Several thousand more men were called to the colors today for possible service in Ethiopia, but the date of their mobilization was not announced. They consist of men born in the years 1907 to 1910 and in 1912. Among them were men and non-commissioned officers of the Cocked-Hat Carabinieri, who police Italy's African possessions.

Also called were certain specialists and non-commissioned officers of the classes of 1900 to 1912 and the army map makers of the classes from 1904 to 1912.

The steamship Abbazia sailed from Naples for East Africa with 200 soldiers and a full cargo of war materials.

Italians Hear Ethiopians Are Getting Ready for Battle.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY AT MAKALE, Ethiopia, Nov. 16. — There were sharp skirmishes as the Italian army prepared today for the next advance.

Three army corps entrenched themselves in advanced positions. Behind the line there were 100,000 men.

Amba Alagi, 40 miles south of Makale, is the next objective. The Italian intelligence section reported it had learned Emperor Haile Se-

Hoover Says National Planning By the New Deal Has Failed; Assails Its Financial Policy

"Budget Should Be Balanced by Reduction in Follies, Not by More Taxes," He Tells Ohio Society of New York.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Former President Hoover, in the second of a series of attacks on the Roosevelt New Deal program, told an audience in New York tonight that the national planning had failed and that the Roosevelt administration's present financial and fiscal policies should be abandoned in favor of sound principles.

Although Hoover has not announced whether he will be a candidate next year, the speech, which was broadcast, bore many of the earmarks of a political document and some listeners thought they detected in it the handiwork of Ben S. Allen, a former newspaper man, who has rejoined Hoover as political and publicity adviser. The delivery and content of the speech was in line with Hoover's first attack on the New Deal, delivered to the California Young Republicans last month, in which he attacked the Roosevelt spending policy. In the vernacular of the theater, he then and tonight was "playing for laughs," both by his enunciation and turn of phrases.

Political observers also read significance into the fact that the address was to the Ohio Society of New York. Ohio has often been a pivotal state, both in Republican primary and in presidential elections. The delegates to the Republican National Convention are not selected until May but the forearmed politicians start working for delegates about six months before the primary. Under the Ohio law, a candidate must consent to the filing of his name, which appears on the ballot.

"Useful to Grandchildren."

"The new 'national planning' is building vast projects—perhaps useful to our grandchildren," Hoover said. "We have to pay the cost of interest and maintenance until they come of age. . . . When I was a boy in Iowa I learned some very simple truths about finance. I learned that money does not grow on trees; it must be earned."

Hoover declared that during the depression years of the last administration the loss of man days from strikes and lockouts averaged about 5,000,000 per year. During this administration it has averaged a loss of about 18,000,000 man days per year, he said.

"There are only four letters of the alphabet not now in use by the administration in Washington," he said. "When we establish the quick loans corporations for xylophones, yachts and zithers, the alphabet of our fathers will be exhausted. . . .

"One of the wheel-horses of the 'national planning'—that is the NRA—was thought to have been killed by the Supreme Court. That decision has not yet been claimed as part of the new 'national planning,' although every day men are getting jobs because of it."

Recommendations of Hoover.

Although Hoover declared that he was offering a "constructive program" for the country, his specific recommendations were, for the most part, demands for the repeal of new laws and the tearing down of most of the governmental extensions added by the New Deal.

"The waste of the taxpayer's money," he declared, "on unnecessary public works should end.

"The administration of relief should be turned over to local authorities, Federal expenditures for relief should be confined to cash allowance to these authorities to the extent that they are unable to provide their own funds.

"The spending for visionary and un-American experiments should be stopped.

"This horde of political bureaucracy should be rooted out.

"The provisions of the Constitution requiring that expenditures shall only be in accordance with appropriations actually made by law should be obeyed. And they should be for specific purposes.

"The budget should be balanced, not by more taxes, but by a reduction of follies.

"The futile purchases of foreign silver should be stopped.

"The gold standard should be re-established, even on the new basis.

"The act authorizing the President to inflate the currency should be repealed.

"The administration should give and keep a pledge to the country that there will be no further juggling of the currency and no further experiments with credit inflation.

"Confidence in the validity of promises of the Government should be restored."

Responsibility Disclaimed.

Hoover denounced New Deal expansion of bank credits, and stated that it was such inflation by the Federal Reserve System in 1927

WAGES DOUBLED TO FINISH MODEL TOWN AT QUODDY

Emergency Declared So Staff of 1200 Can Be Housed Before Winter.

By the Associated Press.

EASTPORT, Me., Nov. 16.—Wages of all laborers engaged in building the $36,000,000 Passamaquoddy Bay project were increased to the prevailing hourly scale today as a 45-day state of construction emergency was declared.

Philip B. Fleming, construction chief, said Harry L. Hopkins, Relief Administrator, had exempted Quoddy from the general relief scale until Jan. 1 so that the model village for 1200 administrative staff members could be completed before severely cold weather starts.

The new scale, said Fleming, will pay common labor 40 cents an hour, intermediate labor 55 cents an hour, and skilled labor 75 cents an hour. In effect, the engineer declared, the new scale will more than double the wages of all three classes.

Under the old scale, common laborers were paid $44 a month, intermediate workers $50 a month and skilled labor $63 a month. Heretofore, all workers have been employed on a 40-hour week basis. Until the emergency ends, said Fleming, workers may work eight hours a day and six or seven days a week, as they choose. The aim of the project is to harness the ocean tides.

OWNER OF CARPET CLEANING COMPANY FOUND SHOT DEAD

C. H. Schrick's Body Discovered on Floor of Plant, Revolver in Hand.

The body of Clarence H. Schrick, 39 years old, proprietor of the American Carpet Cleaning Co., was found in his establishment at 3629 Finney avenue at 7:30 o'clock last night. He had been shot in the right temple. A revolver was in his hand.

Police were called by Earl Mayberry, 5054A Patton avenue, who said he found the body on the floor of the drying room when he went to the place to see Schrick about employment. Mayberry said he recently had sought work from the proprietor and that yesterday morning Schrick telephoned him to call in the evening.

Schrick resided at 7234 Richmond place, Maplewood, with a wife and daughter. Until several months ago, when he went in business for himself, he was an officer of another cleaning establishment.

POLICYHOLDER MUST SUE OR TAKE FIRE RATE OFFER

Judge Stone of Federal Court of Appeals Explains Order on Insurance Compromise.

RULING IN ONE CASE SHOWS ATTITUDE

Majority of Thousands Affected Unlikely to Bring Separate Action Over O'Malley's Terms.

Explaining an order issued by a three-judge Federal court in Kansas City, United States Circuit Judge Kimbrough Stone said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that it meant the court soon will approve the pending settlement proposal in the fire insurance premium refund litigation, except in the case of policyholders who intervene with objections.

The court will permit policyholders seeking more than the 20 per cent refund of impounded premiums, specified in the settlement agreement between State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley and the companies, to intervene up to Dec. 31 and will hold hearings to determine what, if any, refund each intervenor is entitled to.

Members of the three-judge court besides Judge Stone are United States District Judges Albert L. Reeves and Merrill E. Otis.

Each Must Act for Self.

The court's intended action, which probably will be taken soon after the first of the year, Judge Stone explained, was indicated in an order issued last Wednesday permitting Fred E. Baldwin, holder of four policies, to intervene for himself but not for a group of unnamed policyholders.

The order stated that any policyholder objecting to the settlement might intervene, but that each must act for himself, and no general intervention in behalf of all policyholders would be permitted. The court would assume, the order said, that the settlement was agreeable to all who failed to intervene by Dec. 31.

There are thousands of policyholders, but the maximum refund the great majority could expect if all the impounded premiums were returned, would be comparatively small, and it is not likely any great number will go to the expense and trouble of intervening. Baldwin is at present the only intervenor.

$9,000,000 in Payments.

The action of the three-Judge Court will apply to more than $9,000,000 in premium payments impounded by order of the court. This amount represents the 16 2-3 per cent increase in premiums collected by 137 companies since June 1, 1930. The increase was disallowed by then State Insurance Superintendent Joseph B. Thompson, but was collected and impounded under a Federal Court injunction.

Excess premiums collected by a number of other companies, under a State Court injunction and likewise impounded, now amounting to about $1,800,000, will not be affected by the Federal Court action. The State Supreme Court has rejected the O'Malley compromise agreement as to this fund.

The O'Malley settlement, proposed several months ago, was that 20 per cent of the impounded premiums be returned to policyholders, 50 per cent to the insurance companies and 30 per cent to trustees for payment of court costs, lawyers' fees and other expenses. This settlement had the approval of Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, political sponsor of O'Malley, and of Gov. Park, but was opposed by Attorney-General McKittrick as unfair to policyholders.

O'Malley Hopes State Court Will Be Guided by Decision.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—R. Emmet O'Malley, State Insurance Superintendent, said here today he thought the Federal Court's decision in the fire insurance rate compromise virtually ended the litigation in that tribunal.

The Superintendent expressed the hope that the Missouri Supreme Court would be guided by the Federal decision in a similar case involving 73 companies and $1,800,000 of impounded premiums. The Supreme Court so far has rejected the compromise agreement.

Two business men here, Frank P. Dickson and D. W. Witmer, advertised today they would represent policyholders for 25 per cent of any amount ultimately recovered. They said they were represented by lawyers already in the suit, William G. Lynch, F. M. Kennard and Walter J. Gresham. Lynch said his firm represented about 100 policyholders, but that he expected the number to be increased considerably.

BROWN SHOE CO. DETECTIVE DEFIES U. S. LABOR BOARD

A. A. Ahner, Head of Private Agency, Refuses to Give the Names of His Other Clients.

QUESTIONED ON STRIKEBREAKING

Denies Saying He Was Hired to Break Up Union —No Walkouts While He Was on Job, He Says.

Albert A. Ahner, private detective employed for 13 months as "industrial relations counselor" for the Brown Shoe Co., was a boastful witness yesterday at the hearing before the National Labor Relations Board on charges by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union that the shoe company was guilty of unfair labor practices at its Salem (Ill.) plant.

Ahner, who described himslf as the sole owner of the A. A. Ahner Detective Agency, Inc., and the Industrial Investigators and Engineers, Inc., at one point in his testimony refused to answer the questions of David C. Shaw, regional attorney for the Labor Board, and announced that he was "ready to suffer any consequences." The occasion for his outburst was Shaw's question concerning what industrial concerns, besides the Brown Shoe Co., the Ahner agencies had represented.

Won't Name Other Clients.

"My other clients have no connection with this issue," the witness, who said he had studied law at night school but was not a practicing attorney, replied. "I refuse to answer on the grounds of constitutional rights and the right of common sense. To do so might cause bombing and other unpleasantness. This is not a fishing expedition as far as I am concerned, and I am willing to let a court of record make a decision on my rights."

Although the Wagner-Connery labor bill provides for such a situation and Shaw could have presented a request to the United States District Court that the witness be compelled to answer under penalty of contempt, no action was taken.

Ahner subsequently refused to answer questions as to whether he had been employed by the Laclede Gas Light Co., the Peoples Motorbus Co., the General Materials Co. or the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. in labor disputes.

Kratky Once His Partner.

Describing his career, in response to questions, Ahner said that 17 years ago he was a union blacksmith in a railroad shop. He said he was "a loyal and obstreperous member of the blacksmiths' union until an ill-advised strike shattered my union opinions." He became connected with the Railway Audit & Inspection Co., an investigating agency, in its district offices here and about seven years ago started his own business. At that time Robert J. Kratky, an attorney, who successfully managed Victor J. Miller's first campaign for Mayor and recently promoted initiative proposals to sell the street railway and bus systems to the city for $25,000,000, was his partner, but since has withdrawn from the firm. The gross annual income of his business, Ahner said, was about $100,000 or more.

Tells of Employment.

He said he was employed by John A. Bush, president of the Brown Shoe Co. last year at a salary of $200 a month "to bring about peaceful relations with the company's employes, and I am proud to say that I delivered." The employment ended last September and during his 13 months as adviser to the company there was not one walkout, the witness asserted. Ahner said that in his dealings with Brown Shoe Co. he had on occasion "capitulated" to the shoe workers' union and had recommended a 25 per cent increase in wages. There was no testimony that the wage increase was put into effect.

The witness said the Brown Shoe Co. did not sign a closed shop agreement, but had recognized the union, and dealt with it. Asked if he had made the statement at a meeting of company and union officers that he had been employed to break up the union, Ahner replied: "Absolutely not, and who says so lies." M. L. Norris, union organizer, testified previously that Ahner had made the statement.

When the questioning turned to his qualifications as an "industrial relations counselor," the witness asked Dean A. G. Eberle of St.

AMERICANS BEATEN; LAUGHED AS FASCIST FUNERAL PASSED

Four Musicians Cancel Rome Philharmonic Engagement After Pommeling by Blackshirts.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Four American musicians were beaten by Blackshirts, friends said today, after they laughed and failed to salute when a Fascist funeral passed by.

The Americans composed the "Manhattan String Quartet" and were scheduled to play Monday under auspices of the Rome Philharmonic Society. Instead, they canceled their engagement and left for Paris.

Acquaintances said that after the funeral procession passed, Fascists asked the Americans what was "funny." One of the Americans replied, "We only speak English." He attempted to explain that the musicians were joking among themselves and did not know that the procession was a funeral. It was explained that the Italians may have mistaken the Americans for Englishmen.

The Americans were Rachmael Weinstock of New York, Oliver Edel of Yonkers, Harris Danziger, who gave his residence as London, and Julius Shaier of New York.

VETERANS SUED FOR HORSE SHOW TICKET ACCOUNTING

Association Sponsoring Arena Exhibition Asks Court What Is Due From Sales.

The St. Louis Horse Show Association, which sponsored the St. Louis National Horse Show last month at the Arena for the benefit of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, St. Louis Chapter No. 1, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday for an accounting of receipts from tickets sold by the veterans' organization for the exhibition.

The suit alleged that 10,000 tickets were issued to the veterans' organization to be sold for 55 cents each, with the veterans to receive a commission of 10 cents on each ticket sold. The horse show association complained that an accounting had been refused, and asked the court to determine the exact amount due them from the veterans' sales.

Early in August the association announced that the veterans' organization would share in part of the receipts. The sale of tickets by the veterans began Sept. 18, about a month before the show opened.

Officers of the defendant organization, which has headquarters at 3737 West Pine boulevard, could not be reached for a statement.

KILLED TRYING TO SHOOT WAY THROUGH POLICE CORDON

Man Sought for Questioning in Chicago Murder Shot to Death; Companion Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Frank Perretti, 45 years old, was killed by police today when, firing two revolvers, he attempted to escape from a house surrounded by police, in suburban Berwyn. Alfred Ellicock, 42, his companion, was arrested.

The men were sought for questioning about the murder of Joseph Moravek, a butcher, in a holdup a week ago.

Police said Ellicock denied knowledge of the killing of the butcher, but admitted several chain store robberies.

FARM DEBT LAW HELD INVALID BY APPEALS COURT

Frazier-Lemke Act in Extending Redemption Period to 3 Years Exceeds 'Power of Congress.'

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Ruling that Congress had exceeded its power under the bankruptcy clause of the Constitution, the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit today held the redemption clause of the re-enacted Frazier-Lemke Act unconstitutional.

The case involved a mortgage given by Bertha A. Lowman, owner of a 240-acre Indiana farm near Hammond, to the Lafayette Life Insurance Co. The insurance company had foreclosed and bought the farm at a sale. The owner had sought to enjoin the sale.

The Appeals Court decision written by Judge Will M. Sparks and concurred in by Judges Samuel Alschuler and Charles G. Briggle, said:

"We think that in thus extending the period of redemption for three years beyond that fixed by State statutes (one year) Congress exceeded the powers conferred upon it under the bankruptcy clause of the Constitution."

The original Frazier-Lemke Act was held unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court in May, 1935. The "new Frazier-Lemke statute," the one involved in the Lowman case, was enacted last August to replace it.

Two Federal district courts have held the new Frazier-Lemke act invalid. On Oct. 21 Judge Briggle and Judge J. Earl Major so decided at Peoria. Judge John Paul at Harrisburg, Va., handed down an adverse ruling Nov. 10 in a case in which Senator Harry F. Byrd was one of the plaintiffs.

The act was upheld Nov. 1 by Judge John I. Gore in District Court at Nashville, Tenn.

ANTI-BRITISH RIOTING IN EGYPT IS RENEWED

Eight Hurt in Latest Outbreak; Total of Deaths in Disturbances Now Six.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 16.—Anti-British rioting broke out in Egypt again today. A Government communique said police fired at the legs of students with whom they clashed at Zagazig, and that two students were sent to a hospital. Six policemen were injured when the students threw stones.

Two students died today of wounds, making the total killed in recent rioting six.

The Egyptian Bar Association, meeting here tonight, decided to strike Nov. 21 in protest against "British interference in Egyptian affairs."

Troops were dispatched tonight to Tantah, Mansourah and other centers where disturbances have been reported.

ITALY CALLS FOR UTMOST RESISTANCE TO SANCTIONS

Fascist Grand Council Orders Tablet Put in Each City Hall Commemorating 'Economic Siege,' Starting Tomorrow.

'VIVA REPRISALS,' CROWDS SHOUT

Decree Directs That 'Day of Iniquity' Be Observed as Holiday, With Display of Flags Throughout the Nation.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 17 (Sunday).—The Fascist Grand Council, after a meeting to chart Italy's course after the application of League of Nations economic sanctions tomorrow, declared early today that Italy henceforth would remember Nov. 18, 1935, as "the day of ignominy and iniquity in the history of the world."

The council, highest body of Fascism, called on all Italians to observe Monday as the signal "for implacable resistance" to the sanctions that will be put into effect on that day by 51 nations.

The nation was ordered to observe the day as a national holiday, with all public buildings and most private houses flying the tri-color.

Denounces Sanctions.

Vigorously denouncing the sanctionist nations, the grand council resolved "that sanctions, which never before have been applied, are denounced as a proposal to suffocate the Italian people economically, as a vain attempt to humiliate this people and to prevent the nation from realizing its ideals and defending its right to existence."

The council resolution eulogized the "tenacious discipline" by which the Italian people, it said, demonstrated themselves as recognizing "the historical trend of actual events."

It invited them to "oppose against sanctions the most implacable resistance by mobilizing through all organizations of the regime, all the moral energy and material resources of the nation."

Praises Non-Sanctionists.

The Council adopted a resolution "to express its sympathy for those states which, by denying their adhesion to sanctions, worked for the cause of peace and interpreted the spirit of their populations."

Another resolution said the Grand Council "is sure the imminent trial will reveal to the world the Roman virtue of the Italian people in the fourteenth year of the Fascist era."

Before adopting the resolutions, the Council passed a vote of thanks to Mussolini for his conduct of national affairs in the African war and in the present European economic situation, and announced its "utmost fidelity and willingness to serve Il Duce" in the future.

Women Called On to Aid.

The council decided that on Dec. 1 the 94 committees of provincial organizations of mothers and widows of World War dead should be convoked from Rome to plan for resistance against sanctions and "to intensify and co-ordinate economic and disciplinary measures.

Every city hall throughout Italy was ordered to "erect a tablet to record the economic siege so that it will remain throughout the centuries as a documentation of the enormous injustice perpetrated against Italy," a country which has given "so much to the civilization of all continents.

Crowds Fill Streets of Rome.

Thousands of enthusiastic Blackshirts jammed downtown streets. Cheering throngs clustered outside the Palazzo Littorio, headquarters of the Fascist party.

They followed the Blackshirt banner, which was removed with a guard of honor of militia to the Palazzo Venezia, scene of the council meeting.

The crowds chanted "Duce, Duce," and yelled "down with sanctions" and "viva reprisals!"

Shortly before the official communique denouncing the action of the League of Nations was issued, it was announced the council would hold another meeting Monday evening to discuss further the threats to Italy which are read into the

LEGAL HITCH REPORTED OVER RIVER MEMORIAL

Attorney-General Said to Hold Pledging Federal Aid for It at Future Date Is Impossible.

EXECUTIVE ORDER STILL HELD UP

Meantime, St. Louis Delegation, Which Expected to Leave Yesterday, Waits in Washington.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A legal delay tonight stood in the way of Federal approval of the proposed memorial to Thomas Jefferson and the Western pioneers on the St. Louis river front.

Attorney-General Cummings, Assistant Attorney-General Harry W. Blair and several aids spent most of the day studying the legal form of the executive order, which is intended to authorize the Federal Government to participate in the financing of the memorial up to three-fourths of the total cost. Late in the day, Charles M. Hay, City Counselor, and E. H. Wayman, Associate City Counselor, of St. Louis, were called into the conference.

At his press conference yesterday, the President said he would sign the order when it came to him from the Attorney-General. He spoke as though the Attorney-General's opinion were merely a routine matter.

Cummings' Reported Objection.

Although no one would discuss the legal hitch tonight, it is understood that Cummings has raised the objection that even Congress could not pledge the Federal Government to appropriate funds at some future date. Blair, at the close of the conference tonight, denied that there was any serious legal obstacle, insisting that the order was merely going through the customary routine examination.

Hay and Wayman, in co-operation with the legal staff of PWA drew up the executive order which defines the project, designates the National Territorial Memorial Expansion Commission as a Federal authority and states the share of the city and the Federal Government in the project. The order is considered necessary under a ruling of the Missouri Supreme Court on the validity of the bonds. Secretary of the Interior Ickes took the order to the Cabinet meeting yesterday and gave it to President Roosevelt who passed it on to Cummings for his opinion.

St. Louis Delegation Waiting.

Hay, Wayman, Mayor Dickmann, with Luther Ely Smith, chairman of the St. Louis committee promoting the memorial, and Louis La Beaume, have been here for more than 10 days attempting to get the executive order put through. They had expected to leave for St. Louis last night or at the latest, at noon today. Considerable gloom prevailed among the St. Louis delegation at the prospect of further delay in Washington. The St. Louis group has made several visits here in an effort to get Federal funds so that work might be started on the project.

St. Louis approved, on Sept. 10, a $7,500,000 bond issue for the city's share of the project. During the bond issue campaign, advocates of the project said that work could be started on the river front within a few days after the bonds were approved. A long series of delays has followed.

UPSIDE-DOWN FLYER JOINS ITALIAN FORCES IN AFRICA

By the Associated Press.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Nov. 16.—Capt. Tito Falconi, pilot, who holds the world record for upside-down flying, arrived today to join the Italian Army in Ethiopia.

Falconi, in a 240-mile flight from St. Louis to Joliet, Ill., Aug. 27, 1933, flew in an inverted position for three hours, six minutes, to surpass the mark of Milo G. Burcham of Long Beach, Cal., who had flown in this fashion for two hours, 20 minutes.

Britons Suspend Arabic Paper.

By the Associated Press.

JAFFA, Palestine, Nov. 16 (Palcor Agency).—The Government suspended the Arabic daily newspaper, Al Difaa, today for what it said was an attempt to stir up Arabs in Palestine to follow the example of the Nationalist uprising in Egypt. Publication was barred for one month, when the leading article compared "the revolution in Egypt with the silence in Palestine." Since the discovery of smuggled ammunition in Jaffa last month, Arab leaders have been protesting against British policies and the Jews.

GRAND COUNCIL ORDERS HOLIDAY TOMORROW WHEN SANCTIONS BEGIN

application of sanctions by the Fascist authorities.

The large Fascist crowd outside the council meeting place appeared to enjoy the fact that the grand council was the first to break one of the government's reprisal rulings. This order required public offices to be closed by 6:30 p. m., starting last Friday, in order to save heat and light. The council sitting, however, shortly before midnight, was "a necessary exception," as one Blackshirt explained.

Premier Sees German Envoy.

Mussolini talked for half an hour today with Ulrich von Hassel, German Ambassador to Rome.

This is the first contact between the Powers since Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler enunciated his "no profiteering" rule to govern German commerce with Italy during the imposition of sanctions of the League of Nations states.

Mussolini got from Von Hassel a good view of Hitler's mind to supplement what his own Ambassador to Berlin had told him.

Germany, in the first eight months of 1935, was Italy's best buyer and seller. Italy bought 843,000,000 lire (about $68,343,000) worth of German goods and sold 538,000,000 lire worth to the Reich.

With Italy's whole foreign import list, amounting to 7,500,000,000 lire last year, now upset by sanctions there are possibilities for a big extension of this trade. There was no discussion of trade, only "general talk" it was said officially.

Germany Protests Against British Order on Exports.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The German Government protested to London today against British regulations on German goods exported to England after Nov. 18. An official communique said the requirement that these products must be accompanied by certificates of origin "is not in harmony with certain provisions of the German-British trade agreement."

Britain's action, to take effect the same day that economic and financial sanctions against Italy go into force, was considered an attempt to prevent exports from Italy entering Great Britain through a nation that had not joined in the League of Nations' sanctions.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, it was said in diplomatic circles, had already given oral assurances to both Britain and France that he would not permit the assembling of foreign goods destined for Italy, in Germany.

Diplomats were represented as feeling Hitler's pledge strengthened the German embargo on the exportation of important foodstuffs and raw materials, which generally went into effect at midnight. The embargo on iron exports, however, will not be applied until Nov. 25.

Coal, which has been Germany's largest export to Italy, was not on the list of products which cannot be exported, nor was copper.

Among the products which will be held in Germany are: Nickel, magnesium, manganese, bauxite, hides, yarns, potatoes, oils, cooking fats and all raw materials used by the iron, metallurgical and rubber industries.

Poland Prescribes Penalties for Breaking of Sanctions Order.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Nov. 16.—Polish citizens who break League of Nations sanctions against Italy will be subject to imprisonment up to one year and heavy fines under the terms of a presidential decree published today. Only two transactions with Italians, both under the regulation of the League, are permitted. They are the export of coal to Italy in payment for a ship being built in Italy and the import of spare parts for Italian automobiles assembled in Poland.

Prison and Fine for Canadian Violators.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16.—The Canadian Government today announced penalties for violation of the order in council imposing League of Nations sanctions against Italy. The order prohibits loans and credits to Italy, shuts out imports from that country, and prohibits exports to Italy of certain key commodities used for military purposes. Article 4 of the order provides that if any person contravenes the prohibitory provisions they shall, in addition to other penalties provided by law, be liable to conviction on indictment to a maximum prison sentence of two years, to a fine, or to both. On summary conviction, the prison term is not more than one year, or a fine of $500, or both fine and imprisonment.

"War Reparations" for Merchants in France Sought.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Deputy Rene Dommange introduced a bill in Parliament today asking for "war reparations" for French merchants who lose business because of the imposition of sanctions against Italy by France. Dommange, who is a Rightist, argued that Italy, under the League of Nations covenant, was at war with the League.

Sanctions will not be applied against Italy by France until Nov. 19. A law is applied to each department of France only when a copy of the official journal, in which the law is printed, reaches the Prefecture. The journal is not published on Monday, hence the law making sanctions effective will appear Tuesday and may not reach the Marseilles Prefecture until Wednesday.

HOOVER ATTACKS NEW DEAL EFFORTS TOWARD PLANNING

that caused the depression collapse of 1929.

"In an effort to support the shaky financial structure of Europe," he said, "our Federal Reserve System in 1927 joined with foreign government banks in expansion or inflation of bank credits. Some of us laymen had bitterly protested that we had no need of expanded credit, that, in view of the then situation, it would be dangerous. We were told it could and would be easily conrtolled.

"There were other impulses, but this inflation of bank credit contributed to set off the greatest madness of speculation and greed since the Mississippi bubble. Men then also dreamed they were in a new era."

The former President disclaimed responsibility for the 1927 acts of the Federal Reserve, asserting "that was before my administration, and in any event at that time the system was independent of the administration. . . .

"Despite that bitter experience, the new national planners, to finance their huge spending and other purposes, have desperately resorted to the same inflation of bank credits. They, however, apparently do not believe in homeopathic doses. The dose of the same poison now injected into our national bloodstream by the New Deal is already three or four times as great as that of 1927."

Silver Policy Attacked.

The speech was most emphatic in a denunciation of the administration's silver policy.

"I could at least see some reason," Hoover said, "for spending ten to fifteen million a year to subsidize employment in our Western silver mines by buying their product at a profitable price. But what earthly reason we have for buying vast amounts of foreign silver will take generations of politicians to explain."

At one point he said: "It is no doubt a partof our good neighbor policies that we have joyfully subsidized every foreign speculator in silver." At another: "We devalued the dollar 41 per cent under the hypnosis that, if we reduced the length of a yard to 21.2 inches, we would have more cloth in the bolt."

American Gold Stocks.

Continuing on the monetary theme, Hoover cryptically alluded to the increase of American gold stocks.

"Another result of 'economic planning,'" he said, "has been the attraction of billions of gold—over two billions in two years—that we do not need for any conceivable purpose. We ought to have had the goods instead. Apparently 'planned economy' aims to become a bimetallic Midas."

His preference for the importation of goods instead of gold undoubtedly will be answered by Democratic spokesmen who will say that his failure to veto the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill kept the goods away from coming to this country. There are many points of his speech open to attack by Democrats. Charles Michelson, who conducted the "smear Hoover" campaign before 1932 in behalf of John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse, still has his files on the former President, and can be counted on to make effective use of them.

Democrats Want Hoover to Run.

It is no secret that the Democrats think that Roosevelt would have his best chance next year against Hoover, on the theory that the former President is identified in the public mind with the depression. Hoover has announced that he thinks it is his public duty to oppose many phases of the Roosevelt "more abundant life" program. He has announced that he will not give his views on the agricultural situation until after the United States Supreme Court has passed on the constitutionality of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. In his speech tonight he just brushed the farm problem by his ironical remark:

"Judged by works and not by words, another consistency in this sort of 'economic planning' is to limit competition and restrict production—the essence of monopoly. They have given us planned scarcity—upon which civilization always degenerates—in the place of economic plenty, upon which America has grown great. It is the more abundant life—without bacon."

BRITISH SHIP CARRYING STEEL FOR ITALY READY AT BOSTON

Freighter Loaded With 5000 Tons of Scrap Metal; Sanctions in Effect Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—The freighter Farnham, carrying 5000 tons of scrap iron and steel, was ready to sail tonight for Genoa, Italy. The Farnham is under British registry, owned by the Delta Steamship Co. of London, reputed to be operating with Italian capital.

League of Nations sanctions against Italy become operative Monday, and in some circles the belief was expressed that the Farnham would not get beyond Gibraltar.

The Farnham is commanded by Capt. Carmelo d'Arrigo, who has experienced difficulty in keeping a full crew aboard during the past week. Early in the week, 12 of the deck crew quit, complaining of unsatifactory living and working conditions. New men signed on. Six of these quit and they were not replaced until today.

While the Farnham was loading, someone painted "Murder Cargo" in letters several feet high on freight cars filled with scrap metal for the freighter.

BELGIAN FINANCIER, EMILE FRANCQUI, DIES

Twice a Fiscal Dictator—Known as 'Copper King of the Congo.'

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 16.—Emile Francqui, 72 years old, Belgian financier who once was known as "Copper King of the Congo," died today.

Francqui, given dictatorial powers over the belga last year, maintained it on the gold standard during a crisis.

Twice financial dictator of Belgium, in 1926 and again in 1934, Francqui was humbly born in 1863, the son of a civil service employe, and was educated at a free school for army waifs.

His rise to fame and fortune dates back to 1891, when King Leopold II became alarmed at the activities of the British in the Congo and decided to send an armed expedition to "investigate." Francqui, then a young army captain, had already caught the eye of King Leopold, and leadership of the important venture, which ultimately brought untold riches to Belgium, was entrusted to him.

Bluffing the English.

Francqui set out and two months later, arriving at the Rhodesian border, found he had reached the scene too late. "Another white chief," the natives informed him, had already had arrived. Hurrying to the English camp at the head of his little force, Francqui turned apparent disaster into triumph with a bluff. Coolly, he confronted the leader of the English and warned him not to proceed any farther north.

"Important Belgian forces already occupy the whole northern district," said Francqui, "and reinforcements are en route."

They were not, of course, but the startled Englishman decided not to risk a clash with "important forces," and withdrew.

Capt. Francqui planted the Belgian tri-color on the spot, marking he boundary between Rhodesia and the Belgian Congo that has remained ever since.

The bluff not only won for his country one of the richest parts of Central Africa, but also paved the way for the career that made him "copper king of the Congo" 20 years later.

Financial Work in China.

His reputation as a financier was chiefly gained in China. He went there as Consul General at Tientsin, but threw up his government post and went in for the business of gaining concessions. Some of them still figure on international stock exchanges: Tramways de Tientsin, de Shanghai, Kaiping coal mines, and others.

In March, 1932, he was made Governor of the Societe Generale, the powerful Belgian central financial institute, and he played an important part in the drafting of the Dawes and Young plans as Belgium's expert.

As financial dictator in 1934-5, delegated by young King Leopold III to "maintain the Belgian franc at its present gold level," he held no Cabinet portfolio, but was recognized as "spiritus rector" and the most powerful figure in Belgium. When he accepted this charge, he had to resign as president or director of more than a dozen leading banks, trusts and industrial enterprises; but he could afford such a gesture, for he was reputedly worth about $50,000,000.

Francqui's private life was extremely secluded. He shunned society, barricaded himself against publicity and spent what little spare time he had at Overysche, a country estate 15 miles from Brussels, where he indulged his fancies for fishing and pig raising.

The Francqui Foundation, the University Foundation, the National Fund for Scientific Research, which financed the initial stratosphere balloon flights of Prof. Auguste Piccard and Max Cosyns, and the Belgian National Cancer Fund all owed their existence chiefly to his liberality.

He was much traveled and visited the United States on many occasions. He was a member of the commission which went to Washington in 1925 and negotiated the funding of the Belgian war debt and he made many trips to America in connection with his copper interests.

Wounded Colonel Led Italians to Victory

Vivid Account of Battle of Danakil in Which Ethiopians in Ambush Were Routed, Leaving 55 Dead.

Special Cable.

ROME, Nov. 16.—How a wounded Italian Army Colonel struggled to his feet and led his men in a charge that turned an Ethiopian ambush into a field of victory for Italy was told today in the first detailed account of the "Battle of the Danakil." Fifty-five Ethiopians and 18 Italians were killed in the three-hour struggle, fought Thursday on the edge of the Danakil desert, 35 miles northeast of Makale. A dispatch cabled the newspaper, Popolo di Roma today says:

"Gen. Mariotti's camel corps of askari and savage Danakils had marched for one hour out of Azbi Thursday morning when an ambush of 400 khaki-clad Ethiopian regulars commenced firing at short range. Eight askaris fell at the first volley, but the rest rushed forward, led by Italian officers, to attack the unseen enemy, who had escaped the attention of the air scouts by hiding in caves.

Enemy on Cliff.

"The raw meat eating Danakils, who had had their first taste of discipline only a month before, ran forward, heedless of orders, and intent only on outshouting and outshooting the hidden Ethiopians.

"Gen. Mariotti, leading the center column, heard the cries of his men and the clash of arms. He spurred forward his own men, who added their shouts and rifle shots to the growing clamor. The enemy was still out of sight.

"Finally Dedjiac Kassa Sebhat led his warriors from cover on a sheer cliff that appeared to be impregnable. The first askari and Danakil rush broke itself on the rocks and fell back.

"Gen. Mariotti then dispatched his light troops for a swift flank attack, while the machine-gunners established their positions and the native troops recovered. The light artillery was unloaded from the camels and was soon scoring telling hits on the Ethiopians above.

Wounded Colonel Leads Men.

"At the end of three hours the outcome was still doubtful. Then Col. Belli, while leading his battalion into the fight, fell wounded. His men rushed to his aid. He waved them back, crying: 'It is nothing. Aways forward.'

"The Colonel struggled to his feet and, revolver in hand, turned the tide of battle. He rallied the Italian forces and covered the cliff, preventing the Ethiopians from coming out to fire, while the flanking party climbed to a commanding position.

"For two more hours, the machine-gunners scored against the Ethiopians. Three more Italian under-officers fell wounded, but continued to give orders, driving their black troops forward.

"Finally Ras Kassa was no longer able to take it. He and his men fled to the south, leaving 55 dead and numerous wounded on the field. All were armed with the latest English and Belgian rifles.

"By afternoon, the Italians were in complete control of all strategic points. The askaris pursued the Ethiopians while the artillery pelted them at long range. It was getting dark before the last shots died out.

"In the twilight the Italians buried the dead on both sides and rejoiced over their hard-won victory."

CREW DELAYS SHIP'S SAILING

Wants Assurance Cargo Is Not Intended for Italian Forces.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 16.—The steamer Oregon was delayed here today when its crew demanded assurance it was not shipping gasoline for Italian Somaliland.

J. R. Robinson, head of the San Pedro Council of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific Coast, said he sent the following telegram to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State: "Steamer Oregon loaded with aviation gasoline apparently consigned to Italian Somaliland via Singapore. We are holding vessel at this port until guaranteed by United States department that full protection will be given members of our organization who are members of the ship's crew."

lassie had ordered his warriors, massing in that vicinity, not to retreat.

So close is Amba Alagi to the Italian outposts that Gen. Emilo de Bono could see it through binoculars when he climbed Mount Bolbala, 10 miles beyond Makale.

Reports reached here that Ras Seyoum had arrived at Togara, near Amba Alagi, to take command of the Ethiopian forces there.

Because of the mountainous terrain and the altitude, 10,000 feet, Amba Alagi is more defensible than Makale.

Before the next advance begins every effort is being made to eliminate dangerous small forces along the flanks. These operations are under way by two Fascist corps, one in the east and one in the west.

Another effort is being made to round up and wipe out small bodies of Ethiopians left within the Italian line by the recent rapid advance.

Ethiopian Warriors March to "Dixie" and "St. Louis Blues."

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 16.—Ten thousand Ethiopian warriors, bound for the front, passed in review before Emperor Haile Selassie today to the tunes of "Dixie" and "St. Louis Blues."

Foreign observers shared the surprise of natives, few of whom ever had seen a cornet or trombone. The usual native drums and flutes also were included in the band.

The soldiers were from Walega, the richest Province in Ethiopia. They marched to the palace to salute the Emperor, led by Makonnen Demisso, who holds the title "Bitwoded," meaning "beloved of the Emperor."

Hubert Julian, Harlem negro who brought a phonograph and American records to Ethiopia, aided in training the band.

The troops were the best trained yet seen in Addis Ababa. Khaki clad, they marched silently past the Emperor, turning their eyes to the right and raising their arms and rifles in salute. The Emperor smiled proudly.

Then the chieftains were given their opportunities to make speeches of loyalty to the throne, as is customary. The tribesmen performed acrobatic feats with spears, daggers and rifles.

Julian, who has resigned his command, tearfully bade farewell to the Emperor and announced his departure from Ethiopia tomorrow. He had given as a reason for resigning that his authority was not respected.

Attired in a morning coat and striped trousers, Julian turned over his uniform and sword to Haile Selassie, saying, "Your Supreme Illustriousness, it is with overpowering emotion and a bleeding heart that I am resigning as an offocer of the great army of the Conquering Lion of Judah." He said his talents had not been appreciated.

RELIEF JOBS FAIL TO CUT GREATLY NUMBER ON DOLE

15,209 on Federal Work in City and County but Many Have Not Got First Pay.

47,511 FAMILIES ON ROLLS IN AREA

Government Allotments to Them Reduced Since Aug. 1, Now Average $22 a Family.

Although local administrators of Federal work relief activities estimated today that 15,209 persons from relief rolls have been put to work in St. Louis and St. Louis County, agencies responsible for direct relief reported that their duties were little changed.

While some who started several weeks ago on work relief have received their first pay checks, many who began work more recently have had to continue on the dole for grocery orders and rent vouchers. Most of the 80 Government-sponsored jobs in the St. Louis area began very recently.

Those assigned to jobs on the 55 WPA undertakings now under way will receive their first pay after working for two weeks and, until that time, are dependent on funds on the agencies which cared for them before. Similarly, the rest of the 35,853 city and county employables who have not yet been assigned to jobs will need continued assistance until they begin to draw pay from the public works enterprises.

40,811 Families on St. Louis Rolls.

Officials of the St. Louis Relief Administration told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday there were 40,811 families on their rolls Nov. 1, an estimated total of 144,500 individuals. The county rolls, according to D. O. Carter, executive secretary of the St. Louis County Relief Committee, include 6700 families, or about 28,000 individuals.

Federal Allotment Reduced.

Federal funds for direct distribution to needy families have been gradually reduced since Aug. 1 in accordance with the Government's policy of concentrating on the public works program. In St. Louis and St. Louis County relief budgets have been reduced until the average expenditure for each family is about $22 a month.

The St. Louis office of the Missouri State Employment Service, 1806 Washington avenue, has assigned or has received requisitions from the WPA for 11,000 persons under the work relief program. The service has sent 3886 men and women to jobs in the county.

Joseph A. Amend, local PWA director, announced yesterday that 13,000 persons had been assigned to work on the 55 undertakings directed by his organization. He said WPA hoped to have 25,000 at work by Dec. 1.

PWA Reports 1200 at Work.

The Public Works Administration reported about 1200 at work in the area on 19 construction jobs for which money was alloted under the 1934 appropriation. Other works to be completed from the $4,880,000,000 appropriation this year will be started here soon after Dec. 15, when all contracts will have been let.

The Bureau of the Census has taken 636 persons from relief rolls here for the compilation of a card index for the 1900 census. Most of the workers are of the "white collar" class. It is expected ultimately about 3000 persons will be put to work on the index here.

Other undertakings in the area, exclusive of those sponsored by WPA or PWA, are repairs and improvements to Jefferson Barracks and the St. Louis Medical Depot, tasks now employing 139 men; a public health survey under the United States Public Health Service, employing 130 workers, and a statistical analysis of Federal income tax returns for the Treasury Department, on which 84 men and women are at work.

Missouri to Get $750,000 for Relief for Latter Half of November.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 16.—Wallace Crossley, State Relief Administrator, was informed this afternoon that Missouri would receive a Federal allotment of $750,000 for general relief for the latter half of November.

In addition, a telegram from Aubrey Williams, assistant to Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, advised him that the State would get $200,000 for transient relief for the same period. Crossley described Williams' telegram as "somewhat puzzling," and said "there might be a mistake."

"We didn't expect an allotment for the latter half of November," he said, "but a final allotment which would not be confined to the remainder of the month.

"The transient relief grant is a lot bigger than we expected. For the first half of the month, only $47,500 was alloted Missouri for this phase of relief."

BROWN SHOE CO. DETECTIVE DEFIES U. S. LABOR BOARD

Louis University, the trial examiner, "Am I on trial?"

"Practical Ways Best."

Informed that he was expected to reply to questions, the witness said he had read 400 or 500 books on industrial matters, but in response to a question, he could not name one. He was not familiar with the names of several noted economists recited by Shaw and gave as his opinion that "practical ways are best, I do not see how fine academic theories would work." "This is a peculiar line of questioning," he added, "if you will ask about the Brown Shoe Co. I will talk all day."

The witness said he never was a shoe worker and never personally attempted to pass on questions of efficiency in the Brown Shoe factories, relying on qualified persons to make such decisions.

"I may say, Mr. Shaw," Ahner declared, "that I am recognized generally by practical industrialists as a man who knows his business. I am called on for speeches all over the country on the question of industrial relations, and I have talked to Lions and Kiwanis clubs, Knights of Columbus, the American Legion and others who listen to such subjects."

Asked About Strikebreaking.

Questioned regarding a speech he made to the Brown Shoe Co. employes at Salem, Ahner explained that "there had been reports that Mrs. Roosevelt wanted everyone to belong to a union, and I told those people that was not necessary, that they could decide that question for themselves."

"Isn't it true, Mr. Ahner, that you have a reputation as the biggest strikebreaker in the Middle West?" Shaw asked the witness.

Replying, Ahner said: "Mr. Shaw, I am proud of my reputation of protecting employers against unlawful acts. It is worth a great deal of money to me, and I intend to continue. If that is what you mean by your question, I yield to the definition and I am proud of it."

Shaw asked the witness if his firm furnished guards to firms involved in labor disputes. Ahner said guards were furnished "to protect property." When the attorney hesitated for the name usually applied to such guards by strikers, Ahner supplied it. "They call them finks, Mr. Shaw," the witness said.

Asked if in 1928 he had been caught with a tear gas bomb in his hand outside the home of a South St. Louis physician, the witness protested, and was not required to answer.

Asked About Deposition.

Regarding his methods of dealing with labor disputes generally, Ahner stated that "if no agreement could be reached by a firm that was unduly harassed by a union my advice would be to fight."

Shaw read from a deposition Ahner had given in Kansas City in 1929 during the prosecution of a labor leader there and asked the witness if he had not testified that he joined the blacksmiths' union as an agent for employers.

The answer, as it appeared in the deposition was: "Not only the blacksmiths, but about 24 others."

Ahner said he did not recall his deposition testimony. Previously he testified that he was not connected with the Railway Audit & Inspection Co. when he was a union man. He admitted that one method of obtaining information for employers was to have a private detective join a union and report on its activities.

Ahner was excused without cross-examination by E. A. H. Shepley, attorney for the Brown Shoe Co. When Shaw expressed the hope that the witness had not been inconvenienced, Ahner answered "I enjoyed fencing with you."

The hearing will be resumed Monday morning at the new Federal building.

FRED H. FRICKE ENDS LIFE; DEBTS GIVEN AS CAUSE

Druggist, a Former State Pure Food and Drug Commissioner, Takes Poison at Hotel.

Desperation over debts caused Fred H. Fricke, druggist and former State Pure Food and Drug Commissioner, to end his life with poison, it was indicated by notes found beside his body yesterday morning in his room at the Auditorium Hotel, Eighteenth and Pine streets.

"The depression has forced me to do this," one note said. "I just lost my mind through worry over my debts."

The other note, addressed to his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Feldhaus, with whom Fricke and his wife, Lena, lived at 3218 Hebert street, said, "Please forgive me for my act." It was signed "Daddy."

Head of Fricke-Hahn Co.

Fricke, who was 62 years old, was head of the Fricke-Hahn Drug Co., 1901 Madison street. The notes, on the dresser in the room, asked police to notify Dr. A. H. Jost, who has offices above the drug company, and Feldhaus.

The body was found by a bellboy sent to Fricke's room after the telephone operator was unable to arouse him. He registered at the hotel at 9:25 p. m. Friday and asked to be called at 7 a. m. Two bottles, which had contained poison, and a drinking glass were beside the bed.

A relief pharmacist employed by Fricke told a reporter that when Fricke left the store Friday he said he would be gone about four days on a business trip.

Once Operated 11 Stores.

Dr. Jost said Fricke had been in a nervous condition for the last year. He was in the drug business more than 30 years. Dr. Jost said that at one time, about 20 years ago, his firm operated 11 drug stores, and Fricke said he had introduced the chain drug system into St. Louis. All the stores except the Madison street one were disposed of about 15 years ago.

Fricke was Food and Drug Commissioner under Gov. Elliott W. Major from 1913 to 1917. He managed Major's St. Louis primary campaign. A few months after he took office he began a sanitation campaign which resulted in the cleaning up of Union Market. He was a candidate for City Council on the Democratic ticket in 1909, and although defeated, led the ticket.

At one time he was president of the Missouri Pharmaceutical Association and the St. Louis Retail Druggists' Association.

WOUNDED MAN WALKS IN HOSPITAL, STORY CONFUSED

First Tells of Robbery Attempt, Then Saloon Fight; Shot in Left Side.

A man who said he was Walter Wierzchwski, an unemployed die setter, walked into City Hospital at 7:45 o'clock last night, wounded in the left side, and told a confused story of having been shot in a fight near Eleventh street and Cass avenue.

At first he said three men had approached him on Eleventh street between Cass and O'Fallon street, apparently to rob him. He struck one of them, he said, whereupon another shot him and all three fled. Under further questioning by police, he said, he had been shot in a fight in a saloon near Eleventh and Cass and driven to the hospital by a stranger.

He gave an address in the 1800 block of Menard street, but police were unable to find anyone there who knew him. Physicians at the hospital took X-rays to learn the nature and extent of his wound.

Police records show Wierzchwski served a two-year sentence for burglary, beginning in 1921.

SINUS PATIENT SHOOTS DOCTOR

Operation by New York Physician Had Failed to Relieve Pain.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Angered because an operation had failed to relieve his sinus pains, Guiseppe Falzone, 49 years old, an unemployed home relief recipient, called Dr. Ercole Fiore to his home and shot him.

The physician, wounded three times in the neck and chest, was taken to Mt. Sinai Hospital, where his condition was described as serious. Falzone was booked on a charge of felonious assault.

$25,000 Awarded in Hill Divorce.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Nov. 16.—Divorce of Walter J. Hill, son of the late James J. Hill, railroad magnate, and Mrs. Mildred Richardson Hill was disclosed today by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel. Mrs. Hill was awarded $25,000 in securities and $300 a month alimony.

PRANK RESULTS IN FRACTURE OF BOY PUPIL'S VERTEBRA

Wendell Bode of Alton Falls to Floor When Classmate Removes His Chair.

Wendell Bode, 12-year-old pupil in the East Junior High School, Alton, was placed yesterday in a plaster cast which covered his entire back, after it was learned he had suffered a fractured vertebra as a result of a classroom prank two weeks ago. He will have to remain in the cast from three to nine months, depending upon the time required for the fracture to heal.

Wendell had stood up during class to ask his teacher a question. As he prepared to sit down, another boy pulled his chair from under him, and he fell to the floor. He complained of a backache for several days, and when the pain increased he was taken to a physician.

X-ray photographs were made, and yesterday it was discovered the boy had suffered a compression fracture of a vertebra of the lower spine. Wendell, a seventh grade student, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Bode, 833 Evergreen avenue, Alton. His father is a carpenter.

Holdup Attempt on Battleship.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 16.—Charged with attempting to hold up the paymaster of the United States fleet on the battleship California while the vessel was 150 miles at sea, George Albert Boyog, 20-year-old sailor, was brought into port here today. W. F. Trien, the paymaster, was forced at pistol point to walk to a lower deck, but grappled with the seaman until aid came, officers said. Boyog is to be tried before a Navy board of inquiry on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, and attempted robbery.

J. M. OLIN, ALTON, SECRETLY DIVORCED

Cartridge Manufacturer Charged With Desertion; Decree Obtained Nov. 5.

A divorce was granted Nov. 5, to Mrs. Adele Olin from John M. Olin, wealthy vice-president of the Western Cartridge Co. of Alton, in Madison County Circuit Court, it was learned yesterday.

The divorce was granted at a secret hearing in Judge Mudge's chambers and became known when the records were transferred from the judge's chambers to the clerk's office and entered on the docket. Mrs. Olin charged desertion. No details of the hearing were divulged.

Olin did not contest and was not represented at the hearing. Mrs. Olin's attorney was E. J. Verlie of Alton. It was understood that no property settlement was made but Mrs. Olin, who is wealthy in her own right, received custody of their three daughters. They are: Georgene, 16 years old, a student at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y.; Louise, 14, a student at Monticello Seminary, Godfrey, Ill., and Joan, 3.

Olin, 43 years old, is the son of F. W. Olin, president of the cartridge company, and has been vice-president of the company since 1916. He is also vice-president of the Equitable Powder Co. of Alton, a subsidiary of Western Cartridge. He graduated from Cornell University in 1913. His brother, Spencer T. Olin, is secretary of the company.

About four years ago Western Cartridge merged with the Winchester Arms Co. of New Haven, Conn., and since that time Olin has spent much of his time in the East.

Mrs. Olin is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George M. Levis of Alton. Her father was president of the Illinois Glass Co., now the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. Mr. and Mrs. Levis died on the same day in July, 1933, in St. Louis. Mrs. Olin inherited approximately $3,000,000 from her father and $1,000,000 from her mother.

The Olins were married Sept. 29, 1917, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Alton. Their home, an impressive stone mansion, is in Fairmount, a subdivision west of Alton on the Mississippi River bluffs. They have been frequent patrons of the horse shows in St. Louis, in which their daughters sometimes rode.

Mrs. Olin has been in New York since the divorce was granted.

INCREASE IN LIVING COSTS

Wage Earners' Expenses Up One-half of 1 Per Cent in Month.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Living costs of wage earners in the United States, as reported by the National Industrial Conference Board today, increased one-half of 1 per cent from September to October. Higher prices were reported for each of the major groups of expenditures that compose the wage earner's budget.

"Living costs in October were 3.7 per cent above those of a year ago, 17.3 per cent higher than in April, 1933, the low point of the depression, and 16.9 per cent lower than in October, 1929," the board said.

MOVIE BARONESS TO BE BICYCLE RACER'S BRIDE

FERN ANDRA.

WILLIAM (TORCHY) PEDEN.

HER mother and her attorney confirmed reports in Chicago yesterday that the actress soon would marry the six-day bicycle racer. The Baroness, who used to be Fern St. Clair in Watseka, Ill., couldn't be reached because she was en route to Chicago by train. Neither could Peden, who was pedaling around and around in the annual Chicago races. The marriage would be the third marriage for the actress. Her first husband was the Baron von Zu Weichs Zur Wenne. She met him while making movies in Germany. Her second was Ian Keith, the actor. Divorce last spring dissolved that.

STOLEN LIQUOR SENTENCE

Jake West Gets 18 Months on Charge of Possession.

Jake West, 5510 Robin avenue, was sentenced to 18 months in the Federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., by Federal Judge Davis yesterday on a plea of guilty of possessing liquor stolen May 13 in a robbery of the Ill-Mo Truck Service Co. warehouse, 1200 South Spring avenue. One hundred and twenty-two cases valued at $1168 were stolen.

West was indicted jointly with William Swanson, Negro, proprietor of a tavern at 927 North Spring avenue, and two other men after police found 87 cases of the liquor in Swanson's tavern and the basement of his home. Federal agents said they learned West had sold the liquor to Swanson.

ANDERSON OVERRULED IN NAMING GRAND JURY

County Prosecutor Requests Coroner to Select Panel—Names Officials for Inquiry.

A St. Louis County grand jury will be convened Nov. 26 "to find out if any crime has been committed in the county," Circuit Judge Julius R. Nolte announced yesterday.

Members of the grand jury will be chosen by Sheriff Philip G. Deuser. Associate Prosecuting Attorney John J. Wolfe, in asking the Circuit Judges last Tuesday to summon a grand jury, urged that Deuser and the County Court, or administrative body, be disqualified from picking it.

Wolfe, at the direction of Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson, requested that the grand jury be selected by the Coroner and be instructed to investigate the offices of Sheriff Deuser, County Clerk Walter E. Miller, Collector Willis W. Benson and the office of Assessor during the period it was held by George M. Herpel.

Judge Nolte told reporters yesterday, following the meeting of the four Circuit Judges in general term, that there was nothing before the Court to disqualify Deuser as Sheriff in choosing the grand jury. The only thing before the Court bearing on the question of disqualification, he related, was Wolfe's letter. Asked if the grand jury was summoned in response to Wolfe's request, Judge Nolte said the reason was to learn whether any crime had been committed.

The grand jury will be impaneled as of the September term of court, one of the three terms annually. This term opened in the middle of September and will last until January. It has been customary in the county, but not the invariable rule, to have a grand jury some time during each court term in recent years.

In his request, Wolfe summarized findings of auditors who recently examined the books of Miller, Benson and Herpel. The Sheriff, said Wolfe, has refused to permit an audit of the jail account, "which, without question, must show flagrant waste or handsome profit." An audit of Deuser's office has not been completed.

GEN. E. D. DIMMICK DIES AT 95

Served in Two Wars and in Indian Campaigns.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 16.—Gen. Eugene D. Dimmick, 95 years old, veteran of the Civil and Spanish-American wars and Indian campaigns, died at his home here today.

Gen. Dimmick headed the honor guard when President Abraham Lincoln's body lay in state at the Capitol. He was wounded in the Civil War and cited for the rescue expedition to the Rough Riders in Cuba. He served in the battles of Gettysburg and Bull Run.

VALLEY MEETING FOR 25 STATES TO OPEN NOV. 24

Three Senators to Speak at Dinner — Flood Control Bill Among Proposals to Be Taken Up.

The traffic committee of the Mississippi Valley Association and the committee on use of water resources will meet at Hotel Statler next Sunday in advance of the association's seventeenth annual convention which will open a week from tomorrow.

C. E. Childe of Omaha, Neb., is chairman of the traffic committee which will meet at 10:30 a. m. to discuss the joint river-rail rates and routes case pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission, proposed legislation such as the Eastman Water Carrier Bill, and Port-to-port rates and services of barge lines.

The committee on use of water resources, of which Wade O. Martin of Louisiana is chairman, will meet at 1:30 p. m. Matters to be considered include the flood control bill pending in the United States Senate and recommendations to be submitted to the convention.

Three Senators to Speak.

Representatives of about 25 states will attend the convention sessions Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 25 and 26, according to Lachlan Macleay, executive secretary of the association.

Speakers at the dinner Nov. 25 will include United States Senators Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, William H. Dieterich of Illinois, and Harry S. Truman of Missouri.

Several Congressmen will speak at the opening session that morning, at which talks will be made by Mayor Dickmann and Col. Robert Isham Randolph of Chicago, president of the association. The Congressmen who are on the program are Riley J. Wilson of Louisiana, chairman of the Committee on Flood Control; Joseph J. Mansfield of Texas, chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and W. J. Driver of Arkansas.

On the afternoon program Nov. 25 will be A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation; Congressman Eugene B. Crowe of Indiana, Congressman Phil Ferguson of Oklahoma, Congressman Frank Carlson of Kansas and Major-General E. M. Markham, Chief of the United States Army Engineers.

Joint Luncheon Nov. 26.

A joint luncheon with the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce will be held on Nov. 26. Speakers will be John E. Edgerton, president of the Southern States Industrial Council; Congressman Virginia E. Jenckes of Indiana and Congressmen Thomas C. Hennings Jr. and James R. Claiborne of St. Louis.

The association's 10-point program for 1936 to be considered at the convention follows:

"Completion by the opening of the 1937 navigation season of all inland waterway channels now under construction.

"Adoption of new main channel links in the inland waterways system of the Middle West and South with standard channels and terminals, wherever economic justification is established.

"Protection of the water carriers against restrictive regulation and regimentation under the control of a railroad-minded commission.

"An amendment to the Interstate Commerce Act to prohibit the railroads from continuing their rate slashing policy, designed to destroy the water carriers.

"The development and conservation of the water resources of the mid-continental basin through the economic use, in place of the present waste of the surplus waters of the drainage basin.

Source Stream Reservoirs.

"The adoption and speedy completion of an adequate flood control program for the Mississippi Valley, including the construction of source stream reservoirs wherever feasible.

"Widen the trade markets of the interior by increasing the north and south movement of commerce, and revise the joint rail-river rate structure to give all sections of the interior the benefits of low cost inland water navigation.

"Construct modern river-rail interchange terminals at port cities and all important rail crossings where they do not now exist and where economically justified.

"Support and develop the American Merchant Marine, particularly American ocean services operating out of the Gulf ports.

"Oppose the ratification of the St. Lawrence Treaty until sufficient diversion from Lake Michigan is provided to insure successful commercial navigation on the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway."

GRAIN TRADER ADMITS GIVING INCOMPLETE FILE OF DEALS

Case of Simon Wexler, Chicago, Up to Commissioner; May Be Barred from Markets.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—An admission by Simon Wexler, Chicago trader, that he failed to file complete reports of his market transactions, was disclosed today by the Grain Futures Administration. Charges of violation of the grain futures act were filed against Wexler in September. The alleged violations occurred in 1933 and 1934.

J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the administration, said the admission by Wexler was not a plea of guilty to the charges. However, he said, Wexler has waived a hearing before the Grain Futures Commission.

A final commission decision is expected without further investigation. If the commission finds Wexler guilty of violation, it may bar him from trading on all contract markets in this country. Two Chicago traders, Arthur W. Cutten and Thomas M. Howell, recently were barred for two years. The orders, however, have been stayed by appeals to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

MOTHER FINDS SONS SHE PUT IN ORPHANAGE 24 YEARS AGO

Omaha Woman Learns They Are Farm Hands Living Near Rosebud, Ill.

RED BUD, Ill., Nov. 16.—Mrs. Dora McIntyre of Omaha, Neb., who has not seen her sons, Henry and Edward McIntyre, since placing them in an orphanage 24 years ago, learned yesterday that they ROSEBUD, Ill., Nov. 16.—Mrs. are farm hands living near Rosebud.

Mrs. McIntyre wired, asking them to visit her, but they were without funds to make the trip. They were found through the aid of Marshall Nye, an Omaha lawyer, who heard their name mentioned by a filling station attendant when he was passing through here last summer, and who recently learned Mrs. McIntyre was searching for them.

To Be Derived From AAA Appropriations and Advance Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Emergency relief funds, Comptroller-General McCarl has held, may not be used for enforcement of the compulsory potato control law.

The Agricultural Adjustment Association said today McCarl agreed that Department of Agriculture funds not appropriated for a specific purpose plus advances against collections of the potato taxes might be used for administrative purposes. The AAA said probably enough funds will be available to enforce the law until Congress convenes

SESSIONS ON BIRTH CONTROL OPEN DEC. 2

Problems of Family Limitation to Be Discussed at Regional Conference.

The problems of family limitation, from the standpoint of health, economics and religion, will be discussed at a regional conference on birth control, which will be held Dec. 2 and 3 at Hotel Chase under the auspices of the Maternal Health Association of Missouri. Visitors and speakers from Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas will attend.

The conference will open with a general morning session. Speakers will be Dr. Paul J. Zentay, president of the Missouri Society for Mental Hygiene; Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel, and Prof. Tyrrell Williams, acting dean of the Washington University School of Law. Mrs. Samuel B. McPheeters, president of the association, will preside.

Following a luncheon meeting at which an informal discussion will be held for out-of-town visitors, there will be an afternoon session on the problem of founding a birth control clinic. Speakers include Mrs. Edward Cornish, Little Rock, Ark.; Mrs. George A. Ripley, Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. C. E. McLaughlin, Kansas City, Mo., all associated with clinics and health associations in their cities. Later that afternoon, Dr. Eric Matsner, medical director of the American Birth Control League, will speak at a meeting for physicians.

In the evening, Dr. Henry Pratt Fairchild, professor of sociology, New York University, will give an address on "Population and War."

The social and economic problems of family limitation will be discussed at the morning session the following day. Speakers will be Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, executive secretary of the Illinois Social Hygiene League, and Prof. Edward B. Reuter, department of sociology, University of Iowa. Samuel A. Stouffer, professor of sociology, University of Chicago, will speak on the "Birth Rate and Unemployment," at a luncheon.

The closing session will be held in the afternoon, with a discussion of religious and moral problems under the leadership of the Rev. Arnold H. Lowe, pastor of Kingshighway Presbyterian Church and president of the Church Federation of St. Louis.

The conference will end following a visit to the clinic operated by the association at 4817A Delmar boulevard. The meetings will be open to the public.

SEVEN SHOT IN DOCK STRIKE OUTBREAK AT ORANGE, TEX.

Non-Union Men Leaving Steamer are Fired On, Then Kicked and Beaten.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Tex., Nov. 16.—Seven non-union longshoremen were shot and one of them was seriously wounded today in a surprise attack by about 20 men as the workers were leaving the French steamer San Mateo. More than 100 shots were fired.

The attackers also kicked and beat the workers, who were leaving the dock property in trucks and automobiles. Robert Monic of Buna, Tex., was shot four times and also beaten. His condition was said to be serious.

John James, Parkersburg, W. Va.; John Simpson, West Virginia; C. P. Hughes, Newton, Tex.; Vories Hames, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Henry Healy, Thomasville, Ga., and an unidentified man also were shot.

The San Mateo was being loaded under protection of a Federal Court injunction which restrained members of the International Longshoremen's Association, now on strike, from interfering. Seven men were arrested and held for Federal officers. Five admitted being members of the union.

THANKSGIVING DAY DINNER AT DOWNTOWN Y. M. C. A.

30 Churches Among Sponsors; 400 Invitations Sent Out; Musical Program.

The eighth annual Thanksgiving day dinner for young men away from home, will be held at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., 1528 Locust street, at 12:30 p. m. Thanksgiving day.

Thirty churches, the young men's division of the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown "Y" are sponsoring the dinner.

John B. Edwards, attorney, will be toastmaster, and a musical program will be given. Four hundred invitations have been sent out. Young men who wish to attend may secure invitations from their church or from one of the sponsoring organizations.

COUNTERFEITING RING BROKEN

U. S. Secret Service Seizes Principals in Monterey, Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Secret Service has broken up a counterfeiting ring in Monterey, Mexico, before it put a single fake bill into circulation.

Its operatives, the Secret Service said today, joined the ring and seized three Mexicans, who gave their names as Juan Manuel Brondo, Arturo Serna Garza and Saturnino Gonzalez. They also confiscated a counterfeiting outfit, including plates and five glass negatives, with which the gang was making $10 notes on the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, Tex.

DOWN THE AGES from open fire to MAGIC CHEF
It's difficult to imagine how the women of earliest times managed to cook over open fires exposed to the mercy of the elements. Huddled over a flickering blaze, without shelter or stove of any kind, getting meals was then a real problem. Today the dainty housewife scarcely soils her pretty hands as she flits about in a lovely kitchen boasting that most famous cooking appliance of all time—Magic Chef. Handsome in appearance and efficient in operation, this new vogue in Gas Ranges is the ultimate in stove building craftsmanship.

INDIANA BOY WINS MARK TWAIN CENTENNIAL LITERARY PRIZE

Richard Reed, 14, Picked in Nation-wide Contest; 18 Others to Get Awards.

By the Associated Press.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Nov. 16.—Richard Reed, 14 years old, of Bloomington, Ind., won a nation-wide literary contest held in connection with the centennial celebration of the birth of Mark Twain, it was announced today. The Mark Twain Centennial Committee will announce what the prize will be later.

Contestants, all under 16 years of age, were asked to write on any phase of the life or writings of the Missouri humorist.

Eighteen other winners were announced. Their prize will be a figure of Mark Twain in relief design by Walter Russell, New York sculptor. These winners included Pauline Abney of Springfield, Mo.

THIRD BLOOD TRANSFUSION FOR MAN SERIOUSLY BURNED

Lee Maloney Under Oxygen Tent; Tried to Put Out Fire in His Truck, Nov. 6.

Lee Maloney, 1845A South Tenth street, who was seriously burned on the chest, face and arms when he attempted to put out a fire in his truck on Nov. 6, was given his third blood transfusion at City Hospital yesterday. He has been under an oxygen tent for two days.

Maloney, a coal hauler, 33 years old, was sitting in the cab of his truck, parked in the 3300 block of Pennsylvania avenue, when the vehicle caught fire.

Constipated?
DO AS DOCTORS DO
For Years Thousands of Doctors Have Used or Recommended
PLUTO WATER for Quicker, Surer Relief
When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief? That ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.
Now here's an amazing fact! For years, thousands of doctors have used or recommended Pluto Water For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is an efficient sure medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.
What Doctors Say
For instance, Dr. C. E. B. of Indiana says: "Have prescribed Pluto for years." Then Dr. W. M. of Michigan advises: "Pluto is the only laxative." And Dr. L. R. E. of Ohio says: "By taking Pluto Water mornings, I always stay in good shape."
Your own doctor, too, will tell you how good it is. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.
So, the next time you are constipated, do as doctors do. Follow the gentle "water way" to relief. Take it in this easy efficient dose—1/5 Pluto with 4/5 glass hot water. In one hour or less you'll get relief. And what a remarkable difference it makes!
Remember, too, Pluto Water is simply a saline laxative mineral water fortified and bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. All drug stores have it. Two sizes —25c and 50c. Two hundred million bottles of Pluto have already been used — millions more each year. One of the most economical, most effective laxatives you can buy! Get some today.

When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief? That ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.

Now here's an amazing fact! For years, thousands of doctors have used or recommended Pluto Water For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is an efficient sure medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.

Your own doctor, too, will tell you how good it is. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.

UNITED CHARITIES RAISES 30 PCT. OF GOAL FIRST WEEK

Total of $851,000 Contributed by 18,110—Solicitors Seek Gifts From 160,000 Others.

In the first week of the United Charities campaign for $2,850,000, which formally opened last Monday, contributions totaling $851,000, or 30 per cent of the goal, were received from 18,110 donors.

Nearly 180,000 contributed to last year's campaign, in which $2,282,489 was raised, so that in the 11 days that remain before the campaign is scheduled to end, solicitors will be expected to call on about 160,000 prospective contributors.

The larger subscriptions division, which began its canvass before the formal opening of the campaign, has received 860 contributions totaling $659,300; the group, or employe division, 11,720 contributions totaling 117,176, and the general division, 6530 contributions totaling $74,523.

The totals for each division as given here are revised figures, somewhat smaller than previously announced for the larger subscriptions division and larger than the previous figures for the other two divisions, without changing the total for all, $851,000.

Report Meeting Tomorrow.

Solicitors will meet at Hotel Statler tomorrow noon to report progress made over Sunday. Other report meetings this week will be held Wednesday and Friday.

A statement issued at campaign headquarters in behalf of Sidney Maestre, president of the Community Fund; the Rev. John J. Butler, president of Catholic Charities, and Dean Isidor Loeb, president of the Jewish Federation, said that failure of the campaign to reach its goal would be "little short of disastrous" for the 89 agencies participating.

Campaign Chairman Oliver F. Richards emphasized that the $2,850,000 sought represented the minimum needs of the agencies for 1936, as determined by a careful study of their budgets, first by one of the three federations, and finally by the United Charities Board of Review.

Misunderstanding About Funds.

In letters sent yesterday to employers, Harry B. Wallace, chairman of the campaign organization's Committee of 100, said that a misunderstanding existed among employes of many firms regarding the part Government funds played in meeting the relife need in St. Louis. Wallace asked the help of employers in correcting the misunderstanding.

"The money that is being spent by the Government for relief," Wallace said, "does not perform the services being rendered by our own private charities and never has. Our responsibility for taking care of the sick, the poor, the homeless, the aged and thousands of families in distress in this community has not changed as a result of Government relief.

"The only thing the Government is doing is to help the unemployed who are victims of the depression. We must get this message across to everyone who does not understand it as quickly as possible."

RAIN RETARDS RETAIL TRADE IN ST. LOUIS

Week Ending Wednesday 2 Pct Over 1934 Period; Kansas City Sales "Move Up Briskly."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Commerce Department reported today that retail trade "moved up briskly" in Kansas City during the week ended Wednesday, while daily rains retarded department store sales in St. Louis.

The report said St. Louis department store sales declined 26 per cent from the previous week, but remained 2 per cent above the corresponding 1934 week.

Retail trade in Kansas City was reported "substantially greater" than during the previous week, while wholesale activity reached a seasonal high for several years. The first extended cold spell of the year stimulated buying, and merchants were reported building up their stocks on the basis of a rise in prices.

The conditions which retarded retail trade also affected wholesale activity in St. Louis, the report stated, but retail stocks in rural areas were reported light, with a general disposition to "cover."

Both Missouri's major cities reported considerable advance buying of holiday goods. The St. Louis volume was said to be the heaviest for several years.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE

Laborer Said to Be in Good Spirits Succumbs to Engine Fumes.

Charles Niere, a laborer, was found dead early yesterday morning seated behind the wheel of his automobile in the garage at his home in Ballwin, St. Louis County. He was found by his mother, who told authorities she awoke early and heard the motor of the automobile running and found the garage full of smoke and fumes.

A physician said Niere had been dead only a short time when found. The mother said her son retired in good spirits the night before and told her he had to report to work early yesterday morning. Niere, 45 years old, was unmarried.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY REPORTS $1123 DEFICIT

Details Given on Financial Affairs for Fiscal Year Ending Sept. 31.

Byron Moser, treasurer of the Tuberculosis and Health Society, reported an income of $92,912 for the society for the fiscal year ending Sept. 31, at a meeting of the society corporation Friday. Expenditures were reported at $94,035, leaving a deficit of $1123.

The report showed the sale of Christmas seals last year provided $59,246 of the total income; $24,850 was provided by the Tuberculosis day baseball game, and $8816 was obtained from memberships and contributions. Expenditures were listed as 19 per cent for the maintenance of the Night and Day Camp for Children, 9500 South Broadway; 20 per cent for educational work; 13 per cent for administration, and the rest for medical work, social service and Negro health service.

Members of the Board of Directors and officers of the society for 1936 will be elected Dec. 2. Fourteen committees have been appointed to conduct the annual Christmas Health Seal campaign, of which Col. H. D. McBride is general chairman. No goal has been set for the campaign. The funds will be used to support the society's program of health education work and prevention of tuberculosis.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

EDITH MAXWELL,

SCHOOL teacher, who is to go to trial tomorrow, at Wise, Va., on a charge of killing her father. She is alleged to have hit him with the heel of her slipper when he tried to spank her.

Caddie Jokes Sir Eric Drummond.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador, golfing today, drove into the rough. He flailed away at the ball in vain. His Italian caddie watched silently for a few minutes, then inquired: "Why don't you get the home fleet to help you?"

50 APPLICANTS DIE IN LONG WAIT FOR OLD-AGE PENSIONS

At Present Rate Payments in St. Louis Will Not Begin Until Well Into Next Year, Dr. Kane Says.

Payments of State old age pensions to St. Louis applicants originally expected to start about Dec. 1, may not begin until well into next year because of the slowness with which investigation of applications is proceeding, Dr. R. Emmet Kane, chairman of the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Board, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday.

The lack of a sufficient number of trained investigators has been the principal reason for the slowness of the investigation work, Dr. Kane said. To date, the State Old Age Pension Board has assigned only five investigators to St. Louis, and one of these refused to answer questions of the local board as to his experience and never has been given any work by the board, thus leaving a staff of four men on active duty.

The St. Louis board has received a total of about 4300 applications to date and, of these, only 90 have been checked and investigated by the State-appointed investigators. Fifty of the original applicants died before the investigators made contact with them, Dr. Kane said.

Inexperienced Investigators.

"We must have a larger and better-trained staff if we are to get anywhere with our work," said Dr. Kane. "None of the four men now on duty has had any practical or extensive experience in this kind of work, except a few days' training at Jefferson City. We are not insisting on trained social workers, but the board here is of the opinion that we should get men with some experience in investigations.

"St. Louis, according to statistics, has 22.5 per cent of the total population of Missouri. On this basis, we should have received at least 11 of the 52 investigators appointed by the State board early in October. Instead, we received five. One has never worked for us, and another was appointed only about a week ago. The work must proceed faster, or we will find that many of our applicants are dead before they receive their first pension payments.

"We expect a total of about 15,000 applications in St. Louis. At the present rate at which investigations are being completed, it will be several years before the investigation of the last application can be completed. A larger staff is needed as soon as possible."

Hopes for Aid from WPA.

Dr. Kane, in behalf of the St. Louis board, has written to Joseph Amend, St. Louis Works Progress Administrator, inquiring about the status of a $77,000 WPA appropriation for 150 additional investigators for Missouri. Federal Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins ordered approval of the appropriation last week, and Dr. Kane is hopeful that additional investigators will be obtained for St. Louis.

"No one can receive a pension until his application has been investigated and approved by the local and State boards," said Dr. Kane. "That is why it is so important to hasten the investigation work. When I predicted last September that payments would begin about Dec. 1, I thought I was putting the date far enough in advance so that no one would be disappointed if payments did not begin earlier. Now, I don't see how any payments can be made until we are well into next year."

Dr. Kane said there was no way to determine what the average monthly pension payment would be in St. Louis until investigations of all applicants had been completed. To be eligible for pensions under the state law, applicants must be 70 years of age or more and without adequate financial support. They must have been residents of Missouri for nine years preceding the effective date of the pension law, Aug. 27, last. No assistance will be granted if the applicant has property valued in excess of $1500 if single, or $2000 if married. Inmates of public institutions, except penal institutions, are eligible to receive pensions, if they withdraw from the institutions. The maximum payments are to be $30 a month for single persons and $45 a month for married pairs.

Appropriation Inadequate.

"It looks as though the actual pensions received will be a whole lot less than the maximum amounts," said Dr. Kane, "for the reason that the number of applicants has far exceeded original estimates, and the State has only appropriated $2,500,000 a year for pensions."

Dr. Kane also pointed out that another factor in retarding local pension work was the failure of the state board to provide funds for a local office staff when the pension law went into effect. The local board openedt its office in the Municipal Courts Building with volunteer workers Sept. 3, and subsequently opened branches in six branch public libraries, but closed them all Sept. 28 as a protest against proceeding without a paid staff and without a voice in the choice of investigators. The state board finally agreed to pay clerks $1.25 a day and two supervisors $100 a month in the St. Louis office, which now has 40 clerks in addition to the two supervisors. An average of about 200 applications a day are now being received.

The four investigators appointed for the St. Louis board and their political sponsors are:

Francis McHale, 3969 Potomac street, former City Water Department employe, recommended by State Senator William J. Doran.

Thomas H. Caloia, 4996A Botanical avenue, former salesman, recommended by L. J. Gualdoni, Democratic State Committeeman and Twenty-fourth Ward leader.

Russell J. Kettler, 1716 Waverly place, former city sanitary inspector and a piano teacher, recommended by State Senator Percy Pepoon.

Truman Hunt, 1410 Farrar street, who listed his experience as investigating the credit of customers of a confectionery store operated by his wife. He has also been a filling station employe. Hunt said he had no political sponsor.

One Investigator in County.

The investigators receive $135 a month and make their reports direct to the State board, notifying the local board of the number of investigations completed.

In St. Louis County, where 1839 applications for pensions have been received, the investigation work has just begun, according to Mrs. Fred K. Clark, a member of the County Old Age Assistance Board. The only county investigator is Miss Katherine C. Jones, former teacher, who resigned last week as a member of the county board to accept appointment as an investigator.

DR. H. B. MILLER DIES; FUNERAL SERVICE TOMORROW

Specialist Who Served in World War Succumbs to Pneumonia in Hospital.

Dr. Herman B. Miller, ear, nose and throat specialist, died yesterday afternoon at Jewish Hospital of pneumonia. He was 57 years old and had been ill a week.

Dr. Miller was a native of Canton, Mo., and came to St. Louis in 1901 as a student. He was a graduate of Washington University Medical School and studied medicine in Vienna and other European cities. He served in the World War with the rank of Captain. He was a member of the St. Louis and American Medical Societies, the American College of Surgeons and the American Otolaryngical Society.

His widow, Mrs. Grace Lewis Miller and two sons, Philip and Jefferson, both students at Country Day School, survive. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the residence, 55 Vandeventer place.

Reports He Was Robbed of $800.

Jack Delaney, produce merchant of Gerald, Mo., reported to the State Highway Patrol yesterday that he had been held up Friday night and robbed of more than $800 by three men in an automobile, who forced him to stop on a side road, three miles north of Sullivan, Mo. The money represented collections he had made during the day, he said.

MAN CHARGES EX-WIFE WITH $250,000 FRAUD

Says She Got His Holdings Under Pretext Former Husband Planned to Sue Him.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—John H. Cooper, Palm Beach (Fla.) capitalist, filed suit today in Superior Court to recover $250,000 worth of General Motors stock of which he declared he was defrauded by his former wife, Mrs. Josephine H. Cooper.

Cooper demanded her arrest and imprisonment in event he is awarded judgment against her.

The complaint recited details of an alleged plot on the part of Mrs. Cooper and her former husband, Leon Osborne Blatchford, to obtain Cooper's holdings.

Cooper alleged that in 1931, while the Blatchfords were his house guests, the then Mrs. Blatchford appeared one morning with bruises, complaining her husband had beat her. Cooper said he now thinks her skin was painted so as to appear bruised, in an effort to win his sympathy.

In 1932, Mrs. Blatchford obtained a divorce and married Cooper three days later. She then told him, Cooper said, that Blatchford was about to sue him for alienation of affections, and induced him to place his property in her name.

Cooper later was granted an annulment in Florida courts, his wife being denied a divorce. He alleged she was a wife in name only. He asserted Mrs. Cooper at present was living in Los Angeles and associating with Blatchford.

Doctor of Cheer Ends His Life.

Fatally Hurt in Football Game.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 16. — James Banko, 16 years old, died today from a skull fracture suffered in a football game yesterday. A halfback on the Froebel Junior High School team, Banko missed a tackle and his head struck the ground, in a game against Lew Wallace High School of Gary.

INDEPENDENT SUES MAJOR OIL FIRMS IN CALIFORNIA

Wilshire Co. Charges Attempt to Create Monopoly, Seeks 7,500,000 Damages.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—The Wilshire Oil Co. sued practically every major oil company operating in California today for damages totaling $7,500,000.

The suit charged that the companies attempted to create a monopoly in restraint of trade by forming the Pacific Coast Petroleum Agency, thereby damaging the Wilshire company's business.

The 32-page complaint charged that the agency members entered an agreement last November that none would sell gasoline to service stations retailing Economy gasoline, a Wilshire product. The Wilshire company said it had lost 850 of its string of 2500 service stations within less than a month.

Defendants included Associated, Shell, Texas, Union, General, Rio Grande, Gilmore, Seaside, Guardian, Signal, Rocket, Mohawk and Richfield.

'PLOT TO POISON' CITY WATER

"Key Man" Arrested in Alleged Havana Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Nov. 16. — Asserting they had unearthed a plot to poison the water supply of Havana, army intelligence agents today arrested Andres Rey, who, they said, was the "key man" in the alleged scheme.

The poison plan, army agents said, was part of an anti-Government campaign to prevent national elections Dec. 15. The agents reported that papers found on Rey showed the plan was modified because participants refused to imperil the lives of their own families.

$5000 Verdict for Husband's Death.

A verdict for $5000 was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court in favor of Mrs. Augustine Cleveland, 117 North Ewing avenue, against the Laclede Christy Clay Products Co. Mrs. Cleveland sued for $10,000 on account of the death of her husband, David Cleveland, a Negro, who died last February as a result, she alleges, of silicosis poisoning contracted while employed by the Laclede Christy Co. The company denied the allegations, and asserted the claim should be prosecuted under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

CURTIS MANUFACTURING CO. STOCK TAKEN OFF EXCHANGES

No Longer Listed in St. Louis and Chicago by Order of Securities Commission.

The stock of the Curtis Manufacturing Co., 1905 Kienlen avenue was withdrawn from listing on the St. Louis and Chicago stock exchanges yesterday in compliance with an order of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

In filing its registration papers with the commission the company requested that certain information contained in them be held confidential, or that, as an alternative, it be permitted to withdraw its stock from listing. The commission was unwilling to hold the information confidential while trading in the stock continued on exchanges.

The company, which makes pneumatic machinery, has outstanding 197,230 shares of $5 par value common stock. Trading in the stock has not been active.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW CLOSES; WEEK'S ATTENDANCE 75,618

Twenty-ninth Annual St. Louis Display Held Two Months Earlier Than Usual.

The twenty-ninth annual St. Louis Automobile Show closed last night at the Arena with a final day's attendance of 10,283 making a total attendance for the week of 75,618.

The show was held two months earlier than usual in line with the decision of manufacturers to stabilize production and employment.

None of the cars on display was removed when the show closed at 11 o'clock but this morning the exhibits will be taken away. Gasoline tanks will be filled and cars will go from the Arena under their own power. All gasoline tanks were drained for the show, to reduce the fire hazard.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK TO BE MARKED IN CITY

Special Activities Arranged at Public Library and Its Branches.

Children's Book Week will be observed with special activities at the Public Library and its branches this week. There will be exhibits of books for children at most of the branches, and several plays and exhibitions will be presented by members of summer reading clubs.

Forty children who became members of the Crunden Branch club by reading 25 books during the summer will have parts in a pageant, "The Gateway to Bookland," at 4 p. m. Thursday in the library Auditorium, 1502 North Fourteenth street. A "reading regiment," will be formed at Carpenter Branch, with rank dependent on the number of required books read.

There will be a story hour at Barr Branch at 4 p. m. Friday, and a book party at Cabanne Branch Saturday morning.

Crash Delays Funeral; Two Hurt.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—Two women were hurt and a funeral was delayed for half an hour today when an automobile collided with a hearse bearing the body of Charlton E. Beatty. Mrs. Mary Colville was injured when she swerved into the hearse to avoid hitting another car that stopped suddenly. Mrs. Mary Pierson, a member of the funeral party, was hurt when other machines in the procession crashed into the wrecked hearse.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK TO BE MARKED IN CITY

Special Activities Arranged at Public Library and Its Branches.

Children's Book Week will be observed with special activities at the Public Library and its branches this week. There will be exhibits of books for children at most of the branches, and several plays and exhibitions will be presented by members of summer reading clubs.

Forty children who became members of the Crunden Branch club by reading 25 books during the summer will have parts in a pageant, "The Gateway to Bookland," at 4 p. m. Thursday in the library Auditorium, 1502 North Fourteenth street. A "reading regiment," will be formed at Carpenter Branch, with rank dependent on the number of required books read.

There will be a story hour at Barr Branch at 4 p. m. Friday, and a book party at Cabanne Branch Saturday morning.

Crash Delays Funeral; Two Hurt.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—Two women were hurt and a funeral was delayed for half an hour today when an automobile collided with a hearse bearing the body of Charlton E. Beatty. Mrs. Mary Colville was injured when she swerved into the hearse to avoid hitting another car that stopped suddenly. Mrs. Mary Pierson, a member of the funeral party, was hurt when other machines in the procession crashed into the wrecked hearse.

DACHSHUNDS COMPETE FOR CUPS AND RIBBONS

Puppy Match Exclusively for This Breed Is Held in Webster Groves.

Dachshunds, the underslung dogs whose elongated bodies are the joy of cartoonists, competed for silver cups and ribbons yesterday at the first match given exclusively for the breed at the home of Miss Roberta Woodson, 436 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves.

Thirty-nine puppies, owned by 16 exhibitors, of all ages and both sexes, paraded before about 80 spectators on the screened porch of Miss Woodson's home. They were judged by Earl G. Broeg, 300 Valley drive.

Principal winners were Heinrich, a 10-month-old male, owned by Mrs. Walter Bode, 14 Glen Oak place, Webster Groves, and Susie von Achtal, a 10-month-old female owned by Mrs. G. R. Kiewitt, 503 Goethe avenue, Kirkwood.

HOW DAM AT ALTON IS BEING CONSTRUCTED

Some of Intermediate Processes Are Engineering Feats in Themselves.

Construction work on the $10,000,000 Alton dam, vital link in the Government's improvement program for the Mississippi River, includes intermediate processes which are major enterprises in themselves.

Success of the work hinges on the efficiency of coffer dams, protective barriers about the river construction area. The space within these temporary dams must literally be pumped dry, entailing displacement of millions of gallons of water. At the same time the coffer dam must be so stout and so set in the river bottom that water may neither break through nor scour under.

Coffer dams used at Alton are made of steel, similar in principle to a 90-foot dam used in raising the battleship Maine. The dams are imbedded about 25 feet and rise 30 feet from the river bed.

Dust on River Bed.

In constructing the huge main lock, on the Illinois side of the river a concrete structure 600 feet long and 110 feet wide, it was necessary to construct a coffer dam embracing 13 acres. Then the water in that area was pumped out, the river bed actually becoming dusty.

The pumping process, involving the displacement of about 63,000,000 gallons of water, involved not only the use of powerful pumps but a system of 1100 "well points," consisting of perforated pipes operating by suction.

A smaller coffer dam, embracing about six and a half acres, is now protecting the work on the Missouri side of the river where the piers of the dam proper are being pushed out into the river. Construction of a coffer dam 360 feet long preparatory to beginning work on the auxiliary lock on the Illinois side, is under way. The temporary dam will displace about 25,000,000 gallons of water and men will work in a pumped-out area of about five acres.

Construction of the dam proper which will proceed throughout the winter involves the progressive completion of each unit, making necessary not only the erection of the huge piers but the placing of the largest Tainter gates in the country, set between the piers. It is anticipated that several will be in operation by spring.

How Huge Gates Operate.

These gates, named after their inventor, Jeremiah Tainter, and used to control the current and water level, are shaped like the segment of a cylinder. Each gate, about 40 by 30 feet, represents in its moving parts a weight of 207,000 pounds.

Yet they are so delicately adjusted that they could be operated by a child, a push button on each pier bringing into play their electrical mechanism. A central control station will be erected on the river wall of the main lock.

Equipped with automatic stops, the gates are fool-proof. They may be wholly or partially raised and lowered, and provision is made so that they may be raised above the high water mark. They are designed to move a foot a minute.

The tainter gates, a series of 30 of them, flanking three huge roller gates in the middle of the dam, must be capable of independent regulation so that no scouring velocity takes place below the dam, endangering the two bridges which cross the river at Alton. By individual manipulation of the gates the velocity of the current may be distributed over the river bed.

As the piers are completed the gates will be put in, the first one in a short time. A steel bridge, enough for an electric construction train, will be erected across the top of the dam, connecting the piers.

Roller Gate Construction.

The roller gates in the middle, each 80 feet long and 25 feet high, represent an invention 34 years ago by Dr. Max Carstanjen, director of the Maschinenfabrik - Augsburg-Nurnburg Co. The roller gate resembles a huge steel cylinder, with a network of structural steel bracing in the interior. Each end is equipped with a steel gear meshing with teeth on a rack in the pier.

A big hoisting chain is attached to each roller with one end connecting with hoisting machinery in the top of the pier.

The roller gate, weighing more than 100 tons, may be raised or lowered to any desired elevation either to let the water pass in order to regulate the pool above the dam or to permit the passage of ice or driftwood.

EXHIBIT OF LALIQUE GLASS AT VANDERVOORT'S STORE

To Open Tuesday for Two Weeks; 85 Examples of Artists' Work to Be Shown.

A collection of creations in glass by the famous French artist Rene Lalique will be on exhibit for two weeks at Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney beginning Tuesday, Nov. 19. The exhibit, which was brought to America on the maiden voyage of the Normandie, consists of about 85 examples. The decorative objects includes vases, bowls and plaques, and the ecclesiastical pieces a sculptured crucifix in glass. Among the architectural pieces are panels, rosewood mantels and tables with sculptured and especially designed insets.

Rene Lalique, who was born at Ay in the province of Champagne, first drew attention by his distinctive jewelry design.. He is best known for his decorative glass objects, examples of which are found in museums on the continent and in America. Lalique is the only living artist who was honored by the French Government with an exhibit in the Louvre in Paris.

Patrons and patronesses for the preview on Monday are: Mrs. Robert McK. Jones, Mrs. A. L. Shapleigh, Mrs. W. D. Nims, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mrs. Elias Michael, Mrs. Walter Fischel, Edward Mallinckrodt, Guy Oliver, Everett Pattison, Harvey Mudd, Mrs. George Neidringhaus, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. J. M. ENTIRE REBUILDING OF MARINE HOSPITAL

$575,000 Now Is Available—Total of $1,080,000 to Be Sought.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — The United States Marine Hospital at St. Louis is to be entirely rebuilt at a cost of about $1,080,000, Representative John J. Cochran has been assured by the procurement division of the treasury and the United States Bureau of Public Health, he said today.

There is already available $575,000 to rehabilitate the present hospital. In drawing plans for remodeling the present structure treasury officials and the Public Health Service concluded, Cochran said, that it would be more economical in the long run to build an entirely new building.

Congress will be asked in January to increase the amount available for the St. Louis hospital to $1,080,000, Cochran said, and legislation will also be introduced making it possible for the Government to construct the new hospital on another site if it is so desired. Cochran has tried for many years to get the Government to replace the present structure with a modern fireproof hospital.

The present hospital was built more than 75 years ago. It occupies a 20-acre site on Marine avenue in South St. Louis, within two blocks of the riverfront in what is now a wholly industrial area. The Federal Building Commission has the power to exchange this site for one regarded as more desirable by the Public Health Service, but legislation is necessary for the expenditure of money on a new site, according to Cochran. When Congress has authorized the change, procedure will begin for an exchange of sites, Cochran said.

There are only two Public Health hospitals in the country at the present time that are not of fireproof construction, the one at St. Louis and one in Memphis, Tenn. Cochran said he had been informed that both would be replaced. Both were built during the heaght of the river traffic.

The Treasury Department is now going ahead with plans for the building. The Building Commission is very anxious, Cochran said, that additional funds for the new structure be included in the first deficiency appropriation bill and if not the authorization will be submitted in the regular treasury appropriation bill.

OFFICERS DESTROY ACRES OF MARIJUANA

Federal Agents Work With State Authorities to Stamp Out Narcotic Weed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Progress in the fight against marijuana was reported today by Narcotics Commissioner H. J. Anslinger.

Anslinger said many acres of the cannabis saiva seed, or Indian hemp, had been destroyed recently in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, California and Georgia. Although some states have laws designed to suppress the growth and cultivation of the weed, there is no Federal law controlling it. Federal agents co-operate with state and local authorities, however, in detecting marijuana cultivation, and the manufacture and safe of cigarettes containing marijuana.

"Crimes of violence are often committed by those addicted to this narcotic," Anslinger said.

Reports of investigations and arrests in cannabis cases have come to the narcotics bureau in the last few days from Rochester, N. Y., Sacramento, Cal., Fremont, O., and Columbus, Ga.

In the Ohio case, awaiting prosecution, the seizure report showed evidence of great care in concealing the growth of the weed, and also widespread distribution.

Shipments from one farm, on which the growing field of cannabis was surrounded by fields of corn, were consigned to points in New York, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois, as "peppers."

The hemp plant, when grown for its fiber potentialities, is cut early, before the pistillate plant is fully developed. Consequently, when the plant is found in a cultivated state after this period and when the tops are in flower, it usually develops that the grower intends to capitalize on the narcotic qualities.

The Sixth Infantry, stationed at Jefferson Barracks, marched in review yesterday afternoon before members of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce and others who went to the barracks for this feature of the Chamber's "Know St. Louis" campaign.

After the review the visitors were taken on an inspection tour of points of interest at the barracks. Col. Walter C. Short, commandant, spoke on the history of the Sixth Infantry, which was organized in 1813.

DR. G. T. COXHEAD'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

Retired Y. M. C. A. Official Long in Service Here, Died in Raleigh, N. C.

Funeral services for Dr. George T. Coxhead, retired member of the International Council of the Y. M. C. A. at New York and formerly an officer in the St. Louis and Missouri organization, who died Friday at Raleigh, N. C., from infirmities and diabetes, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at West Presbyterian Church, 5872 Maple avenue. Burial will take place in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Dr. Coxhead, 77 years old, had been in failing health for several months and his illness was aggravated by slight injuries suffered recently in a minor accident to an automobile, in which he was traveling with his wife from their home, at Franklin, N. Y.

Born in England, Dr. Coxhead was brought to the United States by his parents in 1872. He entered Y. M. C. A. work at Topeka, Kan., and in 1882 organized and became the first secretary of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. at Kansas City. In 1884 he was appointed secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Missouri and a few years later was made general secretary of the St. Louis organization, a post he held until 1912 when he moved to New York to join the International Council where he remained until his retirement in 1922.

During his Missouri career he was trustee of Westminster College at Fulton and received the honorary degree of doctor of laws from that institution in 1912. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Minnie Coxhead, two daughters, Mrs. Maurice E. Breed, 1443 McCausland avenue, and Mrs. H. B. Rich of Franklin, N. Y., a son, William G. Coxhead, general secretary of the St. Petersburg (Fla.), Y. M. C. A., and a sister.

"Quick Warm Up" Gasoline Developed By Standard Oil Co.

Engineers Assert That It Gives Faster Engine Starting in Cold Weather.

Since motorists no longer put their cars away for the winter, one of their problems has been to get gasoline to start a cold engine and then to keep the engine running until it has become really warmed up.

Standard Oil engineers declare that a new gasoline shows marked progress in both respects. It will start a properly operated engine which is in reasonably good condition at any temperature down to 30 below zero far more quickly than previously, they assert. Further, they say, it reduces the period in which an engine may be expected to cough, puff and buck before it takes hold definitely. At mean minimum temperature of 20 degrees above zero this new winter gasoline has the same warming up characteristics that a good grade of seasonal gasoline has at mean minimum summer temperatures. The improvement in warming up time is, of course, of advantage to motorists when temperatures go below 20 degrees.

"This improvement in winter performance is achieved by a strengthening of the front-end volatility of gasoline," explains Dr. D. P. Barnard, a car fuel authority. "When we build a grate fire, we put paper in first, then kindling to catch from the paper and warm up the wood or coal, and then heavy fuel. By achieving a better front-end volatility, our manufacturers have given us the paper to flash at once into fire and the kindling to keep the fire going until everything is warmed up and the heavy ends of the motor fuel are being efficiently used.

"Sure-fire starting and quick warmup mean much, both in economy of time and fuel and in safe driving. A car is not really properly controllable until the warmup period is over. There are also times when good throttle control and acceleration are as important as good brakes.

"We are making good progress in this respect. In 1926, an average car, traveling 25 miles per hour in a temperature of 20 degrees above zero, would have to cover 17.2 blocks, or about two miles, before the engine would be humming properly. This year we will be down to less than four blocks. This is a very important development in motor fuel engineering."

Standard engineers assert that the achievement with regard to starting and warmup has not detracted from smooth acceleration, economy, anti-knock qualities and other desirable characteristics, all of which, they say, have their proper place in this new balanced motor fuel.

Graham Economy Tests Conducted All Over Country

Results of economy demonstrations by Graham distributers and dealers throughout the country are reported by the Archer-Mann Motor Co., distributer, as follows:

In a run between Los Angeles, Cal., and Phoenix, Ariz., a distance of 805 miles, fuel consumption of 31.67 miles per gallon was recorded for a Graham car.

In a recent run of 1135 miles across the lower half of Michigan, a Graham six sedan made an average mileage of 25.86 miles per gallon and as high as 28.2 miles per gallon between points on the tour. This run was supervised by the Automotive Daily News, a leading trade newspaper of the industry.

In an Oklahoma City economy test, a Graham car was driven entirely in city traffic with high school boys as drivers. Mileages as high as 25.9 miles per gallon were recorded.

In Tacoma, Wash., economy tests were conducted at different road speeds, 22 miles per gallon of gasoline being recorded at speeds of 45 miles per hour.

In San Francisco, Cal., gasoline mileages as high as 30 miles per gallon were recorded.

The engineering department of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation is planning similar tests for the new Graham supercharger, Cavalier, and the lowest priced Graham car, the Crusader.

New Studebaker Six Per Cent Time Payment Plan

A new "low" in financing charges for the purchase of new Studebaker automobiles is announced by Louis K. Manley, sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation.

"Under this new plan, the purchaser is required to pay a basic rate of only 6 per cent on a 12 months' transaction, and only ½ per cent per month for periods more or less than 12 months," Manley said.

"A concrete example of what this means follows: Say you are purchasing a new automobile for $800. You pay, either in cash or as a trade-in allowance on your used car, a down payment of $250, leaving an unpaid balance of $550. To this must be added an amount equivalent to the premium for the proper insurance coverage which, let us say in this instance, is $50. This makes a total of $600. Multiply this by the new low 6 per cent rate and you find that the resulting carrying charges for one year are only $36."

'Pontiac Safety Men' Organized to Work For Careful Driving

Company's Field Wholesale Men Enlisted—Dealers and Salesmen Sought as Members.

The current drive for greater highway safety has caused the formation of the "Pontiac Safety Men," whose membership includes the entire field wholesale organization of the Pontiac Motor Co.

From this nucleus it is hoped to enlist as active proponents of safe driving every Pontiac dealer and salesman in the United States.

The "Pontiac Safety Men" were organized at a recent convention at the factory, H. J. Klingler, president and general manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., was named honorary president.

"The primary purpose in bringing the club into existence," said Klingler, "was to form an organization through which could be dramatized several essential points in highway safety recognized by everyone close to the automobile industry. Those points are that today's cars are safe cars, and that they will figure in few accidents if safely handled. Our men are capable drivers, our cars are capable cars, and the organization was created to find out what could be accomplished throughout the country by paying particular attention to safety.

To Stress Human Factor.

"It is generally agreed that nine out of every 10 automobile accidents are avoidable. And certainly every automobile manufacturer, and everyone connected with his organization, has a moral obligation to keep out of the nine avoidable accidents even though they may not be his fault.

"To determine liability in any accident in which a Safety Man may figure, an impartial board of three will hear evidence on any case in which insurance is involved. Two of these board members are not connected with our company, so that impartial judgments may be rendered.

"Cars are too well built today—too mechanically perfect—to offer faulty brakes or any other car failure as an alibi for a smashed fender or a worse accident. The human factor in car control has to be brought up nearer to the mechanical quality of the car itself. Brakes will prevent many an accident, if they are kept in operating order and a foot is applied at the proper time."

Causes of Road Accidents.

Organizers of the "Pontiac Safety Men" ranked the causes of highway accidents in the following order: misapplied speed, passing on hills, failure to signal, recklessness, poor judgment, neglect of mechanism, ignorance of laws, and stubbornness.

To keep the theme of safety constantly before the membership, instrument panel safety shields—silver for one year of no-accident driving and gold for two years—are available for members, who are also constantly reminded of the safety theme by periodic messages from the central office and supplied with windshield stickers for use where state laws do not interfere.

A plaque will be awarded to the one of the company's 25 zones which shows the best safety record for the previous month. The plaque will be in the custody of the winning zone for only one month, or such longer time as the zone retains its place at the head of the list in safety performance.

Cadillac and LaSalle Designed to Minimize Fatiguing of Drivers

In designing safety into the Cadillac and La Salle cars for 1936, engineers have given careful attention to the prevention for driver fatigue, recognized as a potential source of hazard, especially to those who drive long distances.

"A great deal of research has been devoted at Cadillac toward guarding driver alertness and speed of reaction against the inroads of fatigue," says Guy W. Oliver, president of the Oliver Cadillac Co. "Alert drivers, naturally, are better, more capable and therefore safer drivers.

Experiments have shown what fatigue does to a driver. It slows down his reactions to a point where he fails to utilize the safety factors provided for him in the mechanism of his car. The tests were made by attaching to the car a brace of pistols loaded only with red lead, both weapons being pointed downward toward the pavement. One was operated by a passenger, the other by foot pressure on the brake pedal. Suddenly, with the car moving at average touring speed, the passenger fired his pistol, the explosion making a spot of red lead on the pavement. The driver, as soon as he was able to react, applied the brake. This exploded the other pistol which registered a second mark on the pavement. The distance between the two marks, of course, indicated the rapidity of the driver's reaction.

"A good driver, such as a skilled taxi operator in fresh physical condition often reacted in a quarter of a second. When tired, the same driver required a half to three-quarters of a second. Many drivers required a full second or more in which to react. When fatigued, their reactions were even slower."

Auburn Building Limousine Buses For Airport Service

Production has been started by Auburn of a line of new 12-place, limousine-type buses designed primarily for airline use.

This limousine-type bus is of ultra-modern design with roomy body and luxurious interior. The body is conservatively streamlined, and access is through sedan-type side doors.

The wide seats enable carrying of 11 passengers and driver without crowding, and there is ample leg and head room. Finest of broadcloths, smartly tailored, are used in upholstery, and the interior trim such as garnish mouldings, instrument panel, etc., is a walnut finish.

Particular attention has been given to the comfort of passengers, both in riding and seating.

MacDonald, Clarke In Charge of Sales For Hupmobile Factory

Two of Detroit's veteran automobile men have been promoted as a result of the death of W. B. Hurlburt of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, the day before the New York Auto Show.

W. A. MacDonald is now director of sales. He has been serving as a special factory representative.

George E. Clark is the new sales manager. He has been the assistant director of sales.

In His 125-M.-P.-H. Midget Racer

"Jimmie" Snyder, well known to St. Louis racing fans as the driver of the "Mighty Midget," and now captain of the Auburn racing team. Snyder, who began racing in 1931, has come rapidly to the front, and is now considered one of the fastest drivers, not only in midgets but also speedway cars. On the Indianapolis Speedway on Decoration day of this year he was in front with the best in the country until forced out at 240 miles by motor trouble. Snyder now makes his home in St. Louis. A new "Mighty Midget" built for Snyder at the Auburn factory, and called the "Auburn Special," was tested recently at a speed of 127 miles per hour, which, according to records, makes it one of the fastest midget cars in the country. Snyder was at the Auburn and Cord cars exhibit of the Auburn Distributing Co. at the Auto Show the past week.

Buick Co. Salesman And Dealers' Contest Based on Car Points

Fifty-eight Buick retail salesmen and dealers from the St. Louis metropolitan area reviewed the old time "spell-down" in refreshing their memories on the mechanical features and selling points of the new 1936 Buick prior to the opening of the St. Louis Automobile Show.

The men were divided into two teams. Instead of using words for the "spell-down," they were asked 100 various questions about the product. If a question was answered incorrectly, the salesman was required to take his seat. It required over an hour, using the most difficult questions, to spell down to the last two men. The contest was won by C. A. Rippstein, retail salesman for Willcockson Motors, and Thomas F. Casey, retail salesman for the West Side Buick Co.

This was one of the features of a meeting conducted by C. L. Alexander, Buick zone manager.

Buick dealers use 3400 square feet for their exhibit at the St. Louis Auto Show, and 14 different models from all series were on display showing complete color line.

Charles McKnolly, city sales manager, assisted in the examination of the salesmen.

O. V. Klemm, assistant zone manager, discussed Buick values.

General Motors Acceptance Corporation was represented by A. P. Hahn, regional manager, and Charles Richards, St. Louis branch manager, and H. S. King, regional sales promotion manager. These men presented a Movietone, and discussed the new G. M. A. C. 6 per cent payment plan.

Fisher Body was represented by C. S. Morgansen. John Dawson of the zone office, discussed car distribution, and said that the demand for the new 1936 Buicks had exceeded all expectations.

Dave Castles, president of the West Side Buick Co., spoke for the Automobile Show Committee and the local dealers.

General Motors Booklet on Sane Driving in Demand

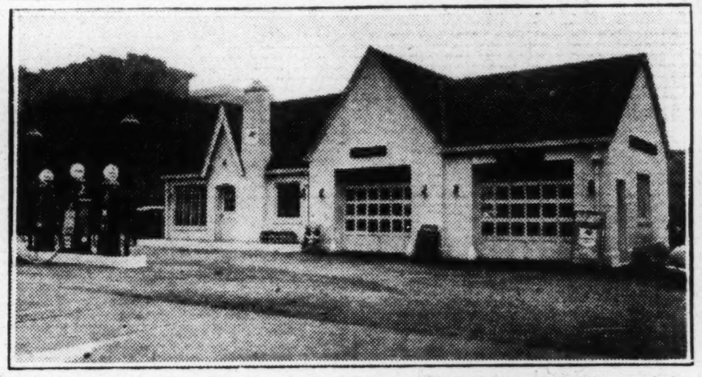
"We Drivers," a General Motors booklet dedicated to safe and sane driving, has gone into its third edition as a result of requests for more than 1,000,000 copies since it first came off the press in the last week of May.

The first edition of 150,000 copies met with such approval, that a second printing of one million copies was ordered in July. The third printing, which began late in September, was started with an order for 500,000 copies, with the possibility that the number may be increased to a million.

Requests have been received from all quarters, ranging from the individual asking for one copy to a State government desiring 200,000 copies for distribution to all registered motorists.

Praise has been accorded the booklet by safety councils, chambers of commerce, motor vehicle bureaus, police departments, fleet owners, automobile clubs, directors of safety contests, traffic officers, judges, insurance companies, street traffic research bureaus and hundreds of other individuals and organizations interested in highway safety. In numerous instances the booklet is being used in traffic safety classes.

On Site of Old Southern Hotel



"Old Southern Terminal" operated by Ben Baseler as a Mobilgas and Mobiloil service station on Broadway, on the site of the old Southern Hotel. The location is on the site of the old Fort San Carlos, erection of which was started in 1780, and completed in 1794. The fort was part of the fortification of the town of St. Louis. Walnut street at that time was called "Rue de la Tour" or "Street of the Tower." On or near this site was buried the famous Indian chief, Pontiac, who was killed in April, 1769.

Later, this corner was the site of the historic Southern Hotel, which was opened Dec. 6, 1865, destroyed by fire in 1877, and immediately rebuilt. The historic background of this corner is so interesting that many customers of the station have asked for pieces of brick or stone from the old Southern Hotel.

The Southern Hotel was razed about two years ago, and today the entire block is being used as a terminal for parking automobiles. On the southeast corner a modern super-service station has been erected, and called the "Old Southern" Terminal. In addition to being serviced with Mobilgas and Mobiloil, a customer can sit in a modern rest room and watch through plate glass windows the Mobilubrication of his car by expert lubrication men, as well as watch his car being washed or serviced with tires, batteries, accessories or specialties.

$686,000 Order For General Motors Trucks From U. S.

Orders for $686,000 worth of trucks have been received from the United States Government by the General Motors Truck Co., according to J. P. Little, vice-president directing sales.

A majority of these trucks are to be used by the Department of Agriculture in soil conservation work at various CCC camps throughout the country. They are to have a wheelbase of 169 inches and be equipped with 12-foot stake bodies.

The other units are heavy duty combination cargo and dump trucks for the army.

Reo Co. Announces Six Per Cent Auto Installment Plan

D. E. Bates, president and general manager of the Reo Motor Car Co. announces the Reo cars can be purchased on a new 6 per cent time payment plan.

The new Reo 6 per cent plan means a new low delivered price to the time buyer.

"All one has to do is add to the unpaid cash balance an amount equal to the insurance premium," Bates said. "For a 12-month term, multiply the total by 6 per cent. For longer or shorter terms, figure on the basis of ½ of 1 per cent per month."

G. M. A. C. Six Per Cent Time Payment Plan Emphasises Simplicity

Designed to Make It Easier and Less Expensive for the Car Buyer.

The immediate results of the reduction in cost and the simplification of the procedure of financing the 1936 line of General Motors cars, announced recently by the General Motors Acceptance Corporation with the GMAC 6 per cent plan, it is reported, are unusual interest of the public, and throughout the automobile industry.

J. J. Schumann Jr., president of General Motors Acceptance Corporation, said that "the plan would have been a great step forward by virtue of its simplicity alone, even if we had not been able to make a substantial reduction in the cost.

The new 6 per cent plan is designed to make it easy for the purchaser and the dealer to get together in complete confidence, a most essential factor in sound credit sales. Reactions already received from the public and General Motors dealers have confirmed our belief that the public has a real interest in a simplified financing plan, which brings mutual confidence into deferred payment transactions.

"The simplicity of the plan makes it possible for the purchaser, without exposing himself to sales solicitation, to consider carefully before he buys just how he will budget his income to accommodate the purchase. This is one of the fundamental factors in sound credit transactions.

One advantage of the new plan is that, by use of a simple multiplier, the purchaser can figure for himself."

Chevrolet Retail Sales 32,657 in First 10 Days This Month

Productioin of 69,128 Units in November Reported—New Zone Offices Established.

Countrywide retail sales in the first ten days of November totaled 32,657 units, nearly double the previous record for any corresponding period, the Chevrolet Motor Co. announces. The new record reflects the results of the early introduction of new models and the change of dates of the automobile show season, says the announcement.

"It is apparent that the early presentation of new models, and the holding of the automobile shows in November, has had an important effect on seasonal sales," said W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager. "The first ten days sales of November exceed the total 30-day November sales of all but four years in the history of the company, and are more than double our sales for the first ten days following any January introduction of new models. We anticipate, therefore, that the new plan of presenting cars in November will maintain a higher level of sales during the winter and a correspondingly higher level of employment."

Production of Chevrolet cars and trucks in October totaled 69,128 units, an increase of nearly 23 per cent over October, 1934, officials of the Chevrolet Motor Co. report. This total is more than 9000 units above the anticipated output for the month, and is the highest month's production of any new Chevrolet model in several years.

As a result of the quick start on its 1936 production, Chevrolet had 60,000 cars in the hands of its dealers throughout the country when the new line was announced Nov. 2. This assured every dealer not only of cars for display purposes, but of additional units for immediate delivery.

The 25 Chevrolet manufacturing and assembly plants, strategically located in all parts of the United States, will be operating at capacity for weeks, and probably well into 1936, according to factory advices.

Charles F. Barth of Flint, Mich., who retired four years ago after 14 years of service with the Chevrolet Motor Co., during which he rose to the rank of vice-president in charge of manufacturing, was the first person to take delivery of a new 1936 Chevrolet. As an expression of esteem for Barth, Chevrolet made the delivery 24 hours before the first public presentation of the new models.

The Chevrolet Motor Co. has expanded its field retail organization by the creation of four new zone offices, W. E. Holler, vice-president and general salesmanager, announces.

The new offices are in Seattle, Wash.; Richmond, Va.; Charleston, W. Va., and Columbia, S. C. Their establishing brings the number of Chevrolet zones in the United States up to 47.

Ray D. Wilson has been named manager of the Seattle zone, H. L. Beecroft, manager and at Richmond, L. F. Vollmer at Charleston, and C. B. Asbury at Columbia.

German Drivers Turn Tables on Italians In European Races

According to O. C. Rohde, chief engineer of the Champion Spark Plug Co., the 1935 European racing program has been an unusually successful one in which many outstanding performances have been set up. The Germans and the Italians, Rohde says, have been waging an international racing duel full of color.

"For three or four years," Rohde says, "an Italian team driving Alfa-Romeo cars, which are equipped with Champion spark plugs, had everything their own way, much as the Miller and Duesenberg cars did at Indianapolis. Virtually all the Grand Prix races, those in Germany, France, Italy, Monte Carlo, Nice and the like, were walkaways for the Alfa's.

"In the latter part of 1934, however, Germany put a Mercedes-Benz and an Auto-Union team in the field. These cars were exceedingly fast and built both for race track and road race competition. They set up averages as high as 134 miles per hour for 800 miles, and immediately started to eclipse Alfa-Romeo's prestige by not only winning many European Grand Prix but also by signing some of the best Italian drivers to handle Mercedes and Auto-Unions.

"But lately the situation has been reversed. Led by the intrepid driver Nuvolari, who was nearly killed in an accident last year, the Italian team has been piling up victory after victory and making the faster Mercedes and Auto-Union racers like it. Since July 1 they have won 10 of the 13 most important European races, including the German Grand Prix, winning in most cases first and second places. In the Grand Prix of Nice, they captured the first four places.

"Not to be outdone by the German cars, the Alfa-Romeo Co. soon will introduce a new 12-cylinder Champion-equipped racer which is expected to sweep all competition off the tracks."

NOTED DRIVER TALKS ON SAFETY

BARNEY OLDFIELD.

Veteran racing driver, now on the road for Chrysler to push the campaign for safe driving, who spoke at a meeting of Chrysler and Plymouth dealers here Thursday.

Need of Good Brakes, Driving Care, Noted By Barney Oldfield

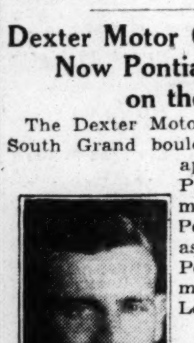
Barney Oldfield, whose name has been synonymous with speed for more than a quarter of a century, says that the motoring public will make safety its No. 1 requirement in considering the merits of the new 1936 motor cars. Oldfield has been touring the country in the interest of highway safety education for several months.

"The millions of people who drive automobiles every day are becoming more and more conscious of the importance of safety, both in their own driving and in the construction of their automobiles," Oldfield said.

"You don't have to be a wizard at arithmetic to figure the importance of brakes at highway speeds. At 50 miles an hour your car is traveling 74 feet a second. The average driver requires three-quarters of a second to react in an emergency, and in that time you have traveled 55 feet.

"The best self-equalizing hydraulic brakes, employing hydraulic action for both brake shoes of each wheel, require 100 feet in which to brake a car traveling at 50 miles an hour. So it takes 155 feet to stop under perfect conditions. Figure it out yourself and then decide whether you will take chances on anything but the peak of engineering perfection in brakes, steel bodies, headlights and other features which contribute to saftey."

Dexter Motor Co. Now Pontiac Dealer on the South Side



C. E. DEXTER

The Dexter Motor Co., Inc., 6336 South Grand boulevard, has been appointed by W. P. Winslow, zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Co., as an authorized Pontiac dealer in metropolitan St. Louis.

C. E. Dexter, president of the firm, has been in the automobile business here for eight years.

The firm occupies a modern building, with complete service and display facilities for South Side motorists.

It has on display the full line of new 1936 "Silver Streak" Pontiac models.

Roy Kimberlin's New Firm Becomes Pontiac Dealer Here

Roy Kimberlin.

W. P. Winslow, St. Louis zone manager for the Pontiac Motor Co., announces the appointment of the Kimberlin Pontiac Co., 7300 Natural Bridge, Normandy, as an authorized Pontiac dealer for the metropolitan area.

Roy Kimberlin, who heads the new firm, has been in the automobile business in this city for the past 15 years. The service department operated in connection with the new dealership is one of the most modern and well-equipped in the St. Louis area. The new 1936 Pontiacs are now being displayed.

Better Riding and Steering.

Windows in most cases are of safety glass as standard equipment. Visibility is better, windshields rake back for better appearance and, to some extent, better vision for the driver.

Ventilating systems also have been improved. Cowl ventilators are screened against insects.

Packard Eight Driven 15,432 Miles in Run Made in 177 Hours

Averages 88.85 M. P. H. in Test Beginning and Ending at Same Time as N. Y. Show.

Driven with throttle wide open, and stopping only for gasoline and oil and the changing of drivers and tires, a Packard eight car, from Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock until the following Saturday at 11 p. m., in the 177 hours covered 15,432¼ miles on the two and one-half mile concrete speedway of the Packard Proving Grounds.

The endurance run, said to be the most severe ever undertaken, was a part of Packard's participation in the New York Automobile Show. The car was started at the instant the doors of the show in Grand Central Palace were opened for the first time and ran 24 hours a day until the show was closed.

At the same time a tiny car representing it was running about the track on a miniature of the Proving Grounds set up in the Packard show exhibit. Teletype machines, connected with a screen above the miniature on which all messages appeared, kept show visitors informed of the progress of the car with information direct by leased wire from the Proving Grounds. At the same time this instantaneous communication system was also used to communicate answers from the Packard engineering department to all engineering questions asked by show visitors.

Speed to 91.48 M. P. H.

Despite rain and fog for almost 70 hours in the first part of the run, the Packard car made an elapsed time average of 87.35 miles per hour. The running time average was 88.85 miles per hour. The fastest lap was at the rate of 91.48 miles an hour.

It was said to have been the farthest any automobile had ever been driven at continuous maximum speed in so short a time and without repairs. During the test, spark plugs were changed as a precautionary measure, but engineers found that those removed were practically as good as when new. This with changes of tires was the only service adjustment or repair work on the car. No water was added to that originally placed in the radiator throughout the run.

Twice the car struck pheasants flying across the track. One of the birds hit the winter front with such force as to be wedged into the shutters. Each bird was reduced to little more than feathers by the impact.

Standard Stock Car.

The car, a standard Packard Eight seven-passenger sedan, was selected at random as it came off the assembly line. All equipment was standard, including tires. It was prepared for the run only by a preliminary running in of 1000 miles. Extra gasoline tanks were placed in the rear compartment, the extra gasoline carried being equivalent to a five-passenger load.

Six regular proving grounds test drivers were divided into teams of two, and each team drove the car eight hours. The men in the car changed places, putting a new driver at the wheel every two hours. This was done each time as the car hurtled around one of the steeply banked turns of the track at full speed.

After the run had been completed engineers said no signs of the ordeal to which the car had been subjected could be found. It was ready, they asserted, to repeat the performance if called upon to do so without an adjustment or repair.

Value of Safety Glass Demonstrated Without Notice to Official

The value of safety glass in automobile accidents was demonstrated without a moment's warning to a member of the National Safety Council, Inc., Chicago, according to a letter just received by John D. Biggers, president of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., Toledo, from W. H. Cameron, managing director of the N. S. C.

"One of the member companies of the National Safety Council has presented to me by letter the harrowing details of an automobile accident in which three of our friends were involved," Cameron wrote.

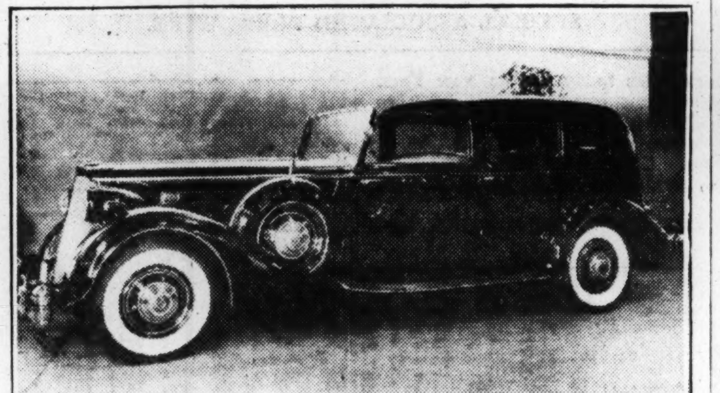
"This was another case of an automobile traveling at a very high rate of speed, attempting to pass our member's car on the crest of a hill as well as a loaded motor truck. The accident resulted in serious injuries. The following is an exact quotation of the report sent me of one of the details of the accident:

"'I saw both cars last Tuesday, and they are complete wrecks. It certainly was a fine demonstration of the value of safety glass. The glass in our friend's car was shattered into a million pieces, but the glass held together, thus preventing the two persons in the front seat from being cut to pieces.'"

Delaware Memorial Highway Costs $4,000,000.

The du Pont Highway in Delaware, 103 miles long, cost $4,000,000 to build. Senator du Pont said he would build a monument 100 miles high and lay it on the ground.

The Newest in Town Cars



LeBaron all-weather town car, which was on display at the Automobile Show. It is mounted on a Packard Twelve chassis of 144-inch wheelbase. The entire car is black, with roof and rear quarters in turtle grain leather. The interior is upholstered in light tan broadcloth. The appointments are luxurious. The car was the highest priced in the show, delivering in St. Louis for $6980, and was the only town car on display.

For City Street Work

Five Dodge dump trucks added to the city's already large fleet of Dodge trucks, recently delivered by Crosby Motors, Inc., through Roy D. Haus, manager of the firm's truck division. These trucks are the latest type of Dodge, two to three ton capacity, equipped with special steel bodies and power hoists, power booster brakes and towing hooks. They are to be used in building and repairing city streets.

Other Changes.

Frames are generally stronger and more rigid.

Full seats, with tilting back divided in the middle, have generally replaced the bucket front seats in two-door sedans. Insulation against heat and noise has been carried further than in the 1935 cars.

Springing has been developed to give still softer riding. More cars have steel-spoke wheels, which are easier to clean than the wire-spoked kind.

On Their Way for Tire Testing

Goodyear tire testing fleet which stopped in St. Louis the past week on its way from Akron, O., to the company's proving grounds in Arizona, where a total of more than a million miles will be driven in six months. The fleet is made up of cars of several makes. In the picture, left to right, are Robert Lang, of the Goodyear retail department; M. D. Scott, manager of the tire test fleet, and C. M. Van Epps, local Goodyear stores manager.

'Overdrive' Feature To Be Available for All 1936 Chryslers

The Chrysler automatic overdrive developed for the airflow line is to be had in the new Chrysler six and de luxe eight at a slight extra cost. The overdrive, in effect, is a fourth speed that automatically goes into operation when the car attains a predetermined speed of 35 to 45 miles an hour. The reduction in engine revolutions is as much as 30 per cent to sustain a given car speed. The saving in fuel, oil and engine wear is obvious. In addition to the economy feature, the overdrive is said to permit a quality of performance that cannot be approached without it. There is a smoothness due to the decreased engine revolution. With the overdrive in operation it requires only as many engine revolutions to sustain a speed of 65 mils an hour as are required for a speed of 45 miles an hour in conventional drive.

Airplane-Automobile-Boat.

A tri-phibian apparatus, designed to travel in the air, on the ground, or on the surface of the water, has been invented by two men of Washington, D. C. They asked the Federal Government to appropriate $500,000,000 (half a billion dollars) to manufacture 25,000,000 of these machines for national defense.

British Auto Racer Pontiac Distributor In the British Isle

Kaye Don, famous British sportsman, who has made two attempts to lift the Harmsworth Trophy from America's premier motor boat racer, Gar Wood, is the new distributer of Pontiac automobiles in England.

Sole Concessionaires, Ltd., the distributing company of which Kaye Don is managing director, has been given the exclusive selling rights for Pontiac cars in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Known best in this country for his Harmsworth campaigns in 1931 and 1932, when he brought his Miss Englands to the Detroit River and pitted them against the yet-to-be beaten Miss Americas of Gar Wood, Don is regarded in his home land as an able salesman and merchandiser.

He also went after the world's automobile speed record one year when he took a high-powered British car to Daytona Beach.

Bermuda Bans Motor Trucks.

In their constant war against the use of automobiles in Bermuda, members of the Assembly have again refused the War Department permission to use motor trucks to cart stone from the Government quarries to St. George's military headquarters and to Warwick camp.

Chrysler Executives Address Dealers at Meeting in St. Louis

L. G. Peed Discusses Advantages of Announcing New Cars in November.

L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler and Plymouth distributer, was host to 187 Chrysler and Plymouth dealers at a luncheon meeting at the Coronado Hotel Thursday. Stewart introduced several Chrysler Corporation officials who came to St. Louis for the meeting.

L. G. Peed, vice-president of the Chrysler Sales Corporation, pointed out the advantages to labor of the new plan of announcing new models in November. He explained that it took four to six weeks to re-tool an automobile factory in connection with bringing out new models. This layoff now comes after seven months of continuous work at good wages, Peed said, remarking also that production employees are now assured of steady employment throughout the winter months.

Stewart next introduced E. B. Wilson, salesmanager of the Chrysler Sales Corporation for the central district of the United States. Wilson said that Chrysler planned production of 500 Plymouth cars for 1936. Discussing greatly increased sales potentialities in the price bracket above the low price field, Wilson said that sales figures showed that there was a 66.6 per cent increase in the first eight months of 1935 in the price field covered by the Chrysler Six and De Luxe Eight.

Stewart next introduced J. B. Wagstaff, director of advertising and sales promotion for the Plymouth Motors Corporation. Wagstaff introduced Barney Oldfield, famous veteran racing driver who long has been an exponent of safety on the part of the motoring public. Oldfield has been retained by the Plymouth Co. to carry on a crusade throughout the country, stressing the increased necessity for safe driving.

Ross D. Williams, regional manager of the Chrysler Corporation, gave a brief talk congratulating Stewart and his dealer organization on their sales record for 1935.

Trades Buggy-Auto for Car.

A high-wheeled, hard-rubber tired, buggy-style automobile was traded by Albert Hartwig of Woodbine, Ill., for a new automobile. Hartwig had owned the two-cylinder machine for 25 years.

"5 things I never saw before sold me a HUDSON"

. . . "and it looks like a million dollars, too!"

Behind the wheel of the 1936 Hudson, motorists are discovering 5 things they never saw before. The 5 greatest safety and comfort features ever introduced in a single season.

RADIAL SAFETY CONTROL (patent applied for)—a wholly new principle that makes riding, steering and stopping safer than ever.

DUO-AUTOMATIC HYDRAULIC BRAKES (patent applied for)—for double-safe stopping—the first hydraulics with a separate safety braking system which takes hold automatically in emergencies.

RHYTHMIC RIDE—long, gentle, "natural rhythm" springs are free for the first time from steering and braking strains.

TRU-LINE STEERING—the car holds its direction unaffected by spring action, braking or road conditions.

AUTOMATIC DRAFT ELIMINATOR—now added to Hudson's exclusive Year-'Round Ventilation System—eliminating floor drafts.

One look—one ride—one careful comparison with any other car—and you will see why they're saying: "This year, it's Hudson." But prove it for yourself. Come in—and drive out, today—in a 1936 Hudson.

STOCK PRICE AVERAGE AT BEST LEVEL SINCE 1931

Week-End Trade Is Most Active for a Short Session in 21 Months—A. P. Industrial Activity Index at New Top Since 1933.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Wall street traders scrambled for stocks today, in the most active short session in 21 months.

Many issues established new tops for four years, with advances of 1 to around 3 points, as the Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed to a level last exceeded on Sept. 9, 1931.

The new figure for the 60-stock compilation was 55.5, up .3 of a point. Turnover in the Stock Exchange was 1,639,480 shares, the best volume for the two-hour market since Feb. 10, 1934, the day on which the President ordered the cancelation of all air-line mail contracts.

Profit taking was apparent in some sections of the list, especially among issues which have been particularly active in the advance recently, but in most cases it was well absorbed and small gains were registered at the close.

The list, as a whole, closed at around the best prices of the day. Buying was most active in the steels, merchandise issues and some industrial specialties and rails, while motors, alcohols and farm shares were in a number of cases a little reactionary or made scant progress.

Big Bond Turnover.

Bonds were nearly as well taken as stocks, as business rose to the best for Saturday since February of this year, at the time the gold clause decision by the Supreme Court. Some week-end adjustment and realizing could be discerned. U. S. Government obligations, with minor exceptions, were firm. Turnover was $8,422,000, par value, for all bonds in the Stock Exchange.

Securities made their progress without help from the commodities. Cotton reacted 35 to 55 cents a bale, and grains were a little unsettled by uncertainty over the tariff provisions in the Canadian trade agreement. Wheat ended ⅜ of a cent a bushel off to ⅝ of a cent higher, while corn was ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent behind the previous close.

The firm to strong performance of the majority of stocks, with advances outnumbering declines in the ratio of 5 to 2, and an unusually broad list traded for a Saturday, appeared to be a follow-through from the previous session.

Extra Dividend Voted.

News at the week-end was scarce, as usual. The best corporate tidings was the announcement of a $1 extra dividend by S. H. Kress. This failed to stir the stock, which was off ¾ of a point at 79⅛.

Rail equipments were again active and higher. Some of the recent interest in American Car and Foundry found a possible explanation in the report in unusually reliable financial quarters that the corporation was planning to absorb three of its smaller competitors. The consolidation would be the first in the field since the depression got well under way.

The stock advanced fractionally to a new 1935 top at 28½. Others in the group up major fractions to around two points included American Locomotive at 24, Baldwin preferred at 29, Pullman at 36½ and General Railway Signal at 38⅛.

Bethlehem was a leader in the advance of the steels, rising three points at one time at 50¾, when it topped the price of U. S. Steel for the first time in recent years. U. S. Steel closed at 50½, up one, and Bethlehem at the same figure.

Stocks during the last week thrust vigorously and definitely through the upper barrier of the trading range in which the equity market has oscillated for more than two years. A fair scattering of individual issues, especially in the industrial classification, were selling at the best levels since 1929.

Average Moves Up.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, which a week ago moved along about on even terms with the best market performers of the recovery rise, in July, 1933, and February, 1934, definitely drew ahead this week. The general level of stock prices advanced to a mark last surpassed in September, 1931.

With each component registering a gain over the previous week the Associated Press index of industrial activity climbed into new top territory since 1933. This was the sixth consecutive advance and carried the index number to within striking distance of the July, 1933, high of 85.3.

Automobile and electric power output gave the compilation its principal boost. Reports on the reception which new motor car models have received from dealers and the public led some prognosticators to believe that the economic barometers were likely to continue to rise at least until the normal lull of the year-end.

Industrial Index.

The index, with seasonally adjusted indices of its six component parts, calculated on latest weekly statistics, and based on 1929-30 as 100, follows:

	latest wk.	pr. wk.	yr. ago.
Composite index	x82.5	81.4	62.5

Residential building	41.7	41.7	18.4
Total carloadings	67.8	67.1	61.7

xNew 1935 high.

Inquiries in market circles late in the week showed no lack of observers who expressed the opinion that the rapid and almost uninterrupted upward course of securities since the spring had created a touchy situation for investors and traders. Technical declines from time to time were commonly pointed out as a likely development.

In foreign exchanges, the British pound sterling gained ⅛ of a cent at $4.92¼ and French francs advanced .00⅛ of a cent to 6.58⅞ cents.

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Another wave of gold imports from Europe has given impetus to expansion in reserve balances of member banks of the Federal Reserve System. The increase in their surplus reserves to a new peak this week was attributed mainly to a jump of $33,000,000 in the monetary gold stock. Total reserve balances of the member banks compared as follows:

Week ended Nov. 13	$5,746,000,000
receding week	5,671,000,000
Same week last year	4,107,000,000

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Prices held steady on the bourse today with some gains being registered on the continued favorable reaction to the Wall street advance and the easing tension over French budgetary prospects. The market closed firm.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Profit taking depressed prices on the boerse today, but the closing was generally steady.

LONDON—Closed on Saturdays.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Runs of the nine pipe line companies formerly in the Standard Oil group for October averaged 256,542 barrels daily against 258,886 in October, 1934. For the 10 months total deliveries amounted to 78,995,782 barrels against 77,602,029 for the same period last year.

Reading Co. will construct 25 all-steel caboose cars in its own shops, according to "Railway Age."

American District Telegraph Co. has called for redemption Jan. 15, next, 20,000 shares of preferred stock chosen by lot at $110 a share. The redemption call is subject to the right of preferred stockholders to exchange any or all their shares for common on a share for share basis.

The total short interest on the New York Curb Exchange amounted to 26,278 shares on Oct. 31 compared with 24,651 on Sept. 30.

Stockholders of Allied Products Corporation have approved a plan of recapitalization under which holders of the old $3.50 class A stock on which there were accrued dividends of $15.75 a share, will receive $2 in cash and 1½ shares of new class A convertible stock of $25 par with a dividend rate of $1.75 annually.

Transit revenues for the week ended Nov. 5, as reported by a representative group of companies, recorded continued improvement over last year, according to the "Transit Journal." For the second time in a year the publication's indicator exceeded 105, the high figure being 105.54 for the week ended Sept. 15.

J. Homer Platten, formerly with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., has been appointed executive assistant to Charles J. Hardy, president of the American Car and Foundry Co.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The record of dividend changes for the week, as reported by Standard Statistics, shows 31 favorable changes against only one adverse announcement. In the previous week the figures were 44 and 4 respectively.

S. H. KRESS & CO. VOTES EXTRA $1

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Directors of S. H. Kress & Co. have declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable Dec. 10 to stock of record Nov. 30.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Trade reports of a firm statistical position in copper were confirmed during the week by the October statistics.

They revealed a 30,000-ton increase in world deliveries as compared with September, while world stocks were reduced 35,000 tons.

Information in copper circles was said to point to a further improvement owing to reports of continued active consumption in both this country and abroad.

Export prices, which had become easier early in the week, tended to advance after publication of the statistics, but the domestic market remained quiet at the unchanged basis of 9¼ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

The willingness of at least one large smelter source to supply zinc at the previous quotation erased the effectiveness of the $2 a ton advance announced by other sellers a week ago. A substantial business was booked by interests willing to sell at the old price and large unfilled orders are now said to be held by smelters.

Although a temporary lull in the daily inquiry for lead occurred on several days renewed active demand developed late in the week for December shipment and prices ruled firm at the previous quotations.

Tin was quiet, with some irregularity in prices. However, the undertone ruled firm. Consumers were unwilling to buy for immediate needs because of high premiums asked for spot metal. A gain in tin plate mill operations from 50 to 70 per cent of capacity was reported.

Although the price of Chinese antimony was held nominally unchanged, the undertone was easy as resale metal appeared at substantial concessions and buyers held off.

The gain in steel ingot production to around 54 per cent of capacity was credited partly to buying influenced by expectations of higher prices and because of increased cativity in the heavier consuming industries. Railroad buying and demand for structural steel have become more pronounced influences, while automobile production is also said to be expanding. Finished steel prices thus far remain unchanged.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Extremely narrows swings marked world dealings in foreign exchange today, as traders showed the usual reluctance to take new positions over the week-end in view of the disturbed economic and political conditions in Europe and the Far East.

An advance of ⅛ of a cent was registered by the pound sterling in New York at $4.92¼, reversing the earlier trend in London, where the dollar had ruled a little higher at the equivalent of $4.92 to the pound.

The French franc advanced .00⅛ of a cent in New York at 6.58⅞, while in Paris the dollar was unchanged at the equivalent of 6.5876 cents to the franc.

Based on the closing rate for the French franc in New York, the dollar was valued at a premium of 68-100 of 1 per cent, compared with 70-100 on Friday, and 64-100 a week ago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Foreign exchange, steady; (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain demand, 4.92¼; cables, 4.92¼; 60-day bills, 4.91¼; France demand, 6.58⅞; cables, 6.58⅞; Italy demand, 8.11; cables, 8.11.

(n)—Nominal.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The United States dollar quotation closed on the Foreign Exchange market today at 15.18 francs (6.5876 cents to the franc) unchanged from the overnight New York rate.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The Foreign Exchange market was quiet today with the United States dollar quotation virtually unchanged. It closed at 4.92 to the pound as compared with the overnight New York rate of 4.92⅛.

The French franc closed at 74.67 to the pound as compared with yesterday's close of 74.70.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Manufacturers were reported good buyers of cocoa in the spot market last week, according to the New York Cocoa Exchange. New York warehouse stocks of Cocoa beans were around 785,000 bags, close to the lowest figure of the last two years.

Industrial output—stating that only a few industries are expected to increase operations next month, Standard Statistics Co. adds that "this, however, is in line with normal seasonal expectations. And does not indicate a definite and sustained reversal in the trend of activity."

Paper Industry—"Since the early summer of 1933," says a paper trade survey by Dun & Bradstreet, "the trend with some minor variations has been consistently upward. Distribution of paper during the first 10 months of 1935 was larger by approximately 20 per cent than in 1934. Profit margins, however, were narrowed by the rising production costs and the mounting tax payments."

Tobacco—Last week's average of tobacco price, based upon the 1926 average of 27 cents a pound for U. S. Type 12, Grade B4F, flue cured, was 18.2 cents a pound against 19.9 in the preceding week and 26.6 cents in the corresponding week last year, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco statistician.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $697,200 (increase); total net demand deposits (average), $60,070,000 (increase); time deposits (average), $982,000 (decrease); clearings week ending today, *$2,932,351,650; clearings week ending Nov. 9, *$2,937,118,399.

G. M. A. C. Six Per Cent Time Payment Plan Emphasises Simplicit

Designed to Make It Easier a Less Expensive for the Car Buyer.

The immediate results of the r duction in cost and the simplific tion of the procedure of financi the 1936 line of General Motors ca announced recently by the Gener Motors Acceptance Corporatio with the GMAC 6 per cent plan, is reported, are unusual interest the public, and throughout the aut mobile industry.

J. J. Schumann Jr., president General Motors Acceptance Corpo ation, said that "the plan wo have been a great step forward virtue of its simplicity alone, e if we had not been able to mak substantial reduction in the c

The new 6 per cent plan is signed to make it easy for the p chaser and the dealer to get gether in complete confidence most essential factor in sound c it sales. Reactions already recei from the public and General Mot dealers have confirmed our be that the public has a real inte in a simplified financing plan, wh brings mutual confiden into ferred payment transac ns.

"The simplicity of the plan mak it possible for the purchaser, with out exposing himself to sales solic tation, to consider carefully before he buys just how he will budget hi income to accommodate the pu chase. This is one of the funda mental factors in sound cred transactions.

One advantage of the new pl is that, by use of a simple mul plier, the purchaser can figure himself."

INDUSTRIAL BONDS AT NEW PEAK FOR YEAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The bond mar et stuck strictly to the rising side today, lthough week-end profit-taking and adjust ent tended to slow up the advance in ome sectors.

Transfers of $8,442,000 was the largest rnover on a Saturday since Feb. 28, this ear, when the momentous gold clause de ision of the Supreme Court brought out a otal of $8,480,000. Transfers last Satur ay approximated $5,575,000.

The Associated Press average of 10 industrial bonds made a new high for a year or longer for the third time this week at 100.6, up .1 of a point since Friday. The averages of other groups were .1 of a point lower to .2 of a point higher.

Bonds of the various units in the Van Sweringen railroad group were again active and higher. A certain amount of profit-taking had to be absorbed following publication of a story by a New York newspaper that speculation was rife in the fi na l district on the possibility of a new move to integrate the Van Sweringen Eastern railroad system, but no great damage was done.

Industrial and utility bonds again followed the board leadership of the stock market and had a scattering of new highs for the year or longer at the close.

Closing prices of the most active rails included Nickel Plate 6s, up 1¾ at 84¾; Kansas City Southern 5s, up 1¼ at 57, and Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, unchanged at 57.

U. S. Government bonds failed to break out of the narrow rut that has held them so firmly all week, but the majority of active issues were a trifle higher at the close.

Foreign bonds had no definite trend. alian issues were a shade lower.

ISK SATURDAY SESSION ON THE CURB EXCHANGE

y the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—In a brisk Saturday session, the Curb Market pushed through profit-taking today for numerous net advances of fractions to a point or so. Virtually all groups were represented in the improvement. Transfers approximated 271,000 shares compared with 333,000 a week ago.

Among issues advancing fractions to around 1 were American Gas & Electric at 39⅝, Electric Bond & Share at 17¼. Distillers Corp.-Seagrams at 35½, Standard Oil of Kentucky at 23½ and Royal Typewriter at 44¼. Hiram Walker rose 2 to close at 33.

Gulf Oil, Newmont Mining and scattered others slipped moderately lower. Wright Hargreaves, Swift Internacional, International Petroleum and American Cyanamid B maintained a steady pace.

HOGS, LAMBS HIGHER, CATTLE MAINLY LOWER

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Nov. 16.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture).

Marketings decreased a little and dressed pork in the East registered material price upturns. These factors reacted to the benefit of live prices and hog values advanced just about 25c during the week under review, peak prices being paid on the week-end sessions. Supplies totaled around 34,700, compared with 36,839 last week and 77,797 similar week last year. On Saturday, the bulk of good and choice 140 to 260 lb. weights cashed at $9.65@9.75, latter price top. Heavier weights were scarce, but shipper and small killer orders were lacking, so that if such kinds had been offered they would probably have been forced to go to big packers at $9.50 downward. Medium grade butchers sold from $9.40 downward, some plain quality light pigs selling at $9. Packing sows bulked at $8.25@8.60 within a quotable range of $8.15@8.75.

Cattle, 1000; calves, 400. Compared with close last week, steers sold 50c lower; some off 75c; mixed yearlings and heifers steady; beef cows 50c lower; cutter grade 10@15c lower; bulls, vealers and replacement steers, 25c lower; tops for week: 990-lb. choice yearling steers, $10.75; 1153-lb. steers, $9.50; heifers, $10.25; cows, $6; sausage bulls, $5.75; vealers, $11; feeder steers, $6.75. Bulks for week: Steers, $6.50@8.50; mixed yearlings and heifers, $5.50@7.50; cows, $4.25@5.25; cutter trade, $3@4; replacement steers, $5.35@6.50; nominal quotation slaughter steers, $5.50@11.75; slaughter heifers, $4.50@10.50.

Sheep, 50; compared week ago, lambs, 50@75c higher; yearlings strong to 25c higher; sheep steady; top lambs for week, $10.50; packer top, $10.25; bulk, $9.75@10.25; throwouts, $6@7; top yearlings, $8.50; bulk, $7.25@8.50; clipped wethers, 2 years old and older, $5@6.25; slaughter ewes, $3.50@4.50.

HOMICIDE VERDICT AGAINST TAVERN OWNER IN KILLING

Joseph Sisk Accused by Coroner's Jury of Shooting Joseph Blanchfield, Also a Saloon Man.

Joseph Sisk, owner of a tavern near Baden, was held for the grand jury yesterday by a Coroner's verdict of homicide in the killing of Joseph Blanchfield, owner of a tavern at 5709 Thekla avenue.

Blanchfield's widow, who in a statement to police had named Sisk as the man who shot her husband, as a witness at the inquest yesterday said she was not sure he was the man. One witness to the shooting was unable to identify Sisk, and another said only that he "resembled" the killer.

Wounded in the chest and right arm early last Sunday as he stood behind the bar of his tavern, Blanchfield died Thursday at City Hospital, still refusing to tell who shot him.

Mrs. Blanchfield testified at the inquest that immediately after her husband was shot she told police Sisk had done the shooting because she was excited and because a few hours before the two men had quarreled in a tavern on West Florissant avenue. Sisk and her husband shook hands, however, before they left the tavern, she said.

Sisk, who was at liberty on $5000 bond, was present at the inquest but did not testify. Albert W. Sachse, 4935 Davidson avenue, a customer in Blanchfield's tavern said Sisk "resembled" the killer. Another customer, Frank Kowatch, 4917 Emerson avenue, said he could not identify Sisk.

All witnesses agreed that two men entered the tavern and that one started shooting at the mirror. He then asked for Blanchfield, or whether "this is Blanchfield's place," the witnesses said, and when Blanchfield identified himself, shot him.

Funeral services for Blanchfield who was 33 years old, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Edith E. Ambruster undertaking establishment, 4053 Lindell boulevard.

DR. G. E. VINCENT TO SPEAK TONIGHT AT LIBERAL FORUM

Former Head of Rockefeller Foundation to Talk on "Democracy, Cynicism or Faith."

Dr. George E. Vincent, writer and former president of the Rockefeller Foundation, will speak on "Democracy, Cynicism or Faith," at the liberal forum of the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue, tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Vincent, since his retirement several years ago as president of the Rockefeller Foundation, has devoted himself to travel and writing. He is the author of "The Social Mind and Education," and "An Introduction to the Study of Society."

Early in his career he taught at the Chautauqua Institution. In 1907 he became dean of the department of literature and science at the University of Chicago. From 1911 to 1917 he was president of the University of Minnesota.

Joseph Cusumano Freed on Bond.

Joseph Cusumano, former operator of cafes and saloons, was released on $5000 bond yesterday pending action of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on his application for a re-hearing of his case. He was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $2000 by Federal Judge Davis yesterday when a jury found him guilty of violating internal revenue laws by having in his possession an unregistered still and mash on which no tax was paid.

DENTIST, 60, MISSING SINCE LAST TUESDAY

Wife Thinks Dr. L. N. Cates Lost Memory and Is Wandering About City.

No trace of the missing Dr. Lorwin N. Cates, 60-year-old dentist with offices in the Ambassador Building, has been found by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Cates, or the police, since he disappeared last Tuesday.

His wife thinks he suffered a loss of memory and is wandering around the city. He had been in good health, however, she said. Apparently he made no preparations to leave.

His wife saw him last on Tuesday morning when he left for his office at his customary time, about 9 o'clock. He was at his office during the day, treating patients, and left for a short time during the morning to deposit a small amount of money at the Mississippi Valley Bank.

Wife Calls at Office.

About 4:45 o'clock that afternoon his wife, who had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Colby, 6911 Julian avenue, that day and had then driven downtown, called at her husband's office to take him home. The office was locked. Dr. Cates apparently had gone out and then come back a short time later, since an elevator boy recalled seeing him leave the building at 5:20 p. m.

Dr. Cates did not come home that night. A checkup has shown that he did not go to the home of his brother, Dr. Franklin O. Cates, also a dentist, at 3618 Olive street, or to his father's home in Marion, Ind. None of his friends has seen him since.

Description of Dentist.

When he left Tuesday morning he was wearing a dark blue suit, white shirt, blue-gray small-figured tie, black shoes, black derby, and a dark blue heavy overcoat. His wife said he did not normally carry much money with him. He is about 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs about 135 pounds, has gray hair and gray eyes.

Dr. and Mrs. Cates, who reside at 5514 Pershing avenue, were married four years ago. Mrs. Cates said she could think of no reason why Dr. Cates would want to leave and was disinclined to believe that he had met with foul play. She said he had a large practice, specializing in pyorrhea treatment.

Talk by Magazine Editor.

De Loss Walker, associate editor of Liberty magazine, will speak Tuesday at the annual executives' dinner meeting of the Purchasing Agents' Association of St. Louis at Hotel Statler. His subject will be: "What's Behind the News."

CONTRIBUTION FROM DANCE

Five Aldermen Send $250 to United Charities.

The check for $250 contributed to the annual fund campaign of United Charities, Inc., Friday by the five Aldermen who sponsored a Democratic dance and rally at Hotel Jefferson last Sunday night, constituted the net profits of the party, Alderman John R. Slay told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday.

Slay, who was chairman of the group of sponsors, asserted that he could not make public the expenditures and receipts of the party, which was attended by about 1500 persons. A letter to United Charities signed by Slay and his associates, John P. Collins, Eilert F. Gummels, Joseph J. Hastey and Otto Lietchen, said they were "agreeably surprised" to learn that a balance remained after payment of the bills.

EAGLE BADGE TO SEVEN IN ONE SCOUT TROOP

Highest Award Presented at Court of Honor Friday Evening.

Seven Boy Scouts of Troop 52, Woodward School, 725 Bellerive boulevard, received the highest award in scouting, the Eagle badge, at a court of honor Friday evening. On only a few previous occasions in the history of the St. Louis Council has the badge been given to more boys of the same troop at one time.

James G. Blaine, recently appointed chairman of the South District Court of Honor, presided at the ceremony. The seven who received badges from him were Russell Cutter, Raymond Dawdy, Robert Groening, Fred Hammer, William S. Nebbe, Ernst Pallme and Albert Stroeher.

Other scouts of the troop were advanced in rank at the award ceremony, every insignia in scouting being given. The tenderfoot badges, emblematic of the first step, were presented by Scouts Dawdy, Hammer and Pallme. In addition, four boys received second class badges, two first class, one star and four life insignia.

William B. Hammer, chairman of the Troop Committee, invested several of the Scouts with merit badges.

An emergency hospital has been arranged for the Merit Badge Show at the Arena, Dec. 5, 6 and 7 by Troop 87, United Hebrew Temple. Three hospital internes who were formerly Scouts will comprise the staff, assisted by Scouts as orderlies and nurses.

Special patrols of troop members will be stationed in the Arena during the show to guard against accidents or to take to the hospital any who may be injured if accidents occur, according to Dr. H. V. Goldwasser, scoutmaster of the troop.

The first scout troop in Wentzville, Mo., sponsored by the Community Club, received its charter Friday. George Friedmeyer is scoutmaster and Everett Peek his assistant. Eighteen boys have been enrolled as Tenderfoot scouts.

Scouts of Troop 230, Bellefontaine M. E. Church, served as waiters at a dinner Thursday evening given by the men's club of the church which sponsors the troop.

The West St. Louis Kiwanis Club has equipped Cub Pack 6 with instruments for a drum and bugle corps. The club organized the group of younger boys as part of its child welfare program.

Girl Scouts.

Sixty-five captains of Girl Scout troops in the St. Louis area have enrolled for the training course conducted by Miss Eunice Prien, of the National Staff. Classes are held on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays at 2 p. m. at the Girl Scout Little House.

Other leaders who are taking the course in trail cookery led by Miss Eleanor Stevens will spend next week-end at Camp Cedarledge, near Pevely, Mo. Miss Stevens announced yesterday that the Training and Personnel Committee of the St. Louis Council will meet at the Little House at 4 p. m. Thursday.

Three new troops registered this fall. They meet at Scruggs Memorial Methodist Church, at the Central School, Price and Bonhomme roads, and at the Richmond Heights School. The 172 troops of the council have a present enrollment of 3986 scouts, and the 38 Brownie packs have 727 members.

SALVATION ARMY RECEPTION

In Honor of Maj. Fookes, New Iowa Divisional Secretary.

A reception will be held at 7:45 o'clock tonight at headquarters of Salvation Army Corps No. 1, Tower Grove and Vista avenues, for Maj. James Fookes, special efforts secretary of the Midland Division of the army, who was recently appointed divisional secretary of the Iowa Division.

Maj. Fookes served in the Midland Division, comprising Illinois and Missouri, for more than seven years, and was recently honored for his continuous service of 25 years with the army. As special efforts secretary, he directed campaigns to raise funds for support of the Salvation Army program. He was also in charge of the Home Service Department of the organization.

Socialist Meeting This Afternoon.

The South Central Branch of the Socialist party will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock at its headquarters, 1603A South Jefferson avenue. There will be a program of lectures and music. Karl Pauli, party organizer for the Pittsburgh district, will speak at 8 p. m. on "The Changing World in Which We Live," in a Labor Forum address.

BIBLE EXHIBIT TO BE GIVEN BY CHURCH FEDERATION IN CITY

To Commemorate 400th Anniversary of First English Translation.

An exhibit of old and rare copies of the Bible, owned by St. Louisans will be held Dec. 2 at Hotel Jefferson in connection with the twenty-sixth annual meeting and dinner of the Metropolitan Church Federation.

The exhibit, which will commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the first English translation of the Bible, will be held under the direction of the Women's Missionary Federation of St. Louis.

A reception at 6 p. m. will precede the dinner. The principal speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown of New Haven, Conn., former dean of the School of Divinity, Yale University. Following the dinner, officers for the federation for 1936 will be elected. Other arrangements are being made for the annual meeting by a committee headed by the Rev. George M. Gibson, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Webster Groves.

SHOW FOR SCOTTISH TERRIERS

To Be Held Nov. 30; Points to Count Toward Championship.

A specialty show for Scottish terriers will be held Saturday, Nov. 30, at 411 Washington avenue, under auspices of the Mississippi Valley Scottish Terrier Club. Winning males and females will be awarded points toward a national championship.

H. Alvin McAleenan of New York, Scottish terrier breeder, will act as judge. The best dog of the show will win a silver trophy offered by Mrs. Frank Spiekerman of Greenwich, Conn. Entries close Nov. 25.

SMALL, MIXED CHANGES MARK WHEAT TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Haunted by possibilities of some sensational surprise concealed in the yet hidden terms of the United States-Canadian treaty, wheat traders today virtually got nowhere.

After many nervous fluctuations within a range of 1¼ cents, the market for Chicago nearby deliveries of wheat sagged at the last, and deferred deliveries advanced. The fact that Liverpool wheat quotations wound up about steady helped somewhat to overcome tension here.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, ⅜c lower to ⅝c higher, compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 96¼@⅜c, corn ⅛-⅜c down, Dec. 60⅛-¼, oats unchanged to ⅛c up, and provisions at a rise of 12 to 35 cents.

Most of the time the Chicago wheat market hovered near to yesterday's prices, and no decided sustained trend developed. Aiding more or less to impart an undertone of strength to values were cables saying European continental demand for wheat has improved Liverpool flour prices were quoted six pence a sack higher. Canadian wheat offerings overseas were also advanced in price, and suggestions were current that lake navigation this season may end earlier than usual.

Reactions, however, that at times more than wiped out gains in Chicago wheat prices were attributed partly to realizing sales to collect profits resulting from about 4 cents upturn from Wednesday's low point. On the other hand, pending the disclosure of provisions of tariff agreements between Canada and the United States considerable disposition was shown by traders to avoid new market commitments in wheat Unlike late yesterday, wheat futures at numerous intervals today were easier to buy than to sell.

Despite indications of continued unfavorable weather for corn movement next week the corn market eased a little. Bears emphasized that Chicago receipts of corn were larger. Oats offerings were readily absorbed.

Provisions went uphill with hog values, and responsive to curtailed warehouse supplies.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec., 95, 98¼ to ⅜; May, 95⅝ to ¾, 98¼; July, 89, 90⅞. Corn—Dec., 59⅝, 60⅞ to 61; May, 59¼ to ⅜, 60; July, 61⅛ offers.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 39,655,000 bushels, corn 4,417,000. Open interest in wheat was 130,825,000 bushels and in corn 31,712,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 16.—December corn sold at 61½c on the local board at week-end session. No wheat futures sold. December was unchanged on bid and May wheat ⅛c lower on offering.

Liverpool closed ⅝@¾d higher after opening ⅝@¾d up.

Winnipeg wheat opened at ¼@⅜c lower. The close was ⅛@⅜c net higher.

Local wheat receipts which were 48,200 bushels, compared with 48,000 a week ago and 46,500 a year ago, included 29 cars local and three through. Corn receipts, which were 75,000 bushels, compared with 24,000 a week ago and 25,500 a year ago, included 50 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 6000 bushels, compared with 4000 a week ago and 2000 a year ago, included three cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was unchanged. Supplies were very small and the market was quiet. Inquiry was fair. Good quality grain was sought by both mills and elevators. At the close No. 2 was quoted nominally $1.03½. Hard wheat was unchanged. A few cars of Kansas grain were offered and held above buyers' ideas of price. Corn was 1@4c lower. Trading was slow. Buyers and sellers were apart early in the session, but later holders reduced their figures and a fair amount of grain moved. Mills, elevators, shippers and industries were the buyers. Oats were nominally unchanged. Supply was light and the demand slow. No sales were reported.

DRAW ME!

Compete FOR AN ART SCHOLARSHIP

Copy this girl and send us your drawing—perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.

Prizes for Three Best Drawings—THREE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfits. (Value of each course, $190.00.)

FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.

Nowadays design and color play an important part in the sale of almost everything. Therefore the artist, who designs merchandise or illustrates advertising has become a real factor in modern industry. Machines can never displace him. Many Federal students, both men and girls who are now commercial designers or illustrators capable of earning from $1000 to $5000 yearly have been trained by the Federal Course. Here's a splendid opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send your drawing to the address below.

RULES

This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal students are not eligible.

1. Make drawing of girl 5 inches high, on paper 6½ inches square. Draw only the girl, not the lettering.
2. Use only pencil or pen.
3. No drawings will be returned.
4. Write your name, address, age and occupation on back of drawing.
5. All drawings must be received in Minneapolis by Dec. 5th, 1935. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

COTTON LITTLE REACTIONARY AT CLOSE OF THE WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Cotton was slightly reactionary today following the sharp gains of Thursday and Friday. The close was steady at net declines of 7 to 11 poines.

Southern selling orders were light. Operators bought moderately on reports of unfavorable weather in the South.

There was further talk of small sales of premium cotton out of the 12c loan holdings, but no definite figures were mentioned in that connection.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 236,094 bales, against 70,457 last year and 175,465 two years ago.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—Spot cotton closed steady, 5 points down. Sales, 2612. Low middling 11.45, middling 12.25, good middling 12.80. Receipts 11,516; stock 768,607.

IRISH TALLY AFTER RULING MAKES PASS COMPLETE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Aided b an extraordinary goal-line "break
Notre Dame put over a touchdow with barely 30 seconds to go an gained a 6 to 6 tie with the Arm today in a nerve-tingling finish t one of football's most colorful inte sectional battles.

West Point, fighting off a succes sion of Irish threats in brilliant de fense of a lead gained on Mon
Meyer's 41-yard touchdown pass t
Ed Grove, was a victim of its ow over-eagerness just when victor seemed firmly in the grasp of th soldiers.

Under circumstances reminiscen of the dramatic climax by whic
Notre Dame triumphed over Ohi
State two weeks ago, the fightin
Irish struck desperately throug the air in their last attempt to over come the Cadet lead. The critica and hotly disputed play came o the same type of pass—Bill Shake speare to Wayne Millner—that de cided the battle of Columbus.

It was thrown with the closin seconds ticking away rapidly an the ball in Notre Dame's possessio on Army's 29. Millner was sur rounded by three Cadets as h reached for the ball and missed but A. W. Palmer of Colby, th field judge, promptly called th pass complete on interference b Ed Grove, Army halfback. Palme was promptly backed up by the um pire, W. R. Crowley of Bowdoin, an it was Notre Dame's ball, on Ar my's two-yard stripe, with a half minute to go.

Danbom Goes Over.

Big Larry Danbom, Notre Dame substitute fullback, dived over the middle of the line for the touch down that everyone knew was com ing, but the Irish were unable t seize their sudden opportunity t pull the game completely out of th fire. Wally Fromhart took plenty of time in his placement attemp for the extra point but his kick like Grove's in the first period, went

Notre Dame Scores in Last Minute to Tie Army, 6 to 6

IRISH TALLY AFTER RULING MAKES PASS COMPLETE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Aided by an extraordinary goal-line "break," Notre Dame put over a touchdown with barely 30 seconds to go and gained a 6 to 6 tie with the Army today in a nerve-tingling finish to one of football's most colorful intersectional battles.

West Point, fighting off a succession of Irish threats in brilliant defense of a lead gained on Monk Meyer's 41-yard touchdown pass to Ed Grove, was a victim of its own over-eagerness just when victory seemed firmly in the grasp of the soldiers.

Under circumstances reminiscent of the dramatic climax by which Notre Dame triumphed over Ohio State two weeks ago, the fighting Irish struck desperately through the air in their last attempt to overcome the Cadet lead. The critical and hotly disputed play came on the same type of pass—Bill Shakespeare to Wayne Millner—that decided the battle of Columbus.

It was thrown with the closing seconds ticking away rapidly and the ball in Notre Dame's possession on Army's 29. Millner was surrounded by three Cadets as he reached for the ball and missed, but A. W. Palmer of Colby, the field judge, promptly called the pass complete on interference by Ed Grove, Army halfback. Palmer was promptly backed up by the umpire, W. R. Crowley of Bowdoin, and it was Notre Dame's ball, on Army's two-yard stripe, with a half minute to go.

Danbom Goes Over.

Big Larry Danbom, Notre Dame substitute fullback, dived over the middle of the line for the touchdown that everyone knew was coming, but the Irish were unable to seize their sudden opportunity to pull the game completely out of the fire. Wally Fromhart took plenty of time in his placement attempt for the extra point but his kick like Grove's in the first period, went wide of the uprights.

There remained only enough time for Notre Dame to kick off and for Army's Monk Meyer to try one long, incomplete pass, before the game ended in the first deadlock since 1922 between these rivals.

Taking the game as a whole, with Notre Dame registering 14 first downs to Army's four and displaying greater power throughout, the tie score was fair enough. Nevertheless, it was a bitter blow to the Cadets, whose stalwart defense appeared capable of frustrating all the Irish threats, and the decision on the Shakespeare-Millner pass was

BUCKIN' JOE BUKANT CAN RUN, TOO—A Dash in the Second Period

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Buckin' Joe Bukant's specialty is throwing passes, two of which led to touchdowns for the Washington University Bears in the first quarter, but Buckin' Joe also demonstrated to the crowd that he also can carry the ball. The picture shows Bukant making a nice gain for the Bears in the second period.

Illinois Stops Joe Williams, But 142-Pound Ohio State Reserve Wins Game, 6 to 0

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—William Henry Harrison (Tippy) Dye, 142-pound reserve Ohio State quarterback, sloshed 50 yards through a broken and muddy field today to defeat Illinois, 6 to 0, and keep Ohio in the Big Ten title race.

Only next Saturday's game with Michigan stands between Ohio State and a half share of the conference laurels.

Dye's run, made in the first period after taking one of Halfback John Kanosky's punts in the middle of the field, was a masterpiece of broken field running behind perfect quickly-formed interference. The little fellow went over the line standing up, not an enemy hand touching him en route.

Illinois, outweighed in every department, wrote a new chapter of nerve, endurance and defensive ability into the colorful story of the 24-year series between the teams.

The boys from the prairie country outplayed Ohio's heavy forward wall time after time, and in one gallant goal line stand stopped the rampaging Bucks inches from the goal.

Late in the game, Ohio State plowed to the Illinois four-yard line. A Buck took the ball to within a foot of a touchdown. Two more plays were run, and Illinois took the ball on the two-yard line.

Boxer vs. Wrestler Again.

"CAN a boxer beat a wrestler?" has often been debated. Once or twice it has been tried out under unsatisfactory conditions. What is declared to be a real attempt to settle the argument will be undertaken at the Arena Tuesday.

Rules protecting the wrestler and the boxer in their specialties have been approved by the State Commission. Everything appears jake for a real test. But—

The affair will be contested in three-minute rounds, and that gives the boxer a big break.

Harder on the Wrestler.

ORDINARILY, if Ray Steele and the Kingfish were thrown into the ring and told to go ahead on a wrestling basis—that is go without intermission until one or the other was thrown or knocked out—the wrestler would have the big edge. Majority opinion holds that the wrestler would get the fighter to the mat—and once there the result would be certain, with the wrestler the winner by a pin fall.

But with three minute rounds, the Kingfish can devote his time to avoiding Steele. Even if

Cole's 70-Yard Run Helps Maplewood To Gain 7-7 Tie With Muskogee, Okla. Eleven

By Reno Hahn.

Two touchdowns in two minutes of rapid action in the second quarter were all tthe scoring that the strong defensive football teams of Maplewood and Muskogee (Ok.) would allow last night as the elevens battled to a 7-7 tie. About 2500 spectators watched the evenly matched teams battle.

Muskogee took the ball on its 20-yard line after Ficke had punted over the goal line in the second period and started down the field on power plays for 80 yards and a touchdown. Joe Singleterry and Keigh Rigney were the principal ball carriers, with Singleterry's speed carrying him around the ends for big gains and Rigney smacking the line for constant advances.

20-Yard Pass Scores.

As the first quarter ended the visitors had the ball on Maplewood's 20-yard line. Capt. Cecil Allen went into the backfield for Muskogee and on the first play of the period tossed a 20-yard pass to Singleterry, standing on the goal line, for a touchdown. Jack Jacobs, full-blooded Creek Indian, converted the extra point on a place kick.

Boyd kicked off to Ficke on Maplewood's seven-yard line, and Ficke returned to the 24. After Jimmy Cole had gained six yards on a half spinner he sliced off his left tackle and, although he appeared to be stopped when he reached the secondary, he twisted, reversed his field and ran 70 yards for the touchdown. Jack Whalen place-kicked the tying point.

That ended the scoring, neither team making a serious bid for a score thereafter, although Muskogee rolled up 12 first downs to seven for Maplewood. Maplewood, how-

BUKANT'S BULLET PASSES AND HUDGENS' 60-YARD RUN BRING THREE TOUCHDOWNS

By J. Roy Stockton.

Buckin' Joe Bukant's bull's-eye forward passes, a spectacular 60-yard run by Bounding Bob Hudgens and a stalwart defense that stopped a determined Missouri University eleven's thrusts in the shadow of the Washington goal posts gave Jimmy Conzelman's Bears a 19—6 victory over Don Faurot's Tigers yesterday afternoon before a home-coming crowd of 8544 football fans.

Thirteen points sounds like a comfortable margin, but it seemed all too small, as the Missouri machine dominated the competition in the second half, smashing the Bear line and confusing the Washington defenders with a fine assortment of passes, forward, lateral and shovel.

Tigers Stopped 4 Times Near Goal.

Four times in the second half the Tigers had the ball, first down with goal to gain. In the third quarter the Bears held twice on the eight-yard line and twice in the second half the enemy was within the 10-yard line. But Conzelman's team, confused frequently in mid-field, fought valiantly when its goal was threatened and the lead that Bukant's rifle-like arm and Hudgens' bounding feet produced was more than sufficient.

There was much comfort for the vanquished Tigers in the statistics of the battle. They made 17 first downs, to the Bears' seven and gained 165 yards from scrimmage to the Bears' 94. Despite the statistics there was no question of which was the better team. The Bears pounced on their opportunities and hugged them until they had turned them into touchdowns, while the Tigers, for all their superior manpower, courageous fighting and well-executed plays, could not gain at critical times those extra chunks of yardage that were needed to turn defeat into a triumph.

Hudgens' Run Spectacular.

While Bukant's rifle-like forward passes paved the way for two of the Bear touchdowns, it was Hudgens who stood out as the most heroic figure of the Homecoming day victory. It was Bounding Bob who skirted his right end for the final five yards of a 39-yard drive that produced the first Washington touchdown after about 15 minutes of the first quarter.

Bob had much assistance during the 39-yard advance, but his second touchdown was a one-man show, a brilliant 60-yard dash through the Tiger ranks that added six more points to the Bear advantage a minute or so before the half ended.

There was brilliant blocking as Bob went around his right end for the first touchdown and again as he romped the 60 yards. But interference, while it is a fundamental necessity, cannot do it all for a ball-carrier. He must have nimble fet, shifting hips and quick coordination to dodge the hostile tacklers. Bob had everything. He side-stepped one tackler and slipped past another, and finally with a fine burst of speed he left the last few defenders far in his wake as he scampered happily over the goal line. Bob Hudgens must be rated not only as one of the best ball carriers seen in a Washington uniform in many years, but also as one of the best in the country.

Droke Scores on End Run.

Chick Droke carried the ball over the Missouri goal line for the other Bear touchdown, skirting his left end late in the first quarter for the remaining yard necessary to make a fine passing attack ring the bell.

Herb Grenda, a Tiger end of much speed, had the honor of scoring Missouri's only touchdown as his team suffered its fourth straight defeat at the hands of a Conzelman-coached Bear eleven.

With the ball on the nine-yard line at half-time in the second quarter, Grenda caught a pass from Jack Frye and fell over the line for the six points.

Conzelman's team played a smarter game than the Tigers and it was something of a blunder, or what looked like a blunder to press-box

Fullback Patrick Plunges To Touchdown, Pitt Defeats Nebraska, 6-0, Before 34,000

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.—Pittsburgh's gridiron craftsmen nailed Nebraska's offense to the ground this afternoon, chopped holes in the defense and scored a 6-to-0 triumph over the brawny Cornhuskers, champions of the Big Six Conference.

Under chill November skies, Sophomore Frank Patrick, 200 pounds of power and speed, split the Westerners' line for a touchdown early in the second period to the cheers of 35,000 shivering fans.

He missed the kick and the scoring was over, but the Panthers, leading the fight all afternoon, further demonstrated their superiority by clicking off 12 first downs to four for Nebraska and gaining 188 yards from scrimmage to the invaders' 54.

Led by the dashing Lloyd Cardwell and Sam Francis, the Cornhuskers presented a dazzling backfield that chilled the hearts of Pitt followers even in the final minutes.

But the brawny Nebraska line was pounded down by the fast-charging Panthers and their backs were at the mercy of Pitt tacklers, particularly acting Captain Vin Sites and Frank Souchak, the Pitt ends. This pair of dashing flankmen spilled the Nebraska ball carriers for losses all afternoon—smeared well-executed spinners and laterals before they had time to jell.

In a nip and tuck first period, which saw the teams fighting toe to toe, Hub Randour, Bob La Rue and Patrick pounded along to a first down on Nebraska's 24-yard line as the quarter ended.

Patrick blasted through tackle

MINNESOTA'S 40-0 DEFEAT OF MICHIGAN WORST SINCE 1892

Gophers' 16th in Row; Badgers Gain 288 Yards In Air, Lose, 32 to 13

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16.—Minnesota's football machine, fast, powerful and bone crushing, smeared the gridiron prestige of once-powerful Michigan with a 40-to-0 drubbing this afternoon. It was the worst Michigan defeat in 43 years.

The Michigan coaching staff, stunned by the ruthless power of the invaders from the North, had to flip the pages of the record book all the way back to 1892 to find the story of a worse defeat. That one was administered by Cornell, 44 to 0.

Minnesota halfbacks tore the Michigan defense to shreds for six touchdowns and four extra points—all for glory and a "little brown jug" that has symbolized the rivalry of the two schools for years.

The 30,000 spectators that huddled in the huge stadium watching Minnesota run its string of victories to 23, 16 of them in succession, wondered what happened to Michigan's newly-found power which enabled the Maize and Blue to defeat Penn, Columbia and Wisconsin.

There was only one answer—too much Minnesota.

The Gophers showed their power this afternoon by blocking; blocking in the line and down field for the ball carrier.

Three Gopher touchdowns came in the first period, two on sprints of 59 and 72 yards by 168-pound Andy Uram, who had replaced the brilliant Clarence (Tuffy) Thompson. Sheldon Beise scored two touchdowns, and Thompson and Levoir one each.

It was Thompson who contributed the game's most spectacular play. Levoir took the third period kickoff then lateraled to Tuffy, who ran 95 yards to score. The final touchdown, by Beise, ended a devastating march from midfield in the final period.

158-Pound Back Scores Three Times for Wildcats.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 16.—Ollie Adelman, a Milwaukee boy with swivel hips and perpetual motion legs, escaped from the Northwestern bench today to stage an unforgetable running exhibition that gave the Wildcats a 32-to-13 triumph over Wisconsin.

Ollie, a little 158-pounder who was so slippery that he squirmed out of tacklers arms and left them sitting dumbfounded to the delight of 20,000 spectators, rushed over three of the five Northwestern touchdowns with spectacular jaunts of 65, 34 and eight yards. He was such a ground gainer that he picked up a grand total of 114 yards in eight attempts for an average of 14¼ yards a try. His performance overshadowed the exceptional passing arm of Lynn Jordan, who threw so accurately that he put the Wisconsin Badgers in the game after they had been hopelessly routed.

Jordan, who did virtually all the throwing for the Badgers, was so spectacular and accurate that Wisconsin gained the astonishing total of 288 yards through the air as compared to only 18 by rushing.

63-Yard Run Wins for Purdue Over Iowa.

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 16.—Slippery Tom McGannon, sophomore Purdue halfback, intercepted one of Oze Simmons' long forward passes with a "shoe-string catch" and streaked 63 yards straight down the gridiron today to give the rejuvenated Boilermakers a 12 to 6 victory over the University of Iowa.

The Boilermakers, coming back after three successive defeats with a fast-charging line and a hard-running backfield, handed the Hawkeyes, heretofore whipped only by Minnesota, their second loss of the season. It was Purdue's third Big Ten victory and provided a satisfying day for 16,000 Dad's day visitors.

A wet gridiron hampered running attacks, kept Simmons, the elusive Iowa Negro halfback, from breaking away, and forced both teams to take to the air.

Indiana Scores 24-0 Upset on Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The Hoosiers of Indiana, starved for a Big Ten football victory, gorged themselves on a 24 to 0 upset triumph over Chicago's Maroons at Stagg Field today.

Jay Berwanger, the Maroons' great half back, injured last week, was used sparingly.

FORDHAM RUNS UP ITS BIGGEST SCORE—45—AGAINST MUHLENBERG

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fordham University's powerful football team ran up its highest score of the season here today, swamping the Muhlenberg eleven, 45 to 0, before a crowd of 5000 at the Polo Grounds.

The Ram lineup was composed of second-stringers for the most part, but the varsity players were on the field much of the time, and particularly in the second period, when the New Yorkers pushed over three touchdowns to put the game on ice.

Fordham overpowered the Pennsylvanians in every department.

UNION PRINTERS WILL PICK BASEBALL LEADER

The St. Louis Typo Athletic Association, members of the Union Printers' International Baseball League and Golf Association, will hold its annual meeting and election of officers and a manager for day at Typographical Union No. 8 headquarters, 3745 West Pine No. 8 headquarters, 3745 West Pine boulevard. Harlen T. Collins has called the session for 2:30 p. m., and invites all union printers and mailers to attend.

The 1936 baseball tournament of the Union Printers' Baseball League will be held in Chicago next August. The annual winter meeting of the league will be held in Cincinnati, Jan. 12-13.

Chicago's North Shore Teams Dominate Girls' Field Hockey Tourney

By Damon Kerby

St. Louis' field hockey club lost its second game in the annual Mid-Western tournament sitting down, with Madison, Wisc., on the long end of a 2—1 score after action was completed in the game on Mary Institute grounds yesterday afternoon. The spectators did not number more than 500, probably because it was so cold.

Because it was so cold, players had to play with great vigor to try to keep warm. Their enthusiasm ran, as the saying goes, high. They charged up and down the field, while spectators shivered, because it was so cold.

Madison, using good teamwork, brought the ball to the mouth of the St. Louis goal, midway in the first of the two 30-minute periods. Both teams were banging at the ball at a fast clip and it appeared that Madison had an open shot at the enemy goal. Marcella Dittiemeier, star right back for St. Louis, tried to break up the play, and in a very effective manner. Whether by accidentor design, she sat on the ball.

Officials immediately awarded a "bully," which, in Our Set on the field hockey grounds, means that St. Louis had to "face off" with Madison three yards in front of the St. Louis goal.

A Bully—In the Cold.

Lucy Fitzwilliams, goalie, faced-off for St. Louis against Dorothy Cruise of Madison. In the excitement of the moment, or possibly because it was so cold, Miss Fitzwilliams kicked at the ball on the bully, or face-off. The goal—and it proved to be the deciding one—was awarded to Madison.

In the second period of the game Marguerite Schwartz of Madison located the St. Louis goal with a nice shot to make the score 2-0, but St. Louis, playing with great energy, scored when Rosemary Stanley got through the usually effective Madison defense for a goal. It was the only score St. Louis could muster.

There were no visible or vocal regrets over the St. Louis defeat or the manner in which it took place, because a championship is not decided in the tournament, which, it is stated, is run off for the purpose of letting the Selection Committee look over mid-western players in order to choose an All-Star mid-western team for the National tournament. The only regret was in regard to the weather, because it was so cold.

The defeat was St. Louis' second in tournament play. They lost Friday to the strong North Shore No. 1 team of Chicago, 3 to 1. North Shore No. 1 again demonstrated its strength yesterday by trouncing West Suburban, also of Chicago, 13 to 0. North Shore No. 1 was held to three goals in the first half, but in the second broke loose and hit the goal from every angle. Miss Jo Foster, plump goalie for West Suburban, shivered, because it was so cold, and spoke eloquently as the shots whizzed past her legs. She said, after enemy points were scored:

"Nuts."

University City's team, composed of graduates of University City High, played a fast, slam-bang game in holding North Shore No. 2 team to a 2-1 score. Ruth Lorton, center forward, made University City's score, while Betty Hirsh and Helen Fulton registered for North Shore No. 2. This game almost made spectators forget the weather, but not quite, because it was so cold.

Four More Games Today.

Two other tournament games were played, but because it was so cold, a number of the spectators departed. Those who stayed saw parts of two good games on adjoining fields, Milwaukee beating Iowa City, 3 to 1, and Maryville College holding "Et Cetera," composed of players otherwise not identified with a field hockey club, to a 1-1 score.

Four games will be played this morning, West Suburban opposing University City at 8:30 a. m.; Madison vs. Iowa City at 9:30; North Shore No. 1 vs. Milwaukee at 10:30 and North Shore No. 2 vs. St. Louis at 11:30. Players and spectators hope the weather will change for the better, because it was so cold yesterday. It was cold.

A team composed of Principia-Burroughs players defeated a squad from Mary Institute and Sacred Heart, 2 to 1, in an exhibition.

L. S. U. Forced To Limit to Beat Georgia, 13-0

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 16.—Forced to use all her power on a slippery field by a fighting opposition, Louisiana State University retained its undefeated Southeastern Conference record by beating the University of Georgia, 13 to 0. The bad weather kept the crowd down to 15,000.

Louisiana State took a 7 to 0 lead late in the first period when Mickal broke away for a 92-yard dash to the goal line. Georgia had driven down to L. S. U.'s 15-yard marker on Treadway's 45-yard return of a punt and two passes. Four tries at the line netted only eight yards, however, and State took the ball on its seven-yard line. Starting from punt formation and with perfect blocking, Mickal galloped down the field, scoring standing up. He also kicked the extra point.

After being turned back early in the final period, L. S. U. registered its second touchdown with only a minute to play. Crass found a hole in the center of the Georgia line and stepped 23 yards for the score. The try for the extra point was missed.

QUARTER-CENTURY BOWLING CLUB TO MEET AT ROGERS

Bears Star on Defense and Defeat Missouri U, 19 to 6

observers, that gave the Bears their first scoring opportunity.

Ray Hobbs, kicking hero of last week's battle in the mud, punted out of bounds on the Tigers' 10-yard line after about 13 minutes of the opening quarter and on the first play Don Johnson gained eight yards around the Bears' right end. It is true that the ball was deep in Tiger territory, but it was not quite as deep as it had been on first down and it seemed a bit early to punt. But Turnbough fell back in punt formation and when the Bears rushed him he kicked hurriedly and the ball went out of bounds on his 39-yard line.

Washington quickly went into action. Bukant rifled a pass to Dwight Hafeli, who made a brilliant leaping catch and the aerial thrust was good for a 19-yard gain. Hudgens made a yard at center and Bukant again took to the air and Mike Zboyovski caught the ball near the edge of the field, but reached the five-yard line before being forced out.

The Tigers took time out, but they failed to arrange a defense to stop the Bears and on the next play Hudgens, behind brilliant blocking, went over the line standing up. Dave Blumberg was rushed in to convert the extra point, but his place-kick was blocked by Turnbough.

Bukant's Pass Good for 33 Yards.

The second Washington touchdown quickly followed. Al Iezzi kicked off for the Bears and Henderson downed the bal lon his 38-yard mark. On the first Tiger play, Murray's pass was intercepted by Mike Zboyovski on the Tiger 45 and once more Bukant did his stuff. A pass to the nimble-fingered Hafeli was good for 33 yards and after another pass failed and two line plays would not click, Bukant fired a pass to Zboyovski, who reached the one-yard line before being downed. Bukant was stopped at tackle, but on the next play Droke broke away, clearing the Tiger right end for a touchdown. Tomlinson tried to convert the extra point, but his place-kick went astray.

An offside penalty nullified a brilliant run by Hudgens, even more spectacular than his 60-yard sprint, and gave the Tigers their one fruitful scoring opportunity in the second quarter. With the ball on the Bear 21, a pass by Frye was intercepted by Bounding Bob, who sidestepped enemy tacklers and sprinted 59 yards, only to have the ball called back. The five-yard penalty assessed on the play made it a Tiger first down on the Bear 16 and after Murray lost three at tackle and a pass, Frye to Cooper, put the ball on the nine, Frye flipped to Grenda for a touchdown.

Seconds before the half ended a pass by Lochiner was intercepted by Zboyovski, who was forced out of bounds on his 40-yard line. Bukant's pass to Hafeli went astray and then as the Tigers deployed to repulse another aerial thrust, Hudgens went around his right end, and raced down the sideline for 60 yards to give the Bears their third and final touchdown. Blumberg, sent in to convert the extra point, made good with a place-kick, and the score was 19 to 6.

Bears Show Great Defense.

The Bears were satisfied to play a defensive game in the second half and their defense had to be stout. In the last two quarters the Tigers piled up nine first downs, while the Bears were making only one. But it was sound football to play a defensive game on a wet field and with a margin of 13 points. And it was pleasing to see the Bears display such excellent defensive ability. Passes fooled them occasionally, as they have all season, especially a beautifully executed shovel pass, which twice caught the Washington defenders napping.

But, everything considered, it was a most satisfactory game for the Washington home-comers. The Bears completed five of 14 passes for a total gain of 104 yards and knocked down 20 of the 26 Tiger aerial attempts. And there were only two Washington fumbles, and both were recovered.

It was the third straight victory for the Bears and the woe that was October is all but forgotten in the face of the November triumphs.

Notes of Game.

GOV. PARK was among the spectators. He was introduced over the public address system and said he was happy to see a game in which it was certain that a fine Missouri team was sure to win.

Jimmy Conzelman was wearing a well-worn fedora when the Bears scored their unexpected victory over the Tigers in 1932. He has worn that hat at every Missouri game since then and he had it on yesterday. It still is a hat and you couldn't buy it from the Bear coach.

The Bears held on their four-yard line in the second quarter, after a shovel pass, Frye to Londe, put the Tigers within striking distance.

F. E. Dennie, who was scheduled to referee, didn't appear for the game and C. E. Elliott, Cornell, took over the job. The officiating was satisfactory, except that Elliott had the Bears afraid to tackle anybody for fear he'd think they were being too rough. He called one roughness penalty when it seemed from the press box that the man tackled was still in motion. The Bears were penalized seven times for a total of 45 yards, the Tigers five times for a total of 25.

The Tigers made two first downs in the first quarter, six in the second, four in the third and five in the fourth. The Bears made six of their seven in the first half.

Washington went through the game without any serious injuries. Chick Droke had to leave the game, but it developed that a cramped leg muscle caused his trouble. Norman Tomlinson suffered numerous bruises, but is likely to be ready for next week's game with the Oklahoma Aggies.

Don Faurot cannot complain about the material available at Columbia. The Tigers never came to St. Louis with a finer squad of men. There were more good linemen on the squad than Washington has had in school in any three years.

It is the first time in the history of Missouri-Washington competition that the Bears have won four straight games.

Coach Conzelman was happy over the victory. He said he considered Hudgens the best ball carrier Washington had ever had and Bukant the best forward passer.

Kirksville Bowls Over Rolla, Wins Conference Title

ROLLA, Mo., Nov. 16.—The Kirksville Teachers won their seventeenth straight M. I. A. A. football game and their fourth consecutive conference championship by defeating the Missouri School of Mines, 13 to 6, today.

The game, last of the season for the Bulldogs, ended a highly successful season for Coach Fred Faurot, who succeeded his brother, Don Faurot, now head coach at the University of Missouri.

Under the younger Faurot, Kirksville lost to St. Louis U. for its first non-conference defeat in three years, but, as usual, remained invincible within the State association. The team tallied 90 points to 21 for their opponents in rolling up five victories.

The line-ups:

HAWTHORNE JACK IS ALL-AGE WINNER IN SOUTHWESTERN TRIAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VINITA, Ok., Nov. 16.—In a dashing final heat, running against the setter, Martez Sandy, owned and handled by C. E. Duffield of Tyler, Tex., Hawthorne Jack, white and black pointer, owned by F. F. Doyle of San Antonio, Texas., handled by G. A. Story of Little Rock, Ark., won the all-age stake of the Southwestern bird dog trial which came to a close here this afternoon.

Hawthorne Jack was formerly campaigned by Harris and Robinson, but lately came into the possession of the San Antonio sportsman. This is the dog's first important win under his new colors.

The dog ran a good race in the preliminaries, finding birds and showing speed and style, but his final heat was a masterpiece. He found birds, he ran with the same class and he finished well.

Martez Sandy took second place by a nice margin, and next to him came the local pointer, Waterline, owned by H. J. Schroers of Vinita. Thirty-one dogs competed in the stake. The judges were A. T. Parker, St. Louis, and C. C. Stevenson, Holly Springs, Miss.

SOCCER LEAGUE FOR ITALIAN-AMERICANS

The new Neighborhood Association Italian-American Soccer League will start play next Saturday. Five clubs, the I. P. Cs, Paris Cleaners, C. A. C., Neighborhood Club and the Milius team will compose the league. The players are main of Italian-American parentage. Games will be played at Columbus Square, Tenth and Carr, on Saturday afternoons, starting at 2 p. m.

An executive committee composed of Vincent Marchese, Louis Adragno, Mickey Lobaido, Pat DiMaggio and Walter Giesler will govern the league. A 12-game schedule will be played. Ray O'Brien will referee.

COLE'S 70-YARD RUN HELPS MAPLEWOOD TO TIE WITH MUSKOGEE

ever, gained 199 yards from scrimmage to 196 for Muskogee.

Montrose Played Well.

Steve Montrose, 145-pound guard of Maplewood, played a good defensive game. Jack Whalen stopped what appeared to be a touchdown run by Rigney when he outran and tackled Rigney from behind after a 22-yard gain.

It was the first time Maplewood had been tied this season, and came after eight consecutive victories. It was the third tie contest for Muskogee, which has also lost one game in nine played.

Muskogee's team came here without its coach, R. J. Cortwright, who was ill with an attack of influenza. W. R. Hudspeth, regular right tackle, also could not make the trip, as he suffered an injury in a practice session.

PITTSBURGH DEFEATS NEBRASKA, 6 TO 0

for 18 yards on the first play of the second period, Randour hit guard for four and La Rue laid the ball on the edge of the goal line. On a fourth down Patrick drove through the center for the score. He missed the kick.

The Huskers threatened twice in the closing minutes.

Robert Benson knifed through for 11 yards, Francis made it first down on Pitt's 47 and on the next play John Howell flipped a pass to Elmer Dohrmann, who in turn tossed to Francis. The big fullback, who electrified the stands with his long range punts, was dropped on the Pitt 40-yard line. Here the advance was halted by the Panther line.

A few plays later Ray Morrison grabbed Leon Shedlosky's fumble on Pitt's 37-yard mark. The Huskers took to the air for a last try, but their passer was hurried and their receivers blanketed. Cardwell got nine yards on a heave from Henry Bauer. The other tries were impotent and Pitt took the ball on downs shortly before the game ended.

COCHRA

CRUCIAL GAME OF TOURNEY IS BITTERLY CONTESTED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — Welker Cochran, aggressive San Francisco cue artist, won his seventh straight match in the world's champion three-cushion billiard tournament tonight, defeating Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo., in one of the most bitterly contested matches of the tourney, 50 to 46, in 46 innings. Cochran had a high run of eight and came from behind to win. Layton's best run was a cluster of five.

Layton, winner of the 1934 tournament, but definitely out of the running in the current event, started as though he intended to achieve the biggest upset of the meeting. He had an 8 to 2 lead after three innings, and at the end of 15 innings, led by 18 to 10.

He blew an easy one on the sixteenth, and Cochran seized the break to run eight, his high for the match, and tie the score. The Coast star pulled away, but Layton rallied and in the forty-third, ran four to lead, 42 to 40. Cochran came back with runs of three and five to regain the lead and continued on to victory.

Score by innings:

LAYTON—350 015 110 010 010 000 300 001 002 002 101* 110 040 041 404 0—47. *One off for foul, 46 innings, high run, 5.

COCHRAN—001 021 100 020 030 801 400 201 200 160 000 102 000 200 351 1—50, 46 innings, high run, 8.

What started out to be a dull match wound up with both shooting sensational billiards as Willie Hoppe defeated Jay Bozeman, 50 to 48, in 37 innings for his sixth victory of the tournament.

In the other afternoon match, Arthur Thurnblad, the lean Chicago architect, turned in a 50 to 37 victory over Otto Reiselt.

Hoppe was shooting poorly in the feature match of the session, but Bozeman was even more shaky and trailed at the 27th inning intermission, 25 to 18.

The winner then made 26 billiards in the last nine innings and Bozeman turned in 30 in the last 10.

The Thurnblad-Reiselt match was slow and quiet. Thurnblad, always ahead after a run of four in the seventeenth frame, needed 55 innings to run out.

Reiselt had the high run of five in the twelfth. The winner's best cluster was four, which he made in three different innings. It was Thurnblad's sixth victory against two defeats.

Cochran, with six consecutive victories, held half a game edge over Hoppe but had to face the defending champion, Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., in a night match. Layton, in fourth place with four wins and three setbacks, had only a mathematical chance to tie for the title.

DARTMOUTH FILLS AIR WITH PASSES TO BEAT CORNELL, 41-6

By the Associated Press.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16. — Dartmouth's undefeated Indians, who have been perfecting an aerial attack all season, set it off for the first time today and when the chill mountain air was clear of flying footballs, Cornell's downtrodden forces were brutally scalped, 41-6.

SEA CLIFF CAPTURES BAY MEADOWS FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

SAN MATEO, Cal., Nov. 16.—Sea Cliff, owned by George J. Giannini of San Francisco, won by a nose over Boiling Point today in the $2000 added Bay Meadows Shrine Handicap, feature for the opening day of a 21-day season. The crowd totaled 15,000.

Sea Cliff, ridden by Jockey Vere Thompson, ran the mile and sixteenth in 1:44 over a fast track which has been treated with a chemical process in an effort to make it mudless. Coldwater was third.

Sea Cliff returned $13.60, $7.60 and $5; Boiling Point $8.60 and $4.40; Coldwater, $3.60.

The purse was worth $1610 to the winner.

Arson, pre-race favorite, was out of the money.

was so cold.

The defeat was St. Louis' second in tournament play. They lost Friday to the strong North Shore No. 1 team of Chicago, 3 to 1. North Shore No. 1 again demonstrated its strength yesterday by trouncing West Suburban, also of Chicago, 13 to 0. North Shore No. 1 was held to three goals in the first half, but in the second broke loose and hit the goal from every angle. Miss Jo Foster, plump goalie for West Suburban, shivered, because it was so cold, and spoke eloquently as the shots whizzed past her legs. She said, after enemy points were scored:

"Nuts."

University City's team, composed of graduates of University City High, played a fast, slam-bang game in holding North Shore No. 2 team to a 2-1 score. Ruth Lorton, center forward, made University City's score, while Betty Hirsh and Helen Fulton registered for North Shore No. 2. This game almost made spectators forget the weather, but not quite, because it was so cold.

Four More Games Today.

Two other tournament games were played, but because it was so cold, a number of the spectators departed. Those who stayed saw parts of two good games on adjoining fields, Milwaukee beating Iowa City, 3 to 1, and Maryville College holding "Et Cetera," composed of players otherwise not identified with a field hockey club, to a 1-1 score.

Four games will be played this morning, West Suburban opposing University City at 8:30 a. m.; Madison vs. Iowa City at 9:30; North Shore No. 1 vs. Milwaukee at 10:30 and North Shore No. 2 vs. St. Louis at 11:30. Players and spectators hope the weather will change for the better, because it was so cold yesterday. It was cold.

ever, gained 199 yards from scrimmage to 196 for Muskogee.

Montrose Played Well.

Steve Montrose, 145-pound guard of Maplewood, played a good defensive game. Jack Whalen stopped what appeared to be a touchdown run by Rigney when he outran and tackled Rigney from behind after a 22-yard gain.

It was the first time Maplewood had been tied this season, and came after eight consecutive victories. It was the third tie contest for Muskogee, which has also lost one game in nine played.

Muskogee's team came here without its coach, R. J. Cortwright, who was ill with an attack of influenza. W. R. Hudspeth, regular right tackle, also could not make the trip, as he suffered an injury in a practice session.

for 18 yards on the first play of the second period, Randour hit guard for four and La Rue laid the ball on the edge of the goal line. On a fourth down Patrick drove through the center for the score. He missed the kick.

The Huskers threatened twice in the closing minutes.

Robert Benson knifed through for 11 yards, Francis made it first down on Pitt's 47 and on the next play John Howell flipped a pass to Elmer Dohrmann, who in turn tossed to Francis. The big fullback, who electrified the stands with his long range punts, was dropped on the Pitt 40-yard line. Here the advance was halted by the Panther line.

A few plays later Ray Morrison grabbed Leon Shedlosky's fumble on Pitt's 37-yard mark. The Huskers took to the air for a last try, but their passer was hurried and their receivers blanketed. Cardwell got nine yards on a heave from Henry Bauer. The other tries were impotent and Pitt took the ball on downs shortly before the game ended.

COCHRAN DEFEATS LAYTON FOR SEVENTH BILLIARD VICTORY

CRUCIAL GAME OF TOURNEY IS BITTERLY CONTESTED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16. — Welker Cochran, aggressive San Francisco cue artist, won his seventh straight match in the world's champion three-cushion billiard tournament tonight, defeating Johnny Layton, Sedalia, Mo., in one of the most bitterly contested matches of the tourney, 50 to 46, in 46 innings. Cochran had a high run of eight and came from behind to win. Layton's best run was a cluster of five.

Layton, winner of the 1934 tournament, but definitely out of the running in the current event, started as though he intended to achieve the biggest upset of the meeting. He had an 8 to 2 lead after three innings, and at the end of 15 innings, led by 18 to 10.

He blew an easy one on the sixteenth, and Cochran seized the break to run eight, his high for the match, and tie the score. The Coast star pulled away, but Layton rallied and in the forty-third, ran four to lead, 42 to 40. Cochran came back with runs of three and five to regain the lead and continued on to victory.

Score by innings:

LAYTON—350 015 110 010 010 000 300 001 002 002 101* 110 040 041 404 0—47. *One off for foul, 46 innings, high run, 5.

COCHRAN—001 021 100 020 030 801 400 201 200 160 000 102 000 200 351 1—50, 46 innings, high run, 8.

What started out to be a dull match wound up with both shooting sensational billiards as Willie Hoppe defeated Jay Bozeman, 50 to 48, in 37 innings for his sixth victory of the tournament.

In the other afternoon match, Arthur Thurnblad, the lean Chicago architect, turned in a 50 to 37 victory over Otto Reiselt.

Hoppe was shooting poorly in the feature match of the session, but Bozeman was even more shaky and trailed at the 27th inning intermission, 25 to 18.

The winner then made 26 billiards in the last nine innings and Bozeman turned in 30 in the last 10.

The Thurnblad-Reiselt match was slow and quiet. Thurnblad, always ahead after a run of four in the seventeenth frame, needed 55 innings to run out.

Reiselt had the high run of five in the twelfth. The winner's best cluster was four, which he made in three different innings. It was Thurnblad's sixth victory against two defeats.

Cochran, with six consecutive victories, held half a game edge over Hoppe but had to face the defending champion, Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., in a night match. Layton, in fourth place with four wins and three setbacks, had only a mathematical chance to tie for the title.

DARTMOUTH FILLS AIR WITH PASSES TO BEAT CORNELL, 41-6

By the Associated Press.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16. — Dartmouth's undefeated Indians, who have been perfecting an aerial attack all season, set it off for the first time today and when the chill mountain air was clear of flying footballs, Cornell's downtrodden forces were brutally scalped, 41-6.

Arkansas Tries 48 Passes, but Loses to S. M. U., 17-6

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 16. —The Razorbacks of the University of Arkansas out-passed the passing Southern Methodists today, but it did them no good, as S. M. U. won, 17 to 6.

Arkansas took to the air 48 times, completing 18 passes for 242 yards. Southern Methodists tried only 20, but completed seven where they counted and scored twice by passes.

Wilson passed to Tipton for the first Mustang marker in the second period, then Tipton took another forward from Burt for the second score late in the fourth period. Orr kicked both extra points and added a field goal from placement in the third.

The only Arkansas score came after a 21-yard pass, Robbins to Howell, put the ball on the one-yard line in the last period. Capt. Choice Rucker carried it across.

It was the second victory of the week for Southern Methodist, victor over the University of California at Los Angeles, 21 to 0, Monday.

Arkansas outgained the Mustangs, who were playing without the services of Harry Shuford, line-piercing back, injured in the U. C. L. A. game. The Razorbacks made 17 first downs, 10 more than S. M. U.

and reserve power, never quit trying. While Coach Francis A. Schmidt used 23 men, Bob Zuppke, canny mentor of the invaders, made only two Illinois substitutions in the entire contest, one at end and one at tackle.

The scrappy Illinois team did what no other eleven has been able to do this year—stop "Jumping Joe" Williams, who went into the game tied for the Big Ten scoring lead.

Galbreath and Kuhn were the outstanding defensive players in Illinois' front line. Henry took over most of the ball-carrying chores. His 47 yards in 14 tries was the best individual performanc of the day from scrimmage.

The game, played in a drizzling rain and on a slippery field, was witnessed by 43,921 fans, almost 20,000 less than expected if the weather had been clear. At the finish Ohio had 13 first downs to five for the Illini.

All five foreign advances were on rushing, the three attempted Illini passes failing to click. Ohio had eight first downs by rushing, four on passes and one on a penalty.

In all departments Ohio gained 376 yards to 129 for Illinois. The Bucks completed six of nine passes for 78 yards. The Ohioans fumbled twice and Illinois once, and the alert Zuppkemen snatched up all three free balls.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Steele flops him to the mat, the Fish Boy from Chicago, if really a stout-hearted fellow, may hold off the wrestler until the end of the round and prevent a fall. He might even run away or avoid his foe for 10 rounds.

It's impossible to guess what Mr. Krakow of Chicago will do in any instance, particularly in this new and strange one. The Kingfish himself apparently doesn't always know what he intends doing. In the Louis fight he decided to do nothing and did it well; and he wound up by sitting on the lower rope in the attitude of one about to roll a cigarette when counted out to a "don't let him hit me again" climax.

The only salvation for the "mixed" show, from the spectators' standpoint will come if Kingfish wades in and throws gloves. That will mean he will be on the mat in a hurry and that Steele will get a chance to pin him in three minutes.

Rough and Tumble Possibilities

THE wrestler-boxer debate originally did not concern an ordered match, with round-by-round rules to govern.

The discussion raged about the question: "Which offers the better defense against an attack by street thugs, wrestling or boxing?"

The answer, of course, was perfectly obvious. It was: "Neither."

That's because in the days before the "stick 'em up quick" era, which is with us today, thugs didn't attack with the fists or with wrestling holds—they hit with brass knucks or a black jack. And you can't beat either one of those babies with bare hands.

Today they no longer even think of resistin, attack. The "gat" has taken the fight out of everybody.

Just Another Pot Boiler.

MR. JOSEPH COCCOSKEY, legalized into Jack Sharkey, the boxer, with the malevolent eye and the mammoth ego, will try a comeback this week against Unknown Winston, a Negro heavyweight of dubious talents.

SHARKEY.

This event will be a prelude to one or two other bouts which, Sharkey hopes, will restore his pristine skill and physical power, and entitle him to a chance to prove his contention that Joe Louis is just an accident — a man who has flattened weak opposition.

Sharkey, if he has as much intelligence as he has been given credit for, has probably weighed all the questions in regard to the comeback planned and has all the answers —his own. But he is not the first person whose answers haven't agreed with the book.

To begin with, Sharkey is in the thirties and has been out of the ring, tending tavern since 1933. Coming back is not a matter of self-determination. In fact, it doesn't seem to happen.

An athlete declines much faster than he builds up. For two years Sharkey has been sliding into softness. Now he hopes in two months to overcome the ill effects of two years, when it should require three or four years. Long before that time nature would step in and ring the alarm clock.

Hasn't the Goods.

EVEN if Sharkey were in his prime—that is to say, about 26 years old and at his fighting peak—he would still not have the right answer to his guess about Louis.

Sharkey hasn't the weapons to beat any courageous, dangerous hitter, like Joe Louis. Furthermore, Louis is a better boxer and an all-around better man physically. He has everything that Sharkey showed a lack of in the past—punch, poise and insides..

Sharkey must know all this. He's not totally dumb. Probably he has figured that he can get a jackpot full of money without being badly hurt, if he advances as far as a meeting with Louis.

He certainly can't believe the stuff he uttered to this effect:

"I can stop Louis with a left hand (Sharkey couldn't stop anything much except the clock, most of his fights indicate). "I don't rate Louis any better than Battling McCreary was, at the time the latter acted as my sparring partner.

"I considered McCreary a hard puncher and a first class boxer. He beat Kid Norfolk. But he was a mark for me."

When Joe Louis proves a mark for Sharkey most of us will be cutting paper dolls in the booby house. Sharkey has proved in more than one fight that he can't take it. And what he'll do with what Joe Louis can give, we leave it for you to guess.

The Olympic Flame.

THAT marathon relay race from Olympia in Greece to the site of the Olympic Games of 1936 in Berlin, is an intriguing feature. Particularly so is the method by which the flame from the ancient Olympic altars to light the giant torch at the Berlin Stadium, will be kept alive through the long journey.

The distance to be traversed without the light being lost or extinguished is 1900 miles. More than 2500 runners will carry the torch one kilometer each and incidentally it will take 6000 torches to last out the run.

The promoters of the idea figured out several ways to find a flame that could traverse through seven nations—Greece, Bulgaria, Jugoslavia, Hungary, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Germany and still be ablaze on arrival.

The torches used will be made of magnesium and each relay runner will ignite a new one from the flame of the relay torch preceding him and carry on to the next relay point.

What would happen if the exhausted runner fell and the flame died out, is not explained. But undoubtedly bicycle attendants will accompany each runner to act in such an emergency.

It's probably the longest relay in the history of the world and it would take about six days, running 24 hours a day, to complete the journey.

PRINCIPIA, USING NEW FIELD AT ELSAH, DEFEATS KEMPER, 40-0

By Davison Obear.

The Principia College football team celebrated St. Louis Dads' day yesterday by defeating the Kemper Military Academy eleven, 40 to 0, in their annual game. It was the first football game to be played on the new Principia College field at Elsah, Ill.

Coach Bert Clark's team, which had lost four of its five games prior to yesterday, started the Kemper contest with a surprising burst of speed which bewildered Coach Allison's "Yellow Jackets" from Boonville, Mo. The Principia team well remembered last year, when Kemper won and deprived the Gold and Blue of a clear title in the Missouri State Junior College Conference.

Principia scored in all quarters. The Elsah eleven made 17 first downs to only four counted by Kemper. With the exception of a short-lived rally in the third quarter, Kemper was unable to carry the ball inside the Principia 20-yard line.

The first touchdown came when Principia started a steady march from its own 30-yard line in the opening period to the visitors' three-yard line. Paul Haines, halfback, whose brilliant running was the sensation of the game, then scored on an off-tackle play. Earl Stitt's drop kick was good for the extra point.

In the second quarter Principia scored the second touchdown when Earl Stitt caught a lateral from his brother, Robert. The kick was blocked. Later in the quarter, Haines, left-handed, threw a pass to R. Stitt, who raced across the goal line. Haines then passed right-handed to Kussmann for the extra point.

Norman Gardner, halfback, hit the line for the fourth touchdown early in the third quarter. The kick was blocked. Later E. Stitt caught Kussmann's pass for another score and added a point by a well-placed drop kick.

The final touchdown came on a pass from Haines to Cole, substitute end, in the fourth quarter. E. Stitt passed to Cole for the extra point.

VIRGINIA COLLEGES IN SCORELESS TIE

UNIVERSITY, Va., Nov. 16.—The University of Virginia and Virginia Tech battled to a scoreless tie in the rain here this afternoon, the fourth scoreless tie of the season for Virginia and the third consecutive tie game with Virginia Tech.

McKinley Held to 6-6 Score by Roosevelt; Beaumont Ties for Lead

By Harold Tuthill.

An unexpected 6 to 6 tie which McKinley and Roosevelt played in the third game of yesterday's triple-header threw the lead for the City High School League football race into a tie between McKinley and Beaumont. The Bluejackets won the first afternoon game at the Public Schools Stadium from Blewett, 14 to 0, while Central eked out a 7 to 6 decision over Soldan in the morning game. Inclement weather held the attendance down to about 2000.

McKinley was the victim of its own carelessness. Holding a 6 to 0 lead in the second quarter, the Goldbugs elected to try for more points by passing, but Al Seidel frustrated the plan by intercepting Ray Hughes' pass and using a nice stiff arm, ran 60 yards down the west sideline to McKinley's goal. Bob Stanton narrowly missed winning the game for the Rough Riders when his kick from placement hit the left upright and bounded into the end zone.

After the game, Coach Otto Rost explained how the Goldbugs came to jeopardize their lead by passing. "One of the boys came back into the huddle and said that the defensive halfback on his side was charging in fast and that he thought a pass over the halfback's head would work," Rost said. "But that charging halfback happened to be Seidel, whom I believe to be one of the best back in the league, and if it had been one of Roosevelt's other backs, I don't believe he would have scored, because we would have caught him before he reached our goal line.

"However, the tie does not affect our standing greatly, since we have to defeat or tie Beaumont to win or tie for the championship," Rost added.

The Goldbugs had scored previously on a sustained drive, John Janeff going over for the six points. Bill Hawkins' place kick for the extra point was to the right of its mark.

Two Teams Meet for Title.

Since Beaumont won, but not without difficulty, from Blewett, the stage is all set for a grand finale in the 1935 race. Next Saturday, at 10 o'clock in the morning, Beaumont and McKinley each with four victories and a tie game, will meet for the title.

Some excellent running by Victor Thieling, who scored one touchdown, and by Wilson Schwenk, who aided in the other, produced Beaumont's two scores. The Blue Jackets counted in the second and third periods. Theiling scored in the second quarter and Schwenk passed to Fred Cross in the third period for the other touchdown. Schwenk also place-kicked the two extra points.

There was very little at stake in the Soldan-Central game, but the teams battled fiercely. Following eight straight completed passes thrown by Johnny Hequembourg, Soldan climaxed a touchdown drive when Hequembourg went over from the four-yard line in the first period.

Hequembourg's pass for the extra point to Lunan was incomplete.

In the second period, Ray Kwiatowski did some fancy running and finally scored on a backward forward pass from Art Smith to Cecil Sumpter, Kwiatowski getting the ball in the end zone. Kwiatowski then won the contest with a place-kick which struck the cross bar, but bounded over for the extra point.

ONLY ONE IS MUCH THE BEST IN WINNING BOWIE STAKE

PURPLE KNIGHT SECOND, BEATEN THREE LENGTHS; THURSDAY THIRD

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 16. — Mrs. Deering Howe's honest and game four-year-old colt, Only One, ran one of the best races of his meritorious career here today when he easily defeated a half dozen rivals in the thirteenth Prince George Autumn Handicap of a mile and sixteenth. Some 7500 overcoated fans saw Bobby Merritt give the son of Lucullite-Orissa a beautifully judged ride to get his mount home three lengths on top. Only One was a $5.20 for $2 choice.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Purple Knight, coupled with the dull running Scotch Bun, drove to the place, three parts of a length before Selby L. Burch's Thursday. The latter beat Only One a nose in the Riggs at Pimlico but today he was no match for Mrs. Howe's consistent campaigner. The track was good and Only One completed his journey in 1:47 4-5 under 123 pounds. The value to the winning stable was $2650.

Merritt a Double Winner.

Jockey Merritt had won the previous event as well, astride the Howe Stable's Cycle, also a favorite, thereby starting a double for himself and Trainer P. M. Walker.

Merritt had Only One away in front from the inside position. The speedy but unreliable filly, Vicaress, gave chase into the back stretch, with Purple Knight and Tabitha also in the hunt. At the far turn, Purple Knight spurted and drew up to almost even terms with the ultimate winner, while Thursday also made an ominous charge around the bend to assume third place.

But Merritt knew his horse and was only giving him a "breather." Backers of the winning combination had a few anxious seconds until Only One again drew into a daylight lead when straightened out for home. The colt then increased his margin with little effort.

Horse and Rider Hurt.

The W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap, six furlongs secondary feature, named after the late father of Selby and Preston Burch, was delayed 10 minutes when T. H. Somerville's Pretty Night, trained by Selby Burch, ran into the fence with Jockey Sammy Renick aboard. Joe Renick was substituted for his brother but later the horse was withdrawn. It was reported that Sammy Renick may have a dislocated shoulder. The filly Pretty Night suffered a slight injury. Joe Renick replaced his brother on Scotch Bun in the Prince George Handicap.

MICHIGAN STATE WINS ON WEST COAST

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—Taking advantage of the breaks, and scoring once with a lightning thrust, Michigan State defeated Loyola University of Los Angeles today, 27 to 0, in an intersectional football game before 12,000 in Gilmore Stadium.

Loyola was unable to get nearer the visitors' goal line than the 43-yard line in the first period.

Oklahoma Beats Kansas State, 3-0

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 16.—A field goal early in the second period gave the Oklahoma football team a 3 to 0 victory over Kansas State in a Big Six conference game before 8500 fans.

Bill Breeden, Sooner halfback, dropped back from the Kansas State five-yard line to boot the ball squarely between the uprights. The game was played on a muddy field, making the running attacks of both teams ineffective.

GUNNERS' GAME OFF; MAY NOT PLAY AGAIN

The football game between the St. Louis Gunners and the Memphis Tigers, scheduled for this afternoon, has been canceled, it was announced last night due to the inability of the Memphis team to make the trip here.

It was also stated that the future of the Gunners was doubtful as it was feared the cancelation would make it impossible for the team to play any more this season, but their course will be determined within the next few days.

10 BIKE TEAMS TO COMPETE IN SIX-DAY GRIND

A touch of the "ould sod" was added to the international six-day bicycle race, which opens Wednesday night at the Coliseum, with the receipt yesterday of signed entry contracts from two of the most noted of Ireland's riders, Harold Nauwens and Jack Sheehan.

The entry blanks were filed with Mrs. Nat. S. Brown, chairman of Welcome Inn, which is sponsoring the event.

This team was formed in Louisville last January, after they had combined to win the grind there—and received the titles of "Colonels" for their efforts—and since that time has been burning up the tracks over the country.

Following their victory in the Kentucky city, the two Irishmen in their flashy green uniforms, went to San Francisco where they won first place, then took three consecutive seconds in Los Angeles, Oakland and Detroit. Back in Louisville again they were the big heroes, and again they finished in the money.

Nauwens is at present resting up for the grind here, while his partner is teamed up with the famous French ace, Pete Journey in the classic at Chicago.

Ten teams in all will ride in the race, according to information furnished by George Harvey, one of the promoters engaged in putting on the event. The teams:

Frank Keating, Akron, O., and Eddie Trieste, Chicago.

Charley Winter, New York, and Hans Carpus, Germany.

Tony Schaller, Chicago, and Reggie Fielding, Toronto

Jackie Sheehan, Brooklyn, and Harold Nauwens, Long Island, N. Y.

Bobby Walthour Jr., Atlanta, Ga., and Gus Rys, Detroit.

Jakie Gruber, Brooklyn, and Eddie Ammann, Long Island, N. Y.

Geary May and Russell Allen, both of Hollywood, Cal.

Frank Turano, New Brunswick, N. J., and Albert Marquet, France.

Tom Flynn, Long Island, N. Y., and Bus Parker, England.

Ray Keller, Milwaukee, and Domenico Camastro, Long Island, N. Y.

Four in the field competed in St. Louis' first bike whirligig here three years ago—Winter, Rys, Schaller and Fielding.

According to some bike-racing fans, four teams in the forthcoming grind "have a good chance." They are the combinations of Winter-Carpus, Schaller-Fielding, Sheehan-Nauwens and Walthour-Rys.

After the race gets under way, sprints will be held five times each 24 hours—10 sprints at 3:30, 10 at 8:30, 10 at 10:30, 10 at 12:30 a. m. and 10 at 1:30 a. m. "Jamming," the big thrill of the race, takes place at the option of the riders—when a team thinks it can steal a lap.

Four of the riders who will perform here are already signed up for a race which follows, at Madison Square Garden. They are Winter, Schaller, Sheehan, Walthour and Carpus.

LINCOLN U. SUBDUED BY KENTUCKY PASSES

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 16.—A passing attack that started in the first few minutes of play started Kentucky State Industrial College of Frankfort today toward a 24-0 triumph over Lincoln University of Jefferson City, Mo. Both are Negro schools.

The Missourians held the aerial onslaught after the first touchdown until the third period, when a second touchdown began a new rush of scoring which was climaxed by two more markers in the final minutes of play.

DRESSEN SIGNS TO MANAGE THE REDS NEXT YEAR

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 16.—Charlie Dressen signed today to manage the Cincinnati Reds for another year with General Manager Larry MacPhail declaring he "can manage the Reds as long as I am connected with the club."

Dressen took hold of the Reds in mid-season of 1934, the fourth to tackle the job within three years. Putting an accent on youth, he lifted the club from the cellar to sixth place in the National League standings last season.

He got a raise in the contract he signed today, but he lost out on what he and MacPhail called the only point of difference. Dressen wanted a two-year contract. MacPhail said more-than-one-year contracts were contrary to club policy. Other than that the terms were not disclosed.

The two indicated search would begin at once for a first baseman to replace Jim Bottomley, who is expected to retire, for a hard hitting outfielder, and, as always, for some good pitchers.

Dressen made signing of his contract the occasion for squelching some stove-league rumors of disagreement over playing policy. He called "the bunk" some fan rumors that he had demanded a non-interference clause in his new contract.

SEVEREID THROUGH AS SAN ANTONIO MANAGER

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 16.—Henry "Hank" Severeid, manager of the San Antonio Missions for the past three years, and of the Longview club, St. Louis Browns' farm before the San Antonio arrangement, confirmed reports tonight he would not be retained as manager of the Missions in 1936. Hank left here tonight for the Dayton baseball meeting, where he has strings out for a new contract.

Severeid brought the Missions their only pennant in over 20 years and finished second in 1934, after winning the 1933 pennant. He had a second-division club last year from lack of material. He has sent Clift, Bejma, Garms, Scharein, Heath and others to the Browns in the past, and this past fall sent in Mazzera. He developed Fabian Kowalik of the Cubs.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH PLAYS C. B. C. TODAY

St. Louis University High will have its last chance to make it a triple tie for the Preparatory League football championship today when it plays Christian Brothers this afternoon on the C. B. C. campus. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Since the Junior Billikens already have lost one game, a defeat would eliminate them from championship consideration. McBride leads the race with two victories in as many games and a victory over St. Louis U. High next Sunday would give Coach Toddy Kamp's boys the title.

Drake Scores in Final Minutes to Tie Iowa State

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 16.—With 10 minutes gone on the fourth quarter Drake's fighting Bulldogs pulled a "story book" scoring play to tie Iowa State's Cyclones, 7 to 7, today.

A pass to Ziesmer, who flipped a lateral to Petitt, Drake center, put the Bulldogs in scoring position on the Iowa State five-yard line. Rafferty carried the ball over for the Bulldogs.

Ubl, Drake's passing and kicking star, on the bench at the time of the score, came from the sidelines to make the conversion good and give Drake the tie.

Iowa State reserves hammered over a touchdown in the first quarter and Poole made the extra point from placement.

The lineups and summary:

IOWA STATE	Pos.	DRAKE.
Rushmore	L. E.	Parisho
Dailey	L. T.	Hedlund
Hayes	L. G.	McLaughlin
Dishinger	C.	Petitt
Blumenstein	R. G.	Miller

Kroeger	R. E.	Sandstrom
Snell	Q. B.	Fulton
Allender	L. H.	Suter
Poole	R. H.	Rafferty
Ames	F. B.	Ubl

Score by periods:

Iowa State	7	0	0	0—7
Drake	0	0	0	7—7

Scoring: Iowa State—Touchdown, Rushmore. Point after touchdown—Poole (placement).
Drake—Touchdown, Rafferty. Point after touchdown, Ubl (place kick).

The Landowner Problem.

NOW that the hunting season is at its height many newly painted "Keep Out" signs along highways and "No Trespassing" notices in the rural newspapers are reminders that the sportsman-landowner problem has never been solved in Missouri.

The State's laws recognize game and fish to be the property of the commonwealth with the title vested in the people and belonging to no one until legally reduced to possession.

"Posting" of land does not convey to the landowner special rights to game on his land, it is pointed out, but it does give him a decided advantage over the hunting field.

Therefore, the wise hunter is one who cultivates the friendship of the landowner and does not in any way abuse the right to hunt over privately owned lands when he receives permission to enter.

Exceeding the Limit Costly.

Joe E. Green, chief of wardens for the Missouri State Game and Fish Department, last week produced such strong evidence that the state's bobwhite quail season which opened last Sunday was furnishing good shooting that two hunters face a circuit court trial that promises to cost them upwards of $300 for their over zealousness. Their exceeding the legal bag limit by 38 birds has already resulted not only in their arrest but confiscation of game, automatic shot guns, motor car and registered pointers.

The daily legal bag limit is 10 birds with no more than 15 birds in possession at any time.

Although this Howard County case was the only one of its kind to reach the ears of the conservation officials, hunters generally are reporting a satisfactory quail shooting season. Many of them believe it is better now than at any time in the last three years while a few hunters still bemoan the shortage of quail over a 10-year period.

Weather conditions have not yet been satisfactory for peak performance by the dogs but most hunters, adequately equipped with good dogs and guns, have at least tasted quail this season.

Don't Store Game Birds.

With the season now under way game officials are warning sportsmen that they must not store game birds in a commercial establishment under penalty of a severe fine.

Section 8285 of the State's game code provides that "Any person, firm or corporation, who shall, at any time of the year, barter, sell or offer for sale, or who shall store or serve in any commission house, cold storage house or commercial establishment in this State, either under the name or guise whatever, any bird or birds protected in this article, unless the same shall be fur-bearing animals lawfully taken, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100 and an additional fine of $5 for every bird or animal bartered, sold or offered for sale, stored or served."

Outdoor Briefs.

Despite wet fields quail hunters are helping to swell revenues. License sales have increased considerably this month, County Clerks report, because of the quail season opening and the advent of the trapping and fur-bearer hunting season. The increase is the largest since the opening of the spring fishing season.

Deer tags returned to the Game and Fish Department from the recent three-day open season now total 103. This does not include some 40 killed on private lands and illegal deer found estimated at 20.

The Federal migratory game regulations provide that crippled birds may be pursued to any distance and shot and retrieved, but such shooting beyond the 100-foot distance (as specified in the regulations as the limit or distance from shore line for shooting) must be confined to cripples.

Numerous reports of eagles being shot and mounted for display purposes have reached the Game and Fish Department. Under the State regulations the eagle is classified as non-game but no open season is provided. State regulations prohibit the killing of any wild bird classified as non-game except the English or house sparrow, blackbird, crow, sharp-shinned hawk, Coopers hawk, Goshawk and great horned owl. The Federal laws as well protect the eagle and it is unlawful to kill the bird which is used on national emblems and many coins.

The open season on squirrel closes Nov. 30 and the 31-day season on wild turkey opens Dec. 1. Only a few species, such as pheasants, prairie chickens and beaver are off the legal list completely.

Reports received from a recent state-wide game survey indicate cotton-tail rabbits have suffered in the State because of the wet spring. To protect the future supply of this most common of hunted animals hunters should use discretion this year killing no more than they need for table use.

Duck hunters have been asked by the U. S. Biological Survey to examine all ducks killed to ascertain whether or not they are banded. It is important to know more about the waterfowl at this particular time than at any time heretofore.

Since the Migratory Bird Treaty Act was passed the swans in this country have increased materially. Newspaper and ornothological reports show that they are appearing in sections where they have been absent for years. Many hunters who think of swans only as white are apt to kill young swans or cygnets. The yearling swan is a deep lead color and its bill is a light pink.

Collinsville and E. St. Louis Win East Side Games

East St. Louis and Collinsville remain tied for third place in the Madison-St. Clair Conference football race by virtue of their victories in yesterday's play. East St. Louis managed to win out over Granite City's Happy Warriors, 6 to 0, while Collinsville bested Wood River, 31 to 0.

Collinsville led at the half, 12 to 0.

In the second quarter East St. Louis scored the lone touchdown. After two passes and an end run the victors placed the ball on the two-yard line and Bobby Stephans plunged over for the touchdown.

Granite City had one more first down than East St. Louis, which totaled five. Granite City's weak point proved their passing offense. Trying 15 passes they completed but one and had four intercepted. East St. Louis tried eight, completed three and had only one intercepted. Penalties had the victors charged with 20 yards and Granite City with five.

Phil A. Riley, one o the prime movers in the new club is nominal head with the titl "business manager-treasurer." Bil Lehman, right fullback on th team, is team manager; Alec Mc Nab, captain and outside righ forward, is the coach and will di rect the team both in training an on the field. Andy Fredrick is sec retary.

Every player but one on the Shamrock club has assisted in winning the national soccer championship for St. Louis. The lone exception is Goaltender Sam Dueker, and he is regarded by players and fans as quite equal to any goal guardian in the country.

This Shamrock club has greater championship possibilities than any club that has represented this city in years. It is a stronger team than that which won the national title for the past three seasons and the management promises to quickly correct any weakness that may develop. Like any other professional sports venture, the club must depend for its success upon ability to win. If it can start off with a victory today and go right on winning it will undoubtedly be well supported. It will enter the national challenge cup competition but engage in no cup game until after the turn of the new year.

Every man in the Shamrock roster is a first rank player but some of them are of the super-star class, including Billy Gonsalves, Bert Patenaude and Bill Watson.

The frequently voiced opinion that St. Louis soccer fans will give generous support to the higher grade of football, particularly that of intercity and national championship caliber, will receive something of a test this afternoon when the Shamrock Club opposes the Maccabees of Chicago at Sportsmans' Park.

In recent year St. Louis soccer followers have had rare glimpses of this intercity competition. They liked it immensely but it was not found practicable under the former local league setup to bring high class teams here very frequently. The recent withdrawal of the St. Louis Soccer Club (formerly the Centrals) from the St. Louis Soccer League was a result of this difficulty in arranging intercity matches. The professional league will continue in operation, playing its games at National Park, where a doubleheader is scheduled today.

Maccabees a Strong Club.

In booking this first game of what is expected to be a long series of intercity matches, the management of the Shamrocks sought the strongest competition Chicago had to offer. The Wieboldt Club (formerly the Bricklayers) has disbanded, but three of the outstanding stars of the team, Hugh Davidson, Bob Thompson and Clem Cuthbert, have lined up with the Maccabees. Davidson and Thompson starred for the Chicago All-Stars in the international match against the Scottish League stars last summer. The balance of the team is of about the same class, so it may be assumed the Shamrocks will have to be at top form to win.

The sponsors of the Shamrocks, a group of sportsmen who have advanced varying sums of money with no positive assurance that they will ever get their cash back, are supporting a somewhat daring experiment, for the attempt to operate an independent professional soccer club here has never before been attempted. Phil A. Riley, one of the prime movers in the new club, is nominal head with the title "business manager-treasurer." Bill Lehman, right fullback on the team, is team manager; Alec McNab, captain and outside right forward, is the coach and will direct the team both in training and on the field. Andy Fredrick is secretary.

Every player but one on the Shamrock club has assisted in winning the national soccer championship for St. Louis. The lone exception is Goaltender Sam Dueker, and he is regarded by players and fans as quite equal to any goal guardian in the country.

This Shamrock club has greater championship possibilities than any club that has represented this city in years. It is a stronger team than that which won the national title for the past three seasons and the management promises to quickly correct any weakness that may develop. The Passing Show.

ON Friday night the Weatherman
Was on his bad behavior,
So Cecil Muellerleile's clan
Was forced to bow to Xavier.
The Bills advance no alibi
For having thus been humbled
But doubtless had the ball been dry
Our boys would not have fumbled.

George Moriarty tells the world
He's through with series umping,
And having, langauge at him hurled,
And players on him jumping.
He says there isn't dough enough,
Though he would like to please 'em,
To hire him to do his stuff
And call 'em as he sees 'em.

Beginning Wednesday night we'll see
Some classy six-day biking;

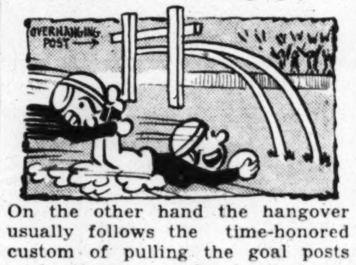
Some of the college football coaches think that moving the goal posts up to the goal line where they used to be would be a move in the right direction. Well, it's a good kicking point anyway.

Benny Friedman suggests that if they are afraid of being hurt they could construct overhanging posts.



On the other hand the hangover usually follows the time-honored custom of pulling the goal posts up by the roots and going to town.

Notre Dame Scores in Last Minute to Tie Army, 6-6

the subject of immediate controversy, lasting far into the night.

The opinion of press-box observers as well as the views of the capacity crowd of 80,000 were so sharply divided by partisanship, however, that the argument was as much of a deadlock as was the final score. The officials agreed there was no doubt as to interference, as they saw it, and that was that. As a matter of fact, it appeared the arbiters might have called Army interference, with more basis, on a pass just prior to the disputed one and on which Mike Layden was handled somewhat briskly in his vain effort to pull down the ball on the goal line.

Hoover Present.

Regardless of the controversial finish, the huge crowd, including former President Hoover among its host of notables, witnessed a thrilling renewal of this colorful intersectional rivalry with Army, a 1-to-2 shot beforehand, giving the favored green-shirted Ramblers a terrific battle all the way.

Led by the slim West Point-born halfback, Monk Meyer, the Cadets capitalized their one big scoring opportunity early in the game and then turned back repeated Notre Dame counter thrusts with a courageous, alert defense featuring the work of Capt. Bill Shuler, Tom Clifford at center and Grove, as well as the ubiquitous Meyer in the secondary line.

Notre Dame, alternating two complete teams throughout, five times penetrated Army's 30-yard line in the last three periods before getting official assistance to crash through. Up to that point, no Irish ball carrier succeeded in getting across the Cadet 20-yard stripe, so successfully did the soldiers check power plays or break up Shakespeare's passing thrusts. Twice Grove intercepted Irish aerials. Once a fumble was fatal to Notre Dame's advance.

On a fourth occasion the soldiers took the ball on downs on their own 26-yard line.

Meyer the Big Star.

Meyer, playing the entire game, came close to matching the great Shakespeare in frequent punting exchanges. The Army ace tossed the touchdown pass that Grove caught, five yards from the goal line, after getting beyond the Notre Dame secondary. Monk was held in check most of the afternoon, in his attempts to gain ground personally, but he electrified the crowd with a 49 yard dash to Notre Dame's 32-yard line in the final period.

This run, the longest and by far the most spectacular of the game, pulled the Army out of a hole and came close to settling the outcome of the game. But for a fine tackle from behind by Fred Carideo, Notre Dame fullback, Meyer might have continued his dash to the goal line. He punted out on Notre Dame's 15-yard line and it was from this point that the final Irish charge was launched.

Repeatedly, during Notre Dame's 85 yard parade to the tying touchdown it appeared the Irish would be stalled. Shakespeare whipped short passes to Fromhart or skipped the ends. Twice he completed passes that made first down on Army's 29-yard line. He came close to snagging another, on the goal line, before the critical toss that led to the score.

STANFORD'S RESERVES TRAMPLE MONTANA U.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 16.—Stanford substitutes held a "Roman Holiday" at the expense of the University of Montana football team today, winning 32 to 0.

Touchdowns were scored in every quarter. Stanford rolled up yardage in astounding amounts as they ripped the hard fighting but underpowered Montana line to shreds, sailed passes over the heads of the secondary defense men and intercepted passes with abandon.

Right half "Bones" Hamilton, who had not played for several weeks, was sent in briefly to get back into condition for California next Saturday.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN KEEPS RECORD CLEAR

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Nov. 16.—Texas Christian University kept its season record unblemished today by crushing the University of Texas 28 to 0. Sammy Baugh demoralized Texas with his brilliant passing. Texas speedy backs were stopped cold by a hard-charging Texas Christian line.

NAVY TRAMPLES COLUMBIA IN LAST HOME GAME

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16.—In a game played in a hard, cold rain, Navy's Sailors won their last home appearance of the season today, defeating Columbia's Lions, 28 to 7, before 13,000 spectators.

Navy started its third team. The Sailors, with Tom Edwards lugging the ball, moved 50 yards down to Columbia's 25-yard line in three plays. John Hudasky intercepted Edwards' pass to halt the advance. The Lions pushed to midfield as the first period ended scoreless.

After one threat had failed when Cole missed a try for field goal in the second period, Navy scored two touchdowns in rapid succession. The first, on a steady march from the Navy 35-yard line, came when Schmidt cut off tackle for 25 yards. A little later, Schmidt broke loose for 75 yards before he was thrown on Columbia's two-yard line. He went over for the score on the next play. Cole kicked both points to give the Tars a 14-0 lead at the half.

Navy's first drive of the third period went to the 20-yard line, but Fike's attempted placement for a field goal was wide. After Columbia kicked, Schmidt cut off tackle and raced 90 yards for a touchdown. Fike added the point and Navy led 21-0.

YALE WINDS UP ITS BREATHING SPELL WITH 55-0 VICTORY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—The Yale football team's "breathing spell" came to a close today as the entire Bulldog squad routed Lafayette 55 to 0 in the Bowl. Bernie Rankin and Tom Curtin each scored two touchdowns to lead the Yale attack.

A small gathering of 5000 persons, the smallest to watch a varsity game in the Blue's huge "saucer," yelled between shivers as the sons of Eli dashed up and down the gridiron recklessly to score eight times, mainly on long runs, to pile up Yale's heaviest score of the season.

The Bulldogs, after a two weeks' "rest" against minor competition, now face Harvard and Princeton on successive week-ends.

AMATEUR WRESTLING MEET WEDNESDAY

BURROUGHS "B" AND "C" TEAMS TRIM PRINCIPIA

The Burroughs "B" team defeated the Principia "B" yesterday at Taylor Field, 7 to 6.

Leland, plunged over for the only Burroughs score and added the extra point.

Principia scored early in the second quarter when Andrews hit off tackle from the Burroughs' 10-yard line. The try for the extra point failed.

The Burroughs "C" team won its fifth straight victory of the season when it defeated the Principia "C." 26 to 0.

Wrestler Must Hold to His Game, Boxer Same, In Mixed Match Tuesday

By Damon Kerby.

There has been pseudo-fighting in St. Louis wrestling rings these past five or six years without end, with most of it, despite its character outside the pale of legalized rules. Now the fighting will come out into the open here Tuesday night when a mixed match, between Wrestler Ray Steele and Boxer King Levinsky, will be fought at the Arena under the sanction of the Missouri State Athletic Commission.

Tom Packs, wrestling promoter, and Lew Raymond and Benny Greenberg, boxing promoters, have collaborated in putting on the mixed event and the supporting card of boxing and wrestling.

The General Idea.

The idea of the mixed match and boxing-wrestling program was first broached by the boxing promoters, seeking to make some money after their reported loss in promoting the Bob Olin-John Henry Lewis light-heavyweight championship fight here last month. Packs, who has a very good thing in his wrestling promotion, at first held back but later agreed to have a part in the enterprise. His ticket organization is handling the sale of pasteboards and he is listed as the promoter.

As has been published previously in the detailed rules of the mixed match, the event will go 10 rounds or less, with Levinsky wearing six-ounce boxing gloves. He will try for a knockout while Steele goes after a pinning hold. Steele must cause the Kingfish to give up, or pin his shoulders to the mat for a count of ten, to win.

Walter Heisner, St. Louis' leading fight referee, an official of unquestionable integrity, will be the third man.

The boxing end of the program will be run off first, featuring a bout between Moon Mullens of Vincennes, Ind., and Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., featherweight. The bout was first announced as a six-rounder, but was later moved up to eight.

Matthews in Feature.

Allen Matthews, St. Louis Negro middleweight, and Henry Palmieri, Cleveland 170-pounder, will meet at six rounds. The third boxing bout and the first on the program will be fought at six rounds between Joey Parks and Johnny Miles, local lightweights.

The four scheduled wrestling events will be limited to 30 minutes each, bringing together, in this order: Joe Dusek and Carl Hanson; Emil Dusek and Tiny Roebuck; Man Mountain Dean and Dick Daviscourt; Gus Sonnenberg and Chief Strongbow.

HELLRUNGS MEET MARRE CLUB IN SOCCER FEATURE

The tie for the lead in the St. Louis professional soccer league is likely to be continued today unless upsets mark the battling as the four teams engage in a doubleheader at National Softball Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal street.

The first battle, and the featured tilt on the card, sends the Marres into action against the Hellrungs at 2 o'clock. The Ben Millers take on the Spanish Sport Club in the nightcap.

Last Sunday, the Spaniards eked out a 1-0 victory over the Marres while the Hellrungs turned in a 3-0 win over the Millers.

During the past few days Manager Frankie Vaughan of the Millers has shifted his battle lineup to such a degree that he promises it will scarcely be recognized this afternoon. He is out to stop the unbeaten former Muny League aggregation of Spaniards.

Since joining the professional ranks this season, the Spaniards are unbeaten having won five games in addition to holding the National Champion St. Louis club to a draw.

NORTH CAROLINA TOPPLES UNDER DUKE'S DRIVE; SCORE IS 25-0

By the Associated Press.

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 16.—North Carolina's Rose Bowl aspirations were knocked higher than a kite today when a smart, well-coached Duke eleven climaxed a so-so season with a stunning 25 to 0 upset before nearly 47,000 rain-soaked spectators—the largest football gallery in Southern gridiron history. Duke's surprise victory also toppled the Tar Heels from the rapidly thinnig ranks of the nation's undefeated elevens.

Duke came up with a powerful running attack to score a touchdown in the second period, another in the third and then top off the rout with two markers in the fourth. North Carolina was completely outplayed in every department. The Tar Heels made 13 first downs to five, but could not make them count.

Duke obviously had been carefully groomed for its top game of the season. Coach Wallace Wade's big forwards stopped North Carolina's running attack cold and completely bottled up the vaunted forward passing combination of Don Jackson, the Tar Heels' All-America candidate, and Dick Buck, his running mate. Almost every time Jackson flung one of his long aerials, it seemed a couple of blue-jerseyed Dukes were on hand to break up the play.

Duke rode to two of its four touchdowns on intercepted passes from the usually accurate throwing ar mof Jackson. The others came as the results of gallops of 47 and 30 yards by Jule Ward of Galax, Va., and Clarence (Ace) Parker of Portsmouth, Va.

The best player on the field was this same Parker, Duke's hustling quarterback. He personally accounted for one touchdown, but he was here, there and everywhere, kicking, passing and running and altogether turning in one of the classiest exhibitions of quarterbacking Southern fans have seen in a good many years. Parker played 57 minutes.

PLACE KICK BY BREEDEN WINS FOR OKLAHOMA

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 16.—A placekick from the 13-yard line, slitting the uprights from a sharp angle, gave the University of Oklahoma a 3 to 0 victory over Kansas State here today in a Big Six Conference football game on a snow-framed, muddy field.

Bill Breeden, driving Sooner halfback, kicked the goal which brought a gloom matching the dreary day to 8500 fans who watched the mud-caked athletes skid around like peas on a platter in their futile efforts to make consistent progress by land.

Th lone scoring punch was the culmination of a drive started late in the first period, featured by a 13-yard pass, Breeden to Karey Fuqua, which carried the ball to the Kansas State seven-yard line.

Three smashing drives at the line brought but two yards as the second period opened. On fourth down Breeden dropped back to the 13-yard line to send a sodden ball tumbling between the goal posts with a kick which would have scored from twice the distance.

Kansas State never threatened seriously.

The game gave the Sooners undisputed possession of third place in the conference race, and wrecked Kansas State fans' hopes of seeing a touchdown scored this year. It was the third and last home game of the season, with the net results two field goals.

PENN, AT PEAK POWER, CRUSHES PENN STATE FOOTBALL TEAM, 33-6

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Pennsylvania's football machine got the monkey wrenches out of its works today for the first time this season and battered the highly rated Nittany Lions of Pennsylvania State College, 33 to 6.

Playing heads-up football throughout and finally uncovering a hitherto concealed power—both offensively and defensively, on the ground and in the air—the Quakers outfought, outcharged and outsmarted their traditional rivals from upstate for the entertainment of 40,000 fans in Franklin Field.

Marquette Drops From Unbeaten and Untied List When Temple Wins, 26-6

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Striking with terrific force in the first half, Temple's Owls outcharged and outfought Marquette's moleskinners today and dumped the Westerners from the ranks of the unbeaten and untied by the score of 26 to 6.

The Owls struck once in the first quarter, twice in the second and once again in the fourth.

Marquette, striving for its seventh consecutive victory, after triumphs over such formidable teams as Michigan State, Iowa State and Kansas State, was completely outclassed except for a brief spell in the third quarter, when the Golden Avalanche's famous aerial attack clicked for the first and only time. The invaders went 87 yards through the air for their lone tally.

While Temple's ace ball carrier, Dave Smukler, warmed a seat on the bench owing to an injured leg, his junior understudy, Johnny Kusko, turned in the most brilliant individual performance of the day. The 186-pound substitute fullback accounted for almost half of Temple's 333 yards gained by rushing.

Vince Renzo got away for several sizeable runs, twisting and bobbing to shake loose from the grips of Marquette tacklers. In the first period he took a punt and raced 55 yards to cross the goal line, but the play was disallowed and Temple was penalized for being offside.

NORMANDY DEFEATS WEBSTER HIGH, 12-0

It was a case of too many Aussiekers for Webster High School yesterday. The hard-plunging Mel Aussieker, who plays fullback, helped Normandy to score twice to defeat Webster, 12 to 0, on the Webster field in a high school football game.

Mel Aussieker and Brother Elmer, who plays an end, figured prominently in the Vikings' victory. In the first quarter, Mel carried the ball to Webster's four-yard line, from where Jimmy Webster plunged over for a touchdown. The try for the extra point on a plunge failed.

In the third period Mel Aussieker started a one-man drive that carried Normandy from its own 13-yard line to the Webster four-yard line where the march was halted. Mel finally managed to go over in the final period when he plunged through center from Webster's one-yard line. The extra point was not converted.

WESTERN DEFEATS COUNTRY DAY, 16-7

Western Military Academy closed its "A B C" League football season yesterday afternoon by defeating Principia Academy, 16 to 7, at Alton.

The Cadets scored in the first quarter after a steady advance down the field. Ringer, fullback, booted a perfect place kick from the 20-yard line over the cross-bar for three points.

Western scored its first touchdown in the third quarter. The Cadets received the kick-off, with Tschannen returning the ball to midfield. Ringer then took the ball from center, shot a short forward pass to Willey, end, who in turn lateralled to Tschannen, quarterback. Tschannen galloped 52 yards for a score. Ringer's place-kick for the extra point was low.

Principia rallied to cross the Western goal line in three plays. Principia ran the kick-off to midfield. Two long forward passes, Ruf to Oakes, and Ruf to Appel, placed the ball on the Cadet 10-yard mark. Rosenthal then pushed a short pass over center to Ruf, who ran for the touchdown. Rosenthal's place-kick added the extra point.

Western clinched the victory in the closing moments of the contest. Humphreys, W. M. A. center, blocked and recovered a Principia punt on the 15-yard line. Ringer dashed over tackle for a first down on the four-yard line. Ringer sliced off tackle for the touchdown and added the extra point by a place-kick.

In the morning games the Western "B" team won the championship in that division of the "A B C" League by holding the Country Day "B" to a scoreless tie. However, the Codasco "C" eleven eked out a victory over W. M. A., 2 to 0.

COLGATE DROPS SYRACUSE FROM UNBEATEN RANK

By the Associated Press.

ARCHBOLD STADIUM, Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Syracuse's dreams of a place in the 1935 national football firmament lay trampled tonight in the sod of old Archbold Stadium.

Thrice-beaten Colgate, unloosing all its pent up fury, crushed the hard fighting but woefully outclassed Orange machine, 27 to 0, in their thirty-seventh meeting today, and rudely shattered its time-honored rival's hopes of an undefeated season.

The victory of canny Andy Kerr's magicians from the Chenango Valley, before a sellout crowd of 35,000, also extended to 11 years the domination of the Maroon over the larger central New York school, for not since 1924 has Syracuse triumphed over Colgate.

Colgate was complete master throughout the 60 minutes of play, moving through the air and on the ground to punch over a touchdown in the first period, two more in the third and another in the fourth. At no time did Syracuse become threatening.

So thorough was Colgate's mastery over Coach Vic Hanson's less experienced aggregation that the Maroon rolled up 18 first downs to Syracuse's five, and gained 245 yards on the ground to its opponents were 48.

In the air, Colgate advanced 113 yards against Syracuse's 46.

ATWOOD AND RUSSE STAR AS COUNTRY DAY DEFEATS CLAYTON, 20-12

Country Day defeated Clayton, 20 to 12, yesterday afternoon at Country Day in a high school football game.

Three minutes after the game had started, Duncan, Country Day back, hit off tackle from the Clayton 10-yard line for the first score of the game. A pass, Woolsey to Duncan, netted the extra point.

In the second quarter a pass, Baker, Atwood to Mingle, placed the ball on the Clayton five-yard line, from where Russe, Country Day back, plunged off tackle for a score. The try for the extra point failed.

In the third quarter a Country Day pass was intercepted by Harvey, who ran 70 yards for a touchdown. The attempt for the extra point failed.

In the fourth quarter Russe smashed off tackle for 27 yards to place the ball on the Clayton 12-yard line. On the next play he received a pass from Atwood and ran for a touchdown. A pass, Atwood to Rombauer, scored the extra point.

A 40-yard pass from Elbring to Scheaffer netted Clayton's last score.

The lineup:

COUNTRY DAY.	Pos.	CLAYTON.
Noland	R. E.	Wike
Schultz	R. T.	Withington
Miesner	R. G.	Davis
Ferris	C.	Ebitz
Elmar	L. G.	Francis

Lindsey	L. E.	Curtis
Rombauer	Q. B.	Elbring
Woolsey	R. H.	Scheaffer
Duncan	L. H.	Cambell
Mingle	F. B.	Harvey

Officials: Pothoff, referee; Muhl, umpire; Hobson, linesman.

Score by quarters:

Country Day — —	7	6	0	7—20
Clayton — — —	0	0	6	6—12

Touchdowns: Country Day—Duncan, Ausse (2). Clayton—Harvey, Scheaffer.

Point after touchdown: Country Day—Duncan, Rombauer.

Substitutions: County Day — Atwood, Russe. Clayton—Falzone, Drockleman.

VANDERBILT BEATS TENNESSEE FIRST TIME IN 9 YEARS

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 16.—Led by the flaming spirit and sensational performance of Capt. Willie Geny, the Vanderbilt Commodores today defeated the University of Tennessee, 13 to 7, for the first time in nine years, before a crowd of 15,000.

Unmindful of the sloshy mud and the drizzling rain that fell during part of the game, Geny paced his mates to a dazzling triumph, scoring both touchdowns himself and shining in all departments of the game.

Thompson Will Start in Midget Races at Ramona

Tommy Thompson, local auto racing star, better known as a big car driver, will venture into the midget auto racing game this afternoon when he competes in Ray Moran's second midget auto card at Ramona Speedway, Carson road north of Natural Bridge, weather permitting.

The program starts promptly at 2 o'clock with the time trials set for this morning. Included in the races are five five-lap preliminary runs, one 10-lap consolation and a 15-lap handicap race. Following these events, Promoter Moran will stage a special feature, in which the drivers will use regular stock model cars in a speed test of accelerating and stopping cars, as well as race against time around the oval. The 25-lap championship race will conclude the afternoon's performance.

Eighteen local drivers are entered in addition to those from out of town,

Princeton Wins Seventh in Row

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16.—The powerful Princeton football team took Lehigh's Engineers in stride today, winning 27 to 0 for its seventh straight triumph of the season. About 15,000 persons braved the bitter cold weather to see the Tiger score its thirty-third triumph in the 37-game series.

CALIFORNIA BEARS FIND ALONZO STAGG'S TEAM EASY VICTIM

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 16.—California marched to the threshhold of an undefeated, untied football season here today, pushing Amos Stagg's little College of the Pacific eleven from its path, 39 to 0, in a non-conference game.

The Pacific Bengals gave 20,000 fans plenty of action, but they were unable to stop the Golden Bears, who close their regular season at Palo Alto next Saturday against Stanford University.

California rooters were pleased by the brilliant performance of George Cornell, triple threat sophomore left half. Playing his first game since a broken hand forced him to the bench at the start of the season, Cornell put on a fine display of open field running to score four of the Bears' touchdowns.

DONALDSON COURT REALTY BOUGHT BY SAM KOPLAR

Delmar and Westgate Properties Comprise a Three-Story Group of Buildings of Colonial Type.

$200,000 WAS PAID, REPORT SAYS

Real Estate Acquired From Group of Bondholders, Transaction Purported as Cash Deal.

By Berry Moore

The Donaldson Court building at the northwest corner of Delmar boulevard and Westgate avenue, occupying practically an entire block in the business section of University City, has been acquired by the Eureka Real Estate & Investment Co., a holding company of Samuel M. Koplar, vice-president of the Con Ferro Paint & Varnish Co.

While not announced, the reported purchase price was $200,000—conspicuously lower than the original cost of the buildings and site. There were, however, only $185 in revenue stamps on the deed, indicating a consideration of $185,000. Negotiations were handled by Arnold Maremount, secretary of the Henry R. Weisels Co., together with Saul A. Dubinsky, vice-president of the Dubinsky Realty Co., of which Frank Dubinsky is president.

A group of bondholders, composed of Chester R. Davis, Murray Wolbach and James B. McCahy of Chicago, was the seller.

Group of Three-Story Buildings.

The block consists of a group of three-story concrete fireproof buildings, Colonial in design. There are six units on the Delmar front containing 11 stories and 24 three-room apartments. Two buildings on Westgate comprise 33 apartments. There is a 100-car garage at the southeast corner of Enright avenue and the Kirkwood-Ferguson street car tracks. The site has a frontage of 200 feet on Delmar, 289 feet on Westgate, 168 feet on Enright and 279 feet on Melville avenue (right-of-way of the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line).

The premises include a central heating plant, installed by the builder at a large expenditure.

The purchase was made as a speculative investment, predicated primarily on the Delmar frontage, which gives the block a commercial status. Modernization of the store fronts and interior improvements to the premises are contemplated. Prices prevailing for ground on this stretch of Delmar boulevard in University City prior to the depression rivaled those on central Grand boulevard and in sections of downtown St. Louis.

The group of buildings was promoted in 1923 by Charles W. Donaldson. The project was financed by Greenbaum Sons' Investment Co. which underwrote a bond issue for $630,000, secured by a first mortgage on the property. The bonds were sold to the public. In 1932 a bondholders' committee foreclosed the property under the mortgage which had been reduced to $475,000 by retirement of the bonds as they matured. No interest had been paid since 1929.

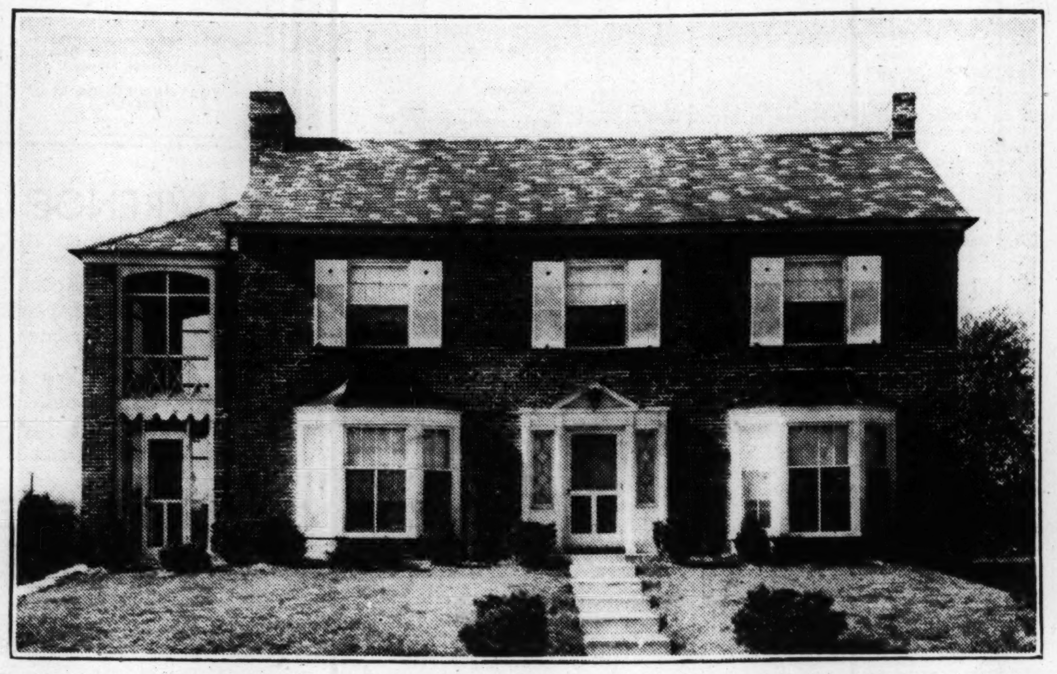
Bought In For $150,000.

The property was bought in by the the committee, said to represent 95 per cent of the bondholders, for $150,000.

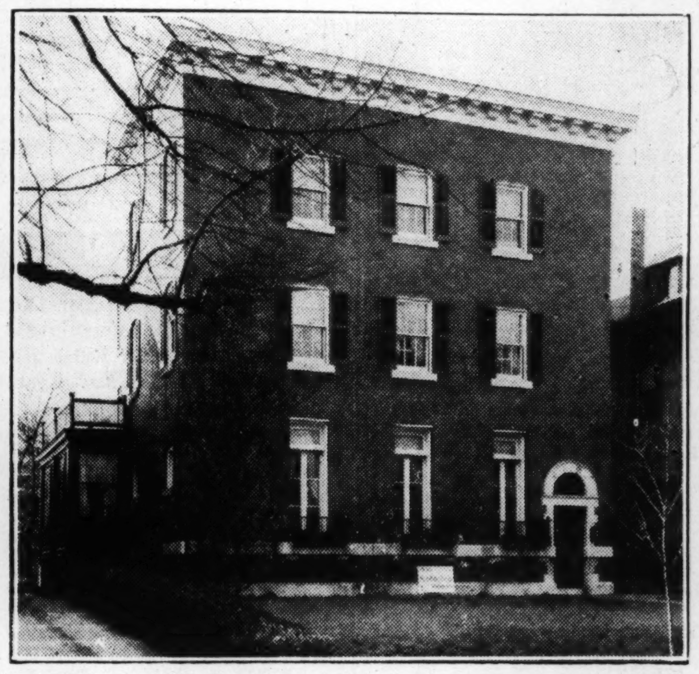
The four-story fireproof Delmar Garden building, at the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Kingsland avenue was acquired several months ago by the Sidney Real Estate Company, a holding company of which Sidney M. Shoenberg is president, through the Henry R. Weisels Company. Facing Delmar, Kingsland and Enright, the building forms one of the most attractive blocks in the business section of University City. It comprises seven stores, 12 offices and 24 apartments, 100 per cent occupied. Management is under the Henry R. Weisels Company.

Another purchase was that by Mrs. Ira E. Wright of the southwest corner of Delmar and Skinker boulevard through the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Company. The site, having a large frontage on both streets, is improved with a two-story business building containing stores, offices and apartments. The store fronts of this building are now being modernized.

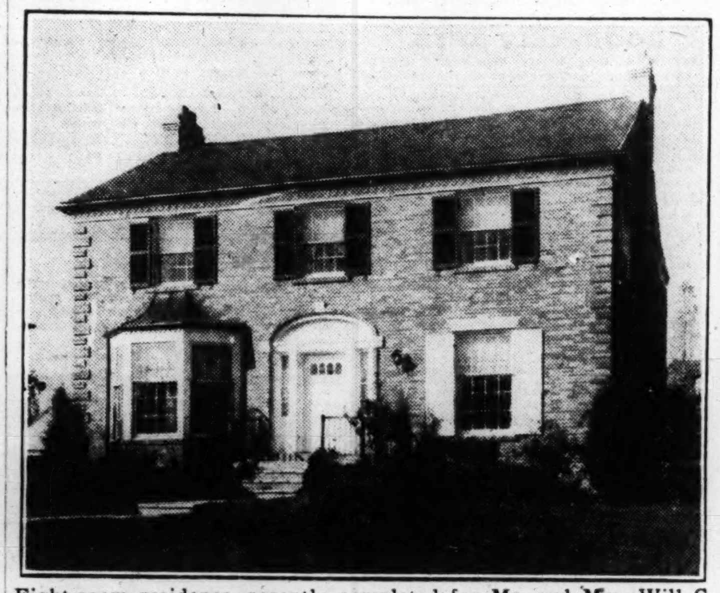
University City Block and Residences Figuring in Week's Transactions



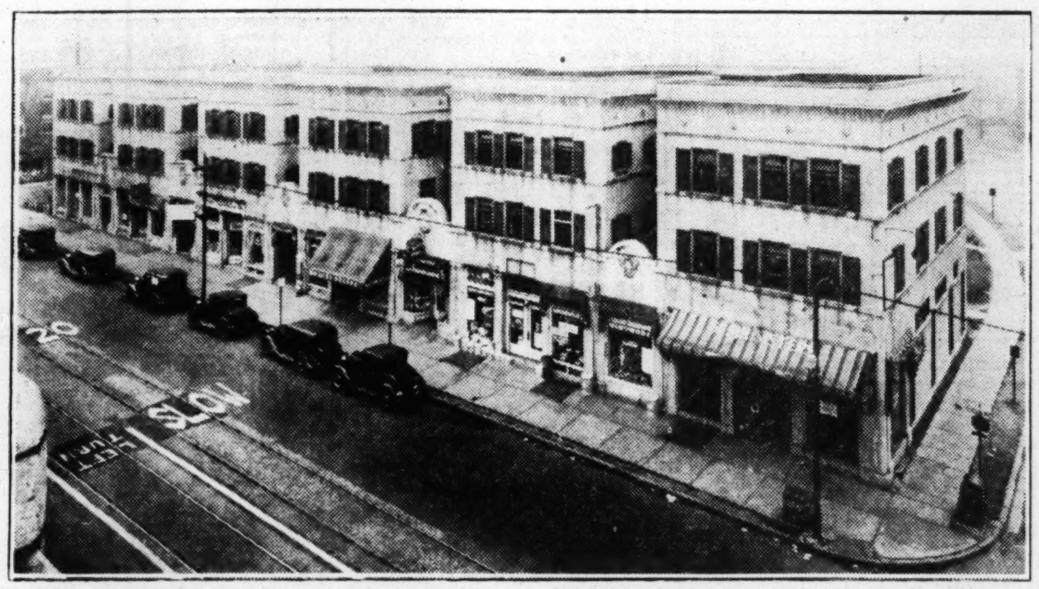
Residence at 815 South Bemiston avenue in Davis place at the northwest corner of Hanley and Clayton roads, acquired by Albert M. Schmelzle, through Shaw and Francis, Inc. The Pasquer Building Company was the builder.



Residence at 4930 Pershing avenue recently acquired by W. C. Houser, second vice-president and treasurer of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The former owners were Miss Carlta and William D. Glasgow. Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.



Eight-room residence, recently completed for Mr. and Mrs. Will C. Wissmath at 59 Broadview drive, Clayton. Best Building Company was the builder.



Delmar boulevard front of block at the northwest corner of West Gate avenue, University City, acquired by the Eureka Real Estate and Investment Co., of which Samuel M. Koplar is president. The transaction was handled by Arnold H. Maremont, secretary of the Henry R. Weisels Company and Saul A. Dubinsky, vice-president of the Dubinsky Realty Company.

THREE STOREROOMS ON EASTON AVENUE LEASED

The Edward Glik Co. reports closing four commercial leases, as follows:

Storeroom at 5903 Southwest avenue for Gilbert Spieldoch to Adam J. Stein for a grocery and meat market. Building at 5930 Easton avenue to Paul Jennings for Samuel Fixman and Sidney Langsam for a tavern. Storeroom, 5939 Easton avenue, to the Madeira Art Shop for the Lee Gold Realty & Holding Co.

Clemens Avenue House Sold.

The eight-room residence at 5858 Clemens avenue, owned by Charles W. Tooker, has been purchased by Mrs. Rhea MacAdams. Miss Jane Epstein of the Arthur Goldman Realty Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

BALLAS ROAD TRACT SOLD FOR RESIDENCES

Four Acres, North of Conway, Changes Hands in Conjunction With Recent Purchase.

The Samuels Investment, a holding company of William Lewin, has purchased a five-acre tract on the east side of Ballas road, approximately 500 feet north of the Conway road, owned by Sanford J. Bernheimer. It has frontage of 273 feet on Ballas, by a depth of 800 feet. Albert T. Terry, Son & Co. handled the transaction.

Several weeks ago the Samuels Investment Co. acquired a tract of 20 acres on the north side of Conway road, 900 east of the Ballas road. Lying on its east is the Westwood Country Club. This tract has a frontage on Conway of 1000 feet, with a depth of 1300 feet.

Plans of the purchaser contemplate the erection of several handsome residences, to be grouped for occupancy by members of the Levine family.

Bernheimer's residence stands on an adjoining five-acre tract on Ballas. He is building three residences on the northern three acres of this tract at an estimated cost of $20,000 each, including the value of the ground.

EXCHANGE OFFICERS SLATE COMPLETE

President and Six Directors of Realty Board to Be Chosen Tuesday.

Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., and a director of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, will be named president of the realty board at its annual meeting next Tuesday. Six directors also are to be chosen.

Willmore has been nominated for the presidency without opposition, which is equivalent to election. The six candidates for places on the Board of Directors are also unopposed. They are Fred C. Breitt, president, Breitt & Naumer Real Estate Co.; Ray R. Dolan, president, John P. Dolan Realty Co.; Arthur C. Hoehn, vice-president, Henry R. Weisels Co., Inc.; Edward L. Kuhs, president, Edward L. Kuhs Realty Co.; Herman A. O'Rourke, president, H. A. O'Rourke, Inc., and Alfred D. Ruth, president, Julius Haller Realty Co.

All the directors, with the exception of Fred C. Breitt, are now on the board. Breitt succeeds Clifford E. Drozda, vice-president and treasurer of the William S. Drozda Realty Co., who did not seek re-election.

The term of the presidency is for a period of one year and that of director is for two years.

MRS. S. W. MARTEN WITH ALTHEIMER-WILLIAMS, CALMER

Mrs. Spencer Wood Morten has become associated with the firm of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer, Inc., realtors.

Mrs. Morten will be active in leasing and selling of residential properties, as well as county acreage and country estates.

PASADENA PARK DEVELOPMENT IN A NEW PROGRAM

Plans Contemplate Erection of Five and Seven Room Residences of Colonial and English Design.

In connection with extensive building plans, George N. McDonald has acquired the remaining unsold ground, comprising approximately 61 lots, in Pasadena Park, off Florissant road and north of Natural Bridge road, in Normandy. It was a holding of the Farm & Home Savings & Loan Association of Missouri. McDonald was exclusive agent for the sale of the property. While not announced, the price realized, it is understood, was close to $100,000.

The lots have a frontage ranging from 50 to 100 feet, or an aggregate of 3801 feet. The purchaser is taking bids for the erection of five and seven room houses of Colonial and English design involving an aggregate estimated cost of $500,000. The buildings, constructed of brick or stone, will contain the newest features. There will be tile kitchens with modern cabinets and specifications prescribe metal weather strips. Plans are being made by Klingesmith & Grove, architects.

The homes will be available on liberal terms, with only a relatively small initial cash payment required. It is understood the requisite capital has been pledged by institutions with large resources, under an amortized plan. Work on five of the proposed buildings is scheduled to start forthwith.

172 Houses in Addition.

Approximately 172 houses have been built in the addition by professional builders or resident owners, exclusive of four now nearing completion. McDonald effected the sale of 88 of these buildings during the last 13 months. The plat comprises 233 lots, including those involved in the present transactions.

The addition has macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks and sewer and water mains of the highest order. Several acres in this section have been reserved for a public school building.

Grouped in the Normandy area are the Glen Echo, Bellerive and Norwood Country Clubs, pointed to as constituting an attractive feature.

A syndicate formed by Carl G. Stifel, president of the Carl G. Stifel Building Co., early in 1934, purchased the remaining unsold lots and other holdings in Pasadena Hills of the Pasadena Realty Co., a holding corporation. This tract comprises 129 acres lying north of

DICKMANN COMPANY MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

The Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., yesterday moved to new quarters, comprising the two-story building at 805 Chestnut street.

A long lease has been taken on the building, originally built as quarters for the Franciscus Realty Co., dissolved two years ago. The premises have been reappointed and equipped on a handsome scale.

The concern was established 21 years ago by the late Joseph F. Dickmann once Sheriff of St. Louis. Otto J. Dickmann is president of the company, having succeeded his brother, Bernard F. Dickmann, in the capacity in 1933 when the latter was elected Mayor of St. Louis.

COMING HOUSING BOOM IS CAPITAL THEME JUST NOW

Expected to Center in Residential Field — Doubts as to Commercial Building Increasing Noticeably

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16. — Predictions of a home building boom have become almost a chorus in Federal quarters.

Peter Grimm, co-ordinator of Federal housing activities, and Stewart McDonald, head of the Federal housing administration, have added their prophecies to the bullish building talk current in the capital.

Their forecasts have been echoed in the more matter-of-fact statistical agencies of the Government, working with charts and figures on the trends of rents, vacancies, foreclosures and so on.

The concensus among Government housing experts seems to be that residential building, on a continuation of the 1935 trend, should approximately double next year, then approach boom dimensions in 1937.

Estimates of the idle in construction and allied industries, based on their workers in 1929, range up to 2,000,000.

With the major part of the emergency work of the RFC, HOLC, and other Federal relief agencies described as completed, housing officials are hopeful that surplus bank funds would flow into real estate in substantial volume and that lending rates in consequence would fall sufficiently to attract new borrowers.

The bureau of agricultural economics, appraising the 1936 outlook, says residential construction gains of as much as 100 per cent above the 1935 figure, are expected to dominate building activity.

"Housing rentals," it adds, "became fairly stable in 1935 after declining almost continuously the last 10 years and in many cities have turned upward.

"Labor and material costs remain relatively high, but reductions in financing costs already in effect and in prospect, together with more liberal terms of payment, will tend to reduce payments on homes and may be a factor in stimulating building.

"It is doubtful whether construction of commercial buildings will increase materially in 1936. Office structures, in particular, were overbuilt during the decade of the '20s.

"However, plant modernization may increase more rapidly than new construction."

Noting that residential construction this year probably would be double that of 1934, with prospect of another 100 per cent gain next year, the Department of Commerce's lumber survey committee reported appreciable expansion in rural construction as result of improvement in farm income.

It points out that home construction, even with a further doubling of the preceding year's total in 1936, would only about equal the 1930 level and approximate 40 per cent of what many regard as "normal."

The uptrend in rentals appears to have picked up momentum. One index recorded by the Department of Commerce jumped from 70.5 per cent of the 1923 average in July to 71.5 in August and 72.1 in September. Previously it had been ascending steadily but at a crawling pace.

SALES OF BUNGALOWS RECENTLY CONSTRUCTED

The John C. Greulich Realty & Investment Co. reported the following sales during the past few weeks:

Eight-room residence in Parkview at 337 Westgate avenue from Martha T. Hoffmeyer to Elie L. Mathis; a six-room brick residence at 4330 Strodtman place to John A. Mues for Marie McFarland; a four-room frame cottage with 50-foot lot at 5352 Union boulevard to Joseph Colletta for Francis McGunnigle; 4408 Cottage avenue from Sylvester Johnson to a client; a five-six room single flat at 4028 Lexington avenue to Frank Mollenbrock; a three-three room single flat at 3001 North Jefferson avenue to James Bugala; a five-room bungalow at 8604 Trafford lane to William Brockschmidt.

The company also reports the sale of 11 new bungalows built this summer and fall in its Inglesyde subdivision north of Florissant avenue between Kingshighway and Goodfellow, including the following: Modern air-conditioned bungalow at 8627 Park lane to Christ Harig; five-room brick and garage at 8606 Park lane to W. A. Turner; 8600 Park lane to F. J. McGunnigle, being new five-room bungalow.

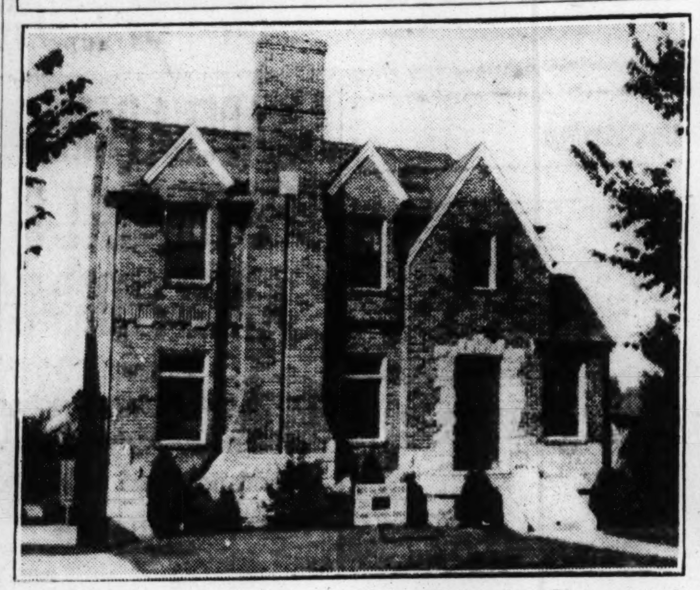
MILLER COMPANY LEASES QUARTERS ON NORTH SIXTH

The Miller Paint & Wallpaper Co. has closed a long-term lease on the four-story building at the northwest corner of Sixth street and Delmar boulevard.

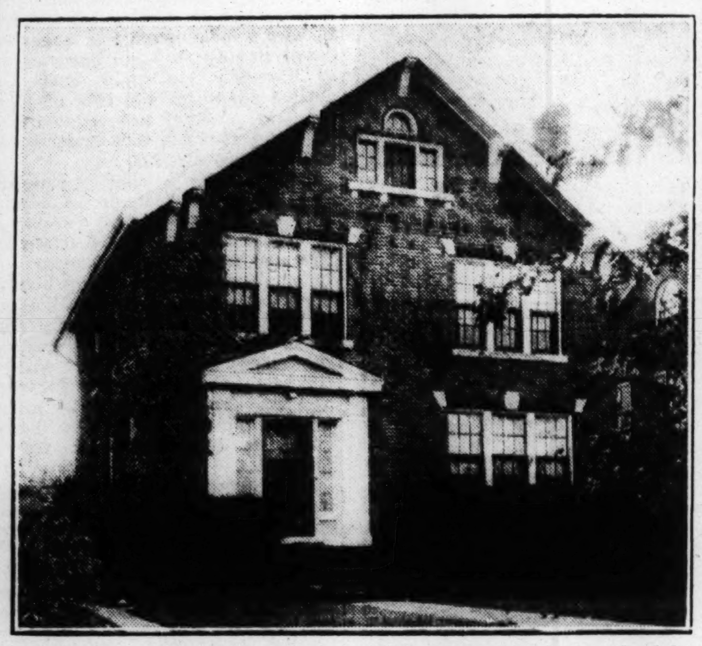
The building has a frontage of 50 feet on Sixth, with a depth of 100 feet on Delmar, to the north and south alley of the block.

The Miller company will occupy the premises as soon as extensive alterations now under way, are completed. Oliver H. Miller is president of the company. The lease was arranged by Cornet & Zeibig Real Estate Co.

Homes Recently Acquired



New residence at 7357 Colgate avenue, University City, recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Carmichael from Sam Rich, builder. Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Company, Inc., represented both parties.



Residence at 38 Aberdeen place in Hillcrest, recently acquired by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Tucker, represented by Arthur Goldman Realty Company. Francis H. Kennedy as salesmanager of the Henry Hiemenz Realty Company acted for the seller.

PASADENA PARK DEVELOPMENT IN A NEW PROGRAM

the Natural Bridge road and west of the Lucas and Hunt road. It has winding streets and a lake. It adjoins Pasadena Park on the north.

Pasadena Hills is being developed at a rate looking to its early absorption by home-seekers. More than 150 houses have been erected in this addition.

Four residences, financed by George J. Wanstrath, realtor, with offices at 715 Chestnut street, were recently completed. These houses range in cost from $14,000 to $18,000. Erected at a cost of $30,000, Wanstrath's residence at 3959 Roland boulevard, is one of the handsomest in Pasadena Hills. The brick garage is designed to conform with the house. A rock garden is an attractive feature of the premises.

Natural Bridge boulevard, 100 feet wide, has a hook up with North Twelfth boulevard, which renders the Normandy section easily accessible from the downtown district.

RESIDENCES AND FARMS SOLD IN OCTOBER BY FIRM

Pape & Co. of 4139 South Grand boulevard, reports a partial list of sales for the month of October:

Hill; single flat at 4559 Athlone avenue, for Joe Broniste; store and flat, 4100 Juniata street, for Leo A. Saneke; bungalow inn, filling station, cafe and tourist camp at Festus, Mo., for James Torrence; 40-acre improved farm at Victoria, Mo., for Matt Baumann; five acres with bungalow at Arnold, Mo., for Earl Phillips; 40-acre improved farm, Jefferson County, for George A. and Mary A. Stillman; 80-acre improved farm at Hillsboro, Mo., for John Latsch; 77-acre improved farm near Doe Run, Mo., for Henry Saak; 80-acre improved farm in Franklin County to Theodore S. Heinz; 160-acre farm, Jefferson County, to Daniel Balch; two 50-ft. lots in Elenor subdivision for Otto Haring; 60-acre improved farm, St. Charles County, to Leland Hackman.

LOAN ASSOCIATION ELECTS TWO NEW DIRECTORS

Two new directors have been elected to the board of the University City Federal Savings and Loan Association—B. W. La Tourette, attorney, Mayor of Richmond Heights, and Harry J. Shelton, president of the Gruendler Crusher and Pulverizer Co. Shelton is a resident of University City. The University City Federal will complete its second year in February. Alfred W. Pauley is president and Franklyn E. Meyer, secretary and treasurer.

L. Lemelius Joins Dolan Concern.

Louis Lemelius has become a member of the John P. Dolan sales organization, headed by Howard S. Bergen. Lemelius has had broad experience as a real estate salesman in both the city and the county. Bergen reports having closed 30 sales within the last month.

SIX RESIDENCES, FLATS AND VACANT GROUND, SOLD

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. reports the following sales: No. 4138 Fairview avenue, new 6-room bungalow for the Schneider Realty & Building Co., to Sylvester J. Fults; 3855 Bingham avenue, 5-room bungalow, sold for Lucille Meyer to Richard Avetta; 3931 Michigan avenue, cottage for the Weise estate to Frank L. Jenna; 3406 South Broadway, single flat to Carl Hansman; 50 feet on the west line of Wagner place, for Richard M. Schweer to Grace S. DEER CREEK VILLAGE

IT IS a white brick house on Litzsinger road; it is surrounded by woods and fields, truly unspoiled countryside, far from the smoke pall, yet only 30 minutes by motor from the heart of St. Louis. It can be purchased for $8000 with a small down payment. Lot 100 by 175. Gas, electricity, water. A step from a school. Here's a chance to acquire a home in a delightful section of St. Louis County and also to safeguard yourself from the inflation that is surely coming and, in fact, is already showing itself in the form of higher rents and increasing land values. No idle shoppers need apply. House may be inspected only by written application to Box W-193, P.-D.

Real Estate Values Are Steadily Forging Ahead!

and, fortunately, a few exceptional homes are still available at a low price, in

LAKE FOREST

The Distinguished Residential Community on CLAYTON and HANLEY ROADS

We picture No. Thirty-nine, Lake Forest, a beautiful 11-room house built to be lived in. On the first floor is a spacious Living Room with fireplace, Dining Room, Library, tiled Kitchen, screened Sun Room, and terrazzo floors. On the second floor are 4 master bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 maids' rooms and bath. A two-car garage is attached. No. 39 is air conditioned and is ideally situated on a smartly landscaped plot of natural beauty. See it today!

Building activities everywhere show a returning confidence in real estate investments. But the alacrity with which home-seekers are accepting Lake Forest is indicative of the superiority of the homes offered. This highly restricted community combines everything a discriminating family desires in a home. It has a mature, natural beauty that is unparalleled. The location is excellent . . . convenient to schools, churches, stores, transportation and is but 20 minutes from downtown. The homes in Lake Forest are designed by distinguished architects and are distinctive and individual. Restrictions as to ownership insure proper neighbors and a permanently fine environment. The investment value of Lake Forest is unquestionably the finest in St. Louis. Drive out to Clayton and Hanley Roads this afternoon and inspect these remaining homes—Nos. 30, 38, 39, 72, 96, 108, 112 and 115.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruit and vegetables are grown the year 'round. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get the right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

They divide up what is left of the profitable market, assigning to each unit its "quota." Often they agree to try to keep out all competitors, and discourage new investments of capital. They agree that they will not expand their own plants. They agree that the cost price shall be fixed on such a basis that the least ficient unit will still be able to make a profit on its "quota."

The risk is passed along to other business groups that are not protected by such agreements or to individuals, Pribram says. The consumer is particularly help in the face of these cartel greements.

Before the NRA there were no such open agreements in the United States because they were forbidden by the anti-trust laws. There were vast combinations of business units which many charged were monopolistic. But these were mergers in which the various units surrendered their ficial independence to a holding company or some other unified authority. They were formed in an expanding market to enable big business to make greater profits.

The NRA, Pribram finds, showed many of the signs of the freezing process that is called cartelization. The Roosevelt administration, according to Pribram, started out with another avowed purpose when the NRA was initiated—to increase wages and spread employment and thereby increase consuming power. But the big business men who came to Washington and wrote their wn codes took the opportunity to e among themselves to limit market on a "quota" basis and stain prices so that all—even the inefficient units that were feel ng the pinch of the depression most severely—could make a profit. They could form what were in effect collective market agreements under the protection of the recovery law without fear of the anti-trust laws.

Europe's Cartel Plan, Stabilizing Business at Depression Level, And Its Application Under NRA

Brookings Institution Writer Says Labor's Share-the-Work Idea Was Paralleled by Employers' Share-the-Market.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.

WHAT happens in a contracting economy—that is, when profitable markets are swiftly shrinking, as occurred after 1929—is described in a book just issued by the Brookings Institution.

The book has the formidable title of "Cartel Problems, An Analysis of Collective Monopolies in Europe with American Application." The author is Karl Pribram, a German economist who for seven years was chief of the statistical section of the International Labor Office at Geneva. But the story that it tells beneath the technical language of the economist is a simple one.

Big business units, with costly language of overhead charges and large investments in plant and equipment, find it difficult to adjust themselves to dwindling markets. What the head of these business units have done in Europe is to come together in an agreement to save what remains [illegible] the market for themselves, regardless of the consumer. They divide up what is left of the profitable market, assigning to each unit its "quota." Often they agree to try to keep out all competitors, and discourage new investments of capital. They agree that they will not expand their own plants. They agree that the cost price shall be fixed on such a basis that the least efficient unit will still be able to make a profit on its "quota."

What the Cartel Does.

In other words these big business men stabilize the industry at a depression level, according to Pribram. This collective agreement—called a cartel—Pribram refers to as a form of "insurance" against business risks. The dangers of competition are almost entirely removed in such agreements. The risk is passed along to other business groups that are not protected by such agreements or to individuals, Pribram says. The consumer is particularly helpless in the face of these cartel agreements.

Before the NRA there were no such open agreements in the United States because they were forbidden by the anti-trust laws. There were vast combinations of business units which many charged were monopolistic. But these were mergers in which the various units surrendered their financial independence to a holding company or some other unified authority. They were formed in an expanding market to enable big business to make greater profits.

The NRA, Pribram finds, showed many of the signs of the freezing process that is called cartelization. The Roosevelt administration, according to Pribram, started out with another avowed purpose when the NRA was initiated—to increase wages and spread employment and thereby increase consuming power. But the big business men who came to Washington and wrote their own codes took the opportunity to agree among themselves to limit the market on a "quota" basis and sustain prices so that all—even the inefficient units that were feeling the pinch of the depression most severely—could make a profit. They could form what were in effect collective market agreements under the protection of the recovery law without fear of the anti-trust laws.

Strongest Under Fascism.

It is under Fascism that the Government itself, according to Pribram, not only openly encourages this process of freezing the market but may even take a part in directing the formation of cartels. By eliminating competition, the Fascist Government assumes, an industry will be in a stronger position to compete with the same industry [illegible] another nation. With the price level sustained by agreement within the country, the industry is left [illegible] to fight for the international market, selling below cost—"dumping"—in the foreign market if that seems necessary.

"There existed therefore in the code-making process," Pribram writes of the NRA, "a clash between two divergent principles of industrial organization: the tendency on the part of the administration to stress the adoption of labor conditions uniform for large fields of industrial activity met with the rival tendency of business representatives to organize the industries strictly on market lines with a view to placing limitations upon free competition.

Market Control Foremost.

"After a first preliminary period the latter tendency gained the upper hand and the definition of industries on market lines became a characteristic feature of the new industrial setup. This development, resulting in a considerable number of codes, corresponds exactly to the grouping characteristic of cartels. It also, of course, corresponds to the earlier grouping of American trade associations. What is important in this connection is that the fundamental groupings under the NRA were those appropriate to market control rather than those appropriate for regulation of labor conditions; and the basic incentives were those of market control. An important consequence is seen in the fact that 560 out of 577 codes made provision for price protection through cost accounting methods or otherwise."

Among code provisions set up to limit the production of industry Pribram lists three main classes: 1. Those meant to prevent the expansion of an industry's capacity to produce; 2. Those restricting the volume of current production by limiting the use of machines and plants; 3. Those dealing directly with production "quotas" and control.

Iron and Steel Code.

The iron and steel code was an outstanding example of the first class, according to Pribram. Under the iron and steel code it was strictly prohibited to increase existing capacities for producing pig iron and steel ingots. The big companies drew up and sought to enforce the code provisions while smaller companies that could meet the depression more readily because they were less burdened with fixed charges made constant war on code regulations. There is a remote kind of parallel in the struggle of the huge dinosaurs of pre-historic times to meet changing climatic conditions. Ultimately the dinosaurs succumbed to change.

The most complete expression of cartel form was permitted under the NRA only in natural resource industries, Pribram writes. Freezing of the market for natural resources was justified on the ground of the need to conserve these resources.

"As the codes actually operated, however, they seem to have been directed but slightly toward conservation ends, and operated mainly to serve the usual cartel ends of enhancing the profits and preserving the equities of private owners," Pribram declares. "Whether or not, when public considerations dictate monopolistic control of production in the natural resource industries, it should be left to private enterprises under public control or should be undertaken by a public authority is a question which goes beyond the limits of the present discussion.

Earlier depressions brought the European cartels into existence, Pribram states. He quotes one au-

LIFE IN A SCIENTISTS' CAMP ON AN ARCTIC ISLAND

Sixteen Women Among the 200 Workers at Dickson, 18 Degrees From Pole and Chief Among 41 Soviet Stations on Northern Sea Route—It Has Meteorological Bureau and Is Radio and Airplane Center.

By RUTH GRUBER.

(Copyright, 1935, by the New York Herald Tribune.)

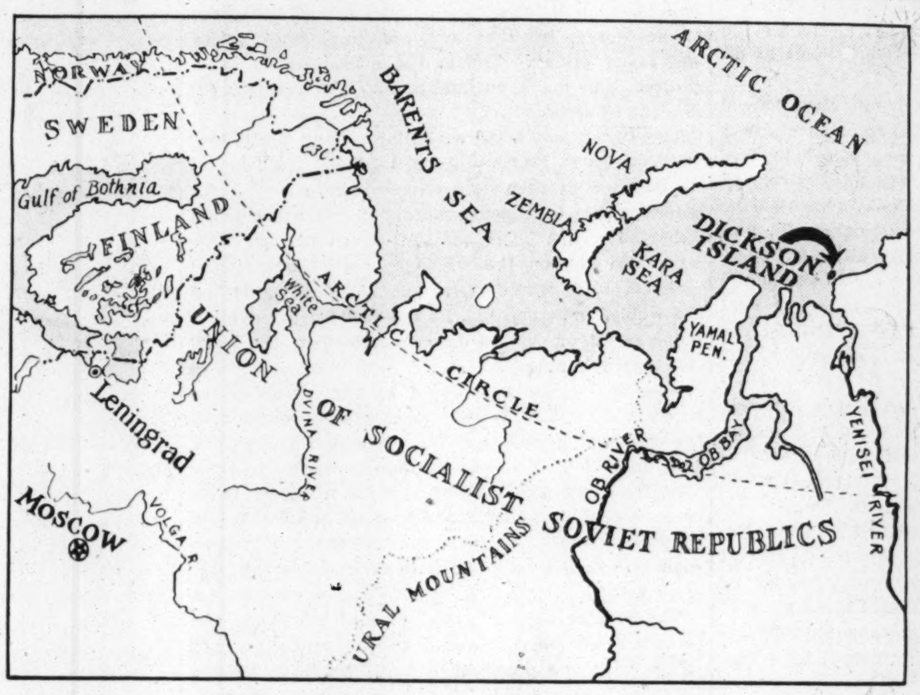
DICKSON ISLAND, Off the Coast of Siberia.

A FEW days ago the radio in Dickson Island, the hub of the Soviet Arctic, received an urgent message. A baby was about to be born in a small fishing outpost north of the Arctic Circle. There was no doctor; the woman was critically ill. The seaplane at Dickson was started, the pilot took off and in four hours the woman was lying in the hospital at Dickson giving birth to a boy.

Without any flag waving or hysteria the scientists and technical workers on the polar station settled back to their work of studying charts, analyzing air and sea currents and transmitting radio messages throughout the Arctic. The SOS, the rushed flight and the life of a woman saved had all been part of the routine of an island on whose ice and bleak marshes civilization is being rapidly imposed.

Yet this seaport, lying less than 18 degrees south of the North Pole and serving as the radio center and coal base for the steamers of the northern sea route, is full of similar anecdotes. Here, translated into terms of the twentieth century, with radio and airplanes as the latest inventions of man, the stories filled with the same kind of romance as that which came out of the American prairie.

ZONE OF SOVIET EXPLORATION IN FAR NORTH



Radio Used by Doctors to Direct Operations.

In the nineteenth century doctors traveled on horseback for days to reach some patient in the wilderness; here the doctor sits at his microphone and directs an operation 300 miles away. Today, for the first time in the history of Arctic, serious consultations are given by radio from Dickson, paving the way for specialists located in any part of the world to give immediate aid instead of delaying, often with fatal results, until they can reach their patient.

When Adolf Erik Nordenskiold, the Swedish polar explorer, discovered Dickson on his epoch-making voyage across the Arctic Ocean in 1878 he predicted that the island would become an important center in the polar region. But he could hardly have foreseen the economic destiny of the island he named after the Scotch merchant who financed his trip.

Dickson today is the northern-most terminal between America and Europe and Asia. A trans-polar airline between far-flung cities of the earth, bringing New York, London, Leningrad and Tokio into swift contact become less improbable each day, and Dickson, lying in the Kara Sea, 73 degrees 30 minutes north latitude and 80 degrees 25 minutes east longitude, is a natural focal point for any such transpolar route.

41 Bases for Sea Route Established in the Arctic.

The growth of this Arctic seaport can almost be reckoned in days, so recent is the work which is swiftly converting this station and the 40 others like it in the Soviet Arctic into bases for a successful commercial sea route. After the World War Dickson had only two small wooden houses and six winter points, and even three years ago there were in all eight men living on the island. Today 200 engineers, radio operators, scientists and skilled workers are wintering on the island, studying, testing, exploring and building with pioneer speed and enthusiasm.

Tales that sound like movie thrillers are heard constantly on this island on which no correspondent has ever set foot before. Sitting with the winter colonists in their little wooden houses, trudging in high boots and fur-lined shuba during fog and light snowfalls across the treeless swamps from the old Dickson to new Dickson, five kilometers away, sinking in the soft marshy earth, sliding down mountains covered permanently with snow, I went hunting with the men, caught the little polar mice on the tundra, and spent long hours in the scientific laboratories which are the chief activity of the island.

Many Women Workers From Soviet Universities.

But who are the people at this station and how do they live? Here there are no natives, no Ostyaks or Samoyeds. For them Dickson with its treeless tundra and slate rocks has been uninhabitable. Here is a land inhabited only by scientists and engineers. Here are people who have come with microscopes and motors to study the problems of the north and establish a polar station like a huge lighthouse in the midst of the sea. Young men have come from Moscow and Leningrad, camping out in the great north with a mixture of serious scientific studies and a quest for adventure. Young women, fresh from the universities, theaters and the social life Russia's new young intellectuals lead, have come to work as wireless operators, meteorologists, nurses, magnet workers and doctors.

Melancholia is almost unknown here. The long polar night holds no horror for these people. They work hard and play hard, complaining even that there is not enough time to do all they want to do. They have their fixed routine of work hours, usually eight hours a day. Then some relax, but the majority go to their rooms to read or write. Almost all of them are writers of one sort or another, some write reports, others articles, others careful summaries and observations of their work, some novels and some diaries.

"Wall Newspaper" Output of Clubs and Factories.

A generation of articulate people are emerging here. The carpenters gives lectures and the cook writes stories for the wall newspaper. Although the newspaper is found everywhere in the country, in factories, clubs, libraries and on board ships, it is a genial stroke in the Arctic. It is the great means of communication and self-expression. Cartoons, maps, photographs and articles printed with pen and ink compose the sheet. The writers satirize each other in the spirit of "self-criticism," which acts like a purge in social organization.

One of Dickson's wall newspapers is devoted to "Women in the Arctic." A little caricature drawn by one of the men is significant of the new attitude toward women, of the desire to permit them to enter the youngest field of Arctic science and exploration. The caricature shows a young woman dressed in polar outfit, with the inscription, "There isn't enough of this here." But women are rapidly entering the Arctic. In Dickson last year 16 women took part in the work of the winter station, and this year even a larger number are coming north to work as doctors, wireless operators, cooks, domestic help and meteorologists in the weather bureaus, a field to which thousands of young Russia women are flocking.

Famous Names Inscribed in Old Notebook at Dickson.

The story of Dickson is told in an old notebook, in which almost every great explorer and scientist traveling through the European and Asiatic Arctic has signed his name. When the history of today's Arctic exploration is written this simple copy book will take its place as one of the most significant documents found in the Arctic. In it appears the autographs of Amundsen, Svendrup, Otto J. Schmidt, the leader of the Sibiryakov expedition, the first ice breaker to cross the Arctic, and an autograph by the scientist Voronin, which sounds the keynote to the book, "so warmly," he writes, "men can greet each other only in the extreme north."

The tragedies of the Arctic are recorded here by word and implication. Roald Amundsen, the famous Norwegian explorer, who died in the Arctic in a heroic search by plane for the Nobile Expedition had stopped in Dickson on his historic trip across the Northwest Passage. In a clear bold handwriting he signed his name and date Sept. 1, 1918, in the notebook, hardly dreaming of the tragedy that would befall two of the men on his expedition.

Finding of Bodies Reveals Tragedy of Arctic.

It is an entry two years later by Ole Hanson which records the story.

Forced to winter on the ice floes in Cape Chelyuskin, Amundsen had sent the two men on a march across the ice to carry mail and logs to Dickson Island, even then the center of the Arctic. But the march was unsuccessful. The body of one of the men was found on the mainland two kilometers within sight of his goal. The other was found in a stove, with only human bones and a few buttons to identify him. The world was shocked at the discovery, some believing that, growing mad with hunger and loneliness, his companion had eaten his flesh. But others held that he had died of frost and hunger on the way and that his friend had cremated him to prevent the animals from eating his body.

Science, imposed on the tundra, has completely transformed the face of the Arctic. Tall slender radio masts and intricate antennae are the landmarks of the island. As tall as a New York skyscraper, Dickson's oldest radio mast was built in 1913.

Radio's Part in Rescue of Nobile's Italia Party.

Radio's drama reached a climax in the rescue of the Italia in 1928, when the little group of scientists with Nobile, their leader, set up their small radio antennae near the red tent on the ice floes signaling every two hours: "SOS Italia Nobile." But for more than three weeks they could make no contact with the world until at last an operator named Schmidt picked up their message on his small set.

Now their position was known, airplanes and ships were prepared in a few days, Swedish flyers flew over them and the Russian ice-breaker, Krassin, with Rudolph Samoilovitch, head of the Arctic Institute, set out, destined to save the men who had spent seven weeks on the ice floes. Every night at 9 o'clock these men listened to news reports from San Paolo hearing their names mentioned constantly together with reports of politics, finance and the newest bits of scandal. And every day they flashed urgent messages to the Citta di Milano, their base ship, with a breathless suspense which rose and fell with every promise of rescue from the world.

Twenty thousand words a day are transmitted from Dickson's radio station. A powerful radio beacon and electric lights which burn constantly during the polar night from November to February make the winter base look like Broadway on a Saturday night. Radio bearings give ships navigating through the Arctic Ocean their direction and route. Dickson is being made habitable for its scientists and explorers.

U. S. Supreme Court Declares Promoters Betrayed Investors; Orders Them to Disgorge Profits

Holds in 5-to-4 Decision in Gas Lands Scheme That Violations of Trust Cannot Be Legalized by Dummy Directors.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.

GULLIBLE investors in blue sky promotions now in bankruptcy received the powerful aid of the United States Supreme Court this week in a far-reaching opinion written by Justice Cardozo in a case involving the issuance of almost $7,000,000 worth of securities on properties valued at less than half that amount. The court ordered the promoters of a gas lands company now in receivership to pay the receiver more than $3,000,000 for the benefit of the investors and other creditors. The $3,000,000 represented the promoters' profits on a deal in 1930.

The court divided five to four, with Chief Justice Hughes, Justices Van Devanter, Brandeis and Stone joining with Justice Cardozo in holding that the promoters held a fiduciary trust to the investors and that intervening corporations and their dummy directors should not be allowed to protect the promoters for violation of this trust relationship. Justice Roberts, supported by Justices McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler, held that although "unconscionable profits" had been "reaped at the expense of a credulous and avid purchasing public," the receiver could not act for the investors and that the proper legal procedure was the filing of individual suits against the promoters for misrepresentation. Roberts declared that the majority opinion was "in the teeth" of previous decisions of the court.

Decision's Importance.

With many companies, particularly public utility companies with large "write-up" of assets, in receivership, the court's decision is likely to be influential in future bankruptcy litigation. The title of the case of George H. McCandless, receiver, v. Maxine H. Furlaud. It came to the Supreme Court from the Second Circuit Court of Appeals and is already popularly known as the Duquesne Gas case because the principal company involved is the Duquesne Gas Corporation.

In a long but characteristically lucid opinion, Justice Cardozo related the circumstances of the creation of the corporation by Furlaud, an investment banker, to take title to gas lands in Western Pennsylvania and the sale of securities to the public. The Cardozo opinion is notable for its analytical marshaling of facts before applying the law. Cardozo recited the complicated working of Furlaud through the Kingston Corporation, one of his own subsidiaries, the Byron Corporation, the Chaucer Corporation, and Carlos Reuter, an executive of these companies. Roberts' opinion devoted itself mostly to the formal law and previous decision of the court.

After tracing the activity of Furlaud in acquiring the gas lands with an outlay of only $45,510 of his own money for options, Cardozo pointed out that by means of a one-day loan by the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York, the Furlaud Banking Co. was able to pay for the land from the receipts of the security issues. As has been customary in many promotions, Furlaud and his companies took large blocks of bonds and common stock for their participation in the scheme. Because of these inordinate profits, the majority of the court found that the Duquesne company was insolvent from the start.

'Promoters Pocketed Spoils.'

"After all the circuits had been traveled from one company to another and back to the point of origin," Justice Cardozo wrote, "what had been accomplished for Duquesne and Furlaud stood out in clear relief. Duquesne had the ownership of gas fields, worth at cost about $2,500,000, though extravagantly appraised at many millions more. It had also $365,000 for working capital. . . . These are the credit items that any balance sheet must show. The liabilities were the bonds and notes and the no-par shares of stock. The bonds and notes, when distributed to the public, became liens for $5,000,000, more than $2,000,000 in excess of the cost of all the assets with working capital included. The shares of stock, issued in vast quantities, had nothing of substance back of them. If cost and value were about the same, there was thus insolvency at the beginning as well as at the end, unless the proceeds of the securities were devoted to the uses of the debtor, as the circulars published in the newspaper in effect stated they would be. Nothing of the kind was done. The bonds and the notes, instead of being used by Furlaud and its allies for the benefit of Duquesne, were disposed of as their own and at large profit to themselves. The record supports the inference that some of the shares of stock were used in the same way. The promoters and their confederates pocketed the spoils. Less than two years later the victimized company was in the hands of a receiver."

State Laws Cited.

Justice Cardozo applied to this set of circumstances the Pennsylvania Constitution which says: "No corporation shall issue stocks or bonds except for money, labor done or money or property actually received; and all fictitious increase of stocks or indebtedness shall be void." He stated that there was a Pennsylvania statute "implementing" this constitutional provision. But the important dictum of his opinion was that "promoters of a corporation stand in a fiduciary relation to it to this extent at least, that they will be chargeable as trustees if they deal with it unconscionably or oppressively or in violation of a statute unless the liability for such misconduct has been effectually released.

"To what extent the approval of all the shareholders will relieve them of that burden," he continued, "is a question not susceptible of answer without considering the nature of the wrong and the interests affected. To some extent their proposition is akin to that of directors, though the limits of their duty are less definite and certain. Even for erring directors, however, there may at times be absolution if all the shareholders are satisfied."

It was on this point that Justice Roberts challenged the findings of the majority. It will be noted later in this article.

Investors' Money Diverted

Commenting on the application of the fiduciary principle to the facts, Justice Cadozo said:

"The public had been invited to invest in the securities on the representation that the proceeds would be used for the purchase of lands and for cash capital necessary or useful for the business. In fact about three-fifths of the money was applied to designated uses, the rest being kept for the use of the promoters. If this could be done without cutting down the value of the assets below the mortgage debt, the act would be so near to magic as to call for explanation from promoters not professing to be magicians. No word of explanation was offered at the trial or is now suggested in the briefs. In those conditions only one legitimate inference was open to the trier of the facts, and this he must be taken to have drawn. The appraisals having been shown

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Judge Coleman's Decision.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE recent decision of Federal District Judge Coleman instructing the trustees of the American States Public Service Co. to treat the Holding Company Act as invalid and of no effect is the court's answer to the people's remonstrance against so vast a concentration of economic power as to menace the very nation itself.

The Holding Company Act was designed to give the Government power to reorganize the utility industry and, if the Federal courts are not to be governed by any consideration of the public welfare or the rules of natural justice, but solely by legal and constitutional questions, there could be no man, however indifferent to the interests of this country, who would not be forced to admit that the situation to which the people are now reduced will call for the exertion of whatever wisdom and spirit that is left among us. The people should be exhorted never to suffer this invasion of their rights without a determined and persevering resistance. One precedent creates another; they soon accumulate and constitute law.

The time is not far distant when the people will have the means of redress in their power. I cannot doubt that they will vote an amendment to their Constitution that will clearly give to them and to them only the right to sanction or repeal bills that have been enacted by Congress for the people's welfare.

JUNIUS-UP-TO-DATE.

A Murderer at 16.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SWEET 16—and a murderer. That's the cruel fact related in a recent article in your paper. A mere 16-year-old kid, a confessed murderer and hold-up man. Whom shall we blame? I say the police and the courts.

From an early age, the police and the courts have been teaching this lad that the law is a farce, that anything can be fixed. Many times during his formative years he has seen police cavorting in his mother's bootleg joint and disorderly house. The cops on the beat used to hang out there. Do you wonder that he has no respect for the law?

Once his mother was arrested for bootlegging. Cass avenue gangster connections fixed that. Many other times she was arrested for various charges, and the boy always saw mother "get away with it." The police were always friendly to her. She had it on them. So the boy naturally assumed that he could "get away with it," too. Now he's a murderer.

Blame the crooked police and the courts for teaching this kid.

GEORGE WILSON.

Angelo Herndon's "Crime."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANGELO HERNDON, the brilliant young Negro, has been sentenced to serve on the chain gang—a living hell—for 20 long years. No man has ever been able to survive that period of time on a chain gang.

What crime has Herndon committed? His crime consisted of struggling for the inalienable right of both black and white American workers to live above the starvation level. Does the United States Supreme Court approve of the Georgia slave law of 1861? Does our Supreme Court fear, with Gov. Porter of old, a virtual breach of good faith to our brethren of the South? Fear for the peace and harmony of the Union, and thus confirm Georgia "Justice"? Let us remember Whittier's words:

We ask no boon: our rights we claim,
Free press and thought-free tongue and pen,
The right to speak in Freedom's name,
As Pennsylvanians and as men;
To do, by Lynch Law unforbid,
What our own Rush and Franklin did.

Was this the promise of the free,
The great hope of our early time,
That slavery's poison vine should be
Upborn by Freedom's prayer-nursed tree,
O'er clustered with such fruits of crime?

VIRGIL FRENCH.

Has His Eras Mixed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EVIDENTLY the writer of the letter "Will They Stay Bought?" thinks that we have not progressed beyond the horse-and-buggy era, or he should have known that his epistle was wasted effort. He must be down to the grass roots mentally to feel compelled to try to insult the many persons who have either accepted assistance from this administration or co-operated with it in its efforts to bring some degree of order out of chaos.

The fact that millions of hungry and jobless persons have to be cared for does not merit the writer's attention, but the "audacious attempt to scuttle the Constitution by usurpation" causes him great concern. I should like to explain, since "A Carter Glass Democrat" seems to have his eras mixed, we no longer consider that the people were made for the Constitution but that the Constitution was made for all the people.

Johnston City, Ill. Z. JARAD.

MR. HOOVER AS A WARWICK.

The measure of Mr. Hoover's political ambition is a growing item of public interest. That he would like the nomination himself may be sympathetically granted. That he and his close personal friends and administration associates realize he is not available can hardly be doubted. So the inference widely drawn is that Mr. Hoover aspires no further than to have a decisive voice in the selection of the candidate and the drafting of the platform.

To exercise such influence would, of course, be a major part, second only to the stellar role. Is Mr. Hoover, as titular leader of his party, qualified for such a part? Will party sentiment assign him to such a place in the cast? Just what following does he command?

No positive answer can be given. There is, and can be, no demonstrable proof. But such evidence as may be cited is unfavorable. At the Grass Roots convention at Springfield, for example, which was taken over by the Hoover loyalists, there was not only a chilling absence of Hoover enthusiasm among the delegates; there was outspoken hostility. The same atmosphere enveloped the meeting of the Western Republicans at which Mr. Hoover made "his first political speech" since his retirement. That speech, be it said in no spirit of criticism, was a bid for support. As such it failed.

If, now, as the impression obtains, he has relinquished all hope of the nomination, himself, even as a compromise in the event of a prolonged deadlock, but expects to veto any unsatisfactory selection and to write, or edit, the document drawn by the Resolutions Committee, on what grounds may he file a claim for such authority? May historical precedent be offered?

It is true, of course, that Presidents have named their successors. The latest instance of such power is still fresh in the memory of men of middle age. The Republican convention of 1908 merely carried out Theodore Roosevelt's instructions in nominating Mr. Taft. But there is no comparison at all, personally or politically, between the position of Theodore Roosevelt in his last official year in the White House and that of Herbert Hoover today or next June. "The Colonel," the "Rough Rider," "T. R.," or even "Pro-Consul," was "the first American" of the hour. With the slightest nod he could have had the nomination, and probably would have taken it except for his impulsive disavowal on the night of the election in 1904, when he explained that he regarded the three years he had served as his first term and would abide by the traditional two-term limitation.

Titular leader? Theodore Roosevelt was the Republican party. He was the nation's beau sabreur, the "rose and expectancy" of the country's youth. To the Tory mutterings against his kingly assumption in bequeathing the office to the heir apparent, he replied, half jocularly, half grimly: "They'll take Taft or they'll take me."

We have had other presidential Warwicks. Theodore Roosevelt's temperamental twin, Andrew Jackson, chose Martin Van Buren, and, still earlier, Thomas Jefferson tapped Madison's shoulder, and Madison's preference effected the choice of Monroe. But those king-makers were themselves kings, psychologically, though in the case of Monroe the purple of authority had somewhat shabbily faded.

In "the seats of the mighty" Mr. Hoover's chair is vacant. No aura of victory shines above his brow. In cold party realism, he is a symbol of disaster. He wears, indelibly, the stigmata of repudiation and defeat. History may speak kindly of him. In the arena of practical politics, at which we are looking, the signal must, we believe, be thumbs down.

THE ARM OF ARGUMENT.

When a lawyer, arguing a case before the Oklahoma Supreme Court the other day, threw his right arm out of joint, it did not surprise anybody. Something of the sort had been expected for a long time. It was a little surprising, though, that it happened in an argument before the Supreme Court. Gesticulation has its place in argument before a jury. It is an old court custom. Mediocre lawyers have always relied upon it, in the place of argument, as the strong right arm of their appeal. Good lawyers, with no taste for it, have sometimes used it, despairing of accommodating themselves to the intelligence of jurors by any other means. Jurors may not understand an argument, but a waving right arm makes everything clear to them. That is why jury verdicts are such queer things. Many a culprit owes his escape from punishment to a physical flourish when all legal motions have failed.

That is a lawyer's way with a jury, but a Supreme Court is something else. What a Supreme Court wants is argument. It has to be good argument, supported by facts and bolstered by law. Gymnastics leave the august Judges cold. A lawyer who gives them a physical demonstration is wasting his time and rendering his client no service. The lawyer who threw an arm out of place in their presence was in danger of throwing his case out of joint. Such things have happened.

In a situation like that, the lawyer should have a chance to explain. This one did. After other members of the bar had jerked his arm back into place, he said that the arm had been injured in a university football game. That being the case, the learned Judges beamed their indulgence. After all, a former football hero was entitled to some consideration. The arm-throwing was, as a Judge might say under the circumstances, res adjudicata.

NON-CITIZENS IN GERMANY.

Citizenship, by traditional concept, is a reciprocal arrangement, whereby the individual is protected in his liberties by the state, and in return shares the burdens of the state, especially taxes and military defense. In most democratic countries, aliens, though not qualified to vote, hold office or bear arms, have equal standing with citizens under the law.

Fascism goes against this fundamental of democracy. This is shown by the German Government's decree, foreshadowed in a speech by Hitler two months ago, depriving the Jews of citizenship, of the right to vote or hold office, regulating their marriages and imposing various other restrictions, all applicable even to persons of only 25 per cent Jewish blood. The duties of citizenship, on the other hand, remain. Jews will still pay taxes and be subject to the Nazis' edicts. In time of national need, they will certainly be conscripted for military service.

Never before since ancient and medieval times, when citizenship was a right only of the aristocracy, has a nation placed a group of its native-born population in the status of aliens. There are no citizens of Nazi Germany, however, whose rights are unimpaired. The restrictions on labor unions, religious worship, political organization, free speech and press have long since destroyed civil liberties there. The voting privilege is restricted to the formality of saying Ja when the dictator orders a plebiscite. The right to work, or even to free movement outside a prison camp, depends on absolute conformity to the dominant will. The penalties imposed on the Jews, official scapegoats of the Nazi regime, are only a part of the burdens borne by all the people under their Fascist dictatorship.

THE NEW DIGEST POLL.

The Literary Digest has launched another of its nation-wide polls of public opinion, again on the subject of the administration's policies. Within its limitations, the poll will be a valuable indicator of the people's attitude and a guide to the outcome of the presidential election a year hence.

We say "within its limitations" because of the form in which the question on the ballot is cast. It reads: "Do you NOW approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt 'New Deal' to date?" So broad is the question, and so varied are the administration's policies, that a yes-or-no answer is difficult for the discriminating citizen. Partisans, both pro and anti, and voters swayed by emotion may be able to mark their ballots without hesitancy. But thousands of others will find it difficult at this stage to express a blanket indorsement or a 100-per-cent disapproval of the policies. By next November, opinions will be crystallized, partly by the platform and personnel of the opposition, partly by the outcome of issues that now lie on the lap of the gods—the questions of relief and public works, taxation and spending, farm policy and many others. Today, the opposition is unorganized, and much unfinished business remains before the Government.

The Digest conducted a similar poll on the Roosevelt policies in May and June, 1934, but the form of its question at that time afforded more leeway for voters whose sentiments were not 100 per cent in either direction. The question asked at that time was: "Do you on the whole approve the acts and policies of Roosevelt's first year?" The words "on the whole," now omitted, do not call for the explicit indorsement or condemnation connoted by the form, "Do you now approve . . . .?"

The ideal straw poll would be one in which the voters were asked to rate their present opinion of the administration's policies by percentage points, from 0 to 100. Thus, an opinion favorable to some New Deal undertakings and opposed to others could be expressed with a degree of accuracy. Results would show the standing of the administration with greater exactness than a compilation of affirmative and negative votes.

The greater difficulty and cost of tabulating the returns from such a graded ballot doubtless would eliminate it as a practical project. Too, simplicity is an essential for a ballot broadcast over the country, and a yes-or-no ballot has that clarity to a higher degree than a percentage ballot.

Despite its shortcomings, the outcome of the straw vote will be watched with absorbed interest. But there will be much furrowing of brows and chewing of pencils over the country as voters attempt to weigh the administration's policies at their present stage in search of a decision.

MORE JAPANESE AGGRESSION.

Japan's landing of 2000 marines at Shanghai, coupled with other recent activities, means to many observers the approach of further inroads upon China. The conquest of Manchuria, beginning in 1931, was accompanied by a military attack on Shanghai, and the present action is widely viewed as the prelude to fresh Japanese aggression in North China. Troops were landed after the murder of a Japanese marine in Shanghai, and followed closely upon demands that anti-Japanese activities in North China be put down. Another cause of recent Japanese agitation is China's nationalization of silver, a step which tends to reduce the Nipponese strangle-hold on finances.

If the expected sequence of events follows, it will be along established rules for conquest. With the Western Powers occupied with the Italian crisis and its ramifications, Japan considers the time ripe for action, just as in 1915, with the major Powers embroiled in war, she delivered the infamous "21 demands" to China. Assassination may often be the prelude to military expansion as well, as the nations that put down the Boxer Rebellion demonstrated when they exacted territorial concessions from China.

China is less capable of resistance now than at that time. The League Covenant, so strenuously invoked in defense of Ethiopia, failed to protect China in its hour of need. Nor, unless the ambitious Japanese step on foreign toes in their penetration, is there much likelihood that China will have a friend who offers more than resolutions of sympathy.

THE VOYAGE OF THE BEAGLE.

Few voyages have had as great an influence on the world as that on which Charles Robert Darwin, the naturalist, was engaged 100 years ago. The vessel was the now historic Beagle, the mission a geological survey of island groups from Cape Verde to Tasmania. Darwin, just out of Cambridge, was naturalist to the expedition. That the leisurely voyage of the little ship across the Atlantic, around Cape Horn and through the South Sea to Australia laid the foundation for his great evolutionary hypothesis cannot be questioned. He observed animals living on islands and those on the nearest continent; he compared fossils, noting the variations between the most recently extinct and the earlier species. He found closely allied animals replacing one another in succession southward toward the tip of South America. Then came the climactic entry in his notebook describing his findings, particularly those on the Galapagos Archipelago, as "the origin of all my views."

Convinced that the species varied according to environment, Darwin went back to his study to work out his theory of natural selection. Illness kept him in England thereafter, but, experimenting quietly in his laboratory and among his plants in Down, he became the central force in a revolution that penetrated into every corner of thought. There were few who knew that the Beagle, with Darwin aboard, was nosing about the islands of the Southern Hemisphere in 1835, but because it was, we live today in a world as intellectually different as night is different from day.

Not Yet Grown Up

SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS. By Richard Halliburton. (Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

IF it be true for most people, as a great humorist once remarked, that "life after 40 is a tragedy," the reason might be found in the fact that, as a rule, men and women become hopelessly adult in their outlook along about that time of life; and to become adult usually signifies, more than anything else, a weary acceptance of the bald, "practical" sense view of things in general.

So many great and little hopes have failed by then; and nothing very wonderful has come to pass. With the waning of excess vitality, a deep but unconfessed sense of failure grows, seeming to leave little but the stern necessity of going on. Surely most aging people have experienced that appalling "40 feeling," which is commonly mistaken for wisdom.

But there have always been those who, by some inexplicable good fortune, have been able to retain the youthful sense of wonder throughout their lives, a sort of divine expectancy that keeps life from seeming a dull and repetitious affair. These are the adventurers in physical, mental or spiritual realms; and of their number, on the higher levels, are the saints and seers.

It begins to seem practically certain now that Richard Halliburton is one of those gloriously favored persons who are able to avoid the fatal mistake of becoming thoroughly grown up. Ten years ago, when his "Royal Road to Romance" appeared, one could not be sure that the years would not wear down the happy audacity, born of a boyish sense of wonder, that won the hearts of so many thousands of all ages. But at the normally sobering age of 35, he seems as joyously and daringly young as ever.

It is not improbable that many will regard "Seven League Boots" as even more enthralling than his other volumes. What curiously interesting things this man thinks up to do! Now he is diving to the hulk of Hobson's Merrimac for a close examination; now he is locating the exact spot where Columbus made his first landfall in the New World; now he is examining the bones of the great discoverer; now he is riding an elephant over the Alps, following the trail of Hannibal; now he is interviewing one of the three who murdered the Russian royal family (and what a story he gets out of it!); now, in a wild and little-known valley of the Caucasus, he is visiting with the Khevsoors, "a lost race of Crusaders," who still, on occasion, wear their twelfth century chain armor and wield their ancient blades; now he is playing monk in a monastery on Mount Athos; and now he is off on a pilgrimage to Mecca.

Very often, as in all his books, there is rather more than a touch of sensational showmanship in his undertakings, and his flirtations with manifest absurdity are frequent; but always his own disarming sense of humor is quietly on the job; and the wilder his exploits, the better one likes him.

For something like a million readers, Richard Halliburton still furnishes vicarious triumph for obstructed and defeated youth. Are his books "literature"? Well, what is literature? And, anyway, who cares?

MRS. ASTOR'S HORSE. By Stanley Walker. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York City.)

"IT WAS in the late nineteenth century," says Mr. Walker, explaining his title, "that the gilded, overstuffed magnificence of Mrs. Astor led the peasants to say of anyone who was rather ostentatiously dolled up: 'She is dressed up like Mrs. Astor's plush horse.'" The expression is here used in a tenuously figurative sense, signifying the incredibly preposterous in human behavior. A more accurately descriptive title might have contained the word horse in the genitive case, for Mr. Walker's theme is the excessively publicized American goof in the latest 15 halcyon years of the Bughouse Era, still apparently productive of ever bigger and better asininities in most fields of human activity.

"The wonder of it all," we read, "is not that such egg-heads exist as individuals, for it is a generally acknowledged fact that the hand of the potter has no more steadiness than an aspen leaf, but that in so many cases they command a tremendous popular admiration and respect and are often elevated to handsome eminences."

By this we know that Mr. Walker is far from being unaware of the social symptomology involved, and that, had he been so disposed, he could have pointed out the vital relationship of his subject matter to the general economic anarchy and social disintegration. But, being quite unable to do anything about it, Mr. Walker prefers to write of these matters rather as a delighted connoisseur, and to laugh while laughter is still possible.

WITHIN THE WALLS. By Agnes Carr Vaughan. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

ANYONE of whatever age who has experienced something of the Homeric mood, whether at first hand in the original or in translation, or even in any of the numerous highly diluted paraphrases of the great tale of Ilium's fall, should find "Within the Walls" a book to be prized. Miss Agnes Vaughan, the author, is associate professor of Greek at Smith College, a fact which, in itself, would scarcely be sufficient to explain the rare charm of this far more than professorial piece of work.

Was it not Browning who once remarked that "he who learns Greek, be it ever so little, thereafter breathes from a different part of his anatomy"? The obvious hyperbole does seem to point truthward, and one feels that Miss Vaughan knows well what was meant. For her, apparently, Greek is as much a vital way of feeling about things in general as it is a language. She must have greatly loved the tale she tells, else it could not have the very glow of life in it that any sympathetic reader is sure to feel.

Although the tale is that of the fall of Troy, it is in no sense a rehashing of Homer and Quintus Smyrnaeus, but an original creation, with Andromache, the wife of Hector, as the central character. The tale begins with the journey of Hector and his bride from Thebes to Troy and ends with the destruction of the "timeless town." The many characters are not mere names or lay figures; they are men and women and children, and the life of the doomed city is convincingly presented.

It is as though the old Homeric story had been brought into the focus of everyday human experience. The broad scholarship essential to the writing of such a tale is admirably concealed, in keeping with the artistic purpose.

SAHARA, THE GREAT DESERT. By E. F. Gautier. (Columbia University Press, New York City.)

THIS altogether admirable and fascinating study of the Sahara Desert was first published in Paris seven years ago, and is said to be regarded as a geographical classic. It is now presented to the English-reading public for the first time, in an authorized translation by Dorothy Ford Mayhew, librarian of the Institute of Geographical Exploration at Harvard University. The present version, we are told, is superior to the original, thanks to the co-operation of the author, who has revised the text and added much new material resulting from his recent researches.

E. F. Gautier is a professor in the University of Algiers, and for many years his chief interest has been the Great Desert, every part of which he has explored. With an astonishing wealth of information and an exceptional gift for vivid writing, he deals with every conceivable aspect of the subject and with some aspects that would probably never occur to a lay reader. Some of the chapter headings will serve to suggest the scope of the work: Climate, Organization of Desert Life, Structural Formation, Fundamental Laws of the Desert, Surface Relief, The Geological Past, Superficial Circulation of the Waters, Progressive Dessication, Oases, The Introduction of the Camel and Its Consequences. The concluding chapter deals at considerable length with the uses of radio communication and motor traffic in the Great Desert.

The book is beautifully manufactured and illustrated in keeping with the dignity and charm of the text.

LITERARY READINGS IN ENGLISH PROSE. By Inez Specking. (Bruce Publishing Co., New York City.)

IN this compilation, Miss Specking, who is professor of English at Harris Teachers' College and lecturer in English at St. Louis University, offers models of modern and classic English composition under the five main divisions of exposition, argument, description, narrative and letters. It is intended primarily for the aid of college students in classroom and home study, but the compilation, by its range and the compiler's discrimination, places in the hands of general readers treasures of literary prose that will serve their pleasure as well as ease the composition pangs of students.

In her choosing, Miss Specking, although not neglecting writers of the recent past, gives little comfort to the materialism of this period, treating it as a fading phase. There is an appreciative preface by Joseph Husslein, general editor, science and culture texts, St. Louis University.

SHANTUNG RULER FIGHTS AUTONOMY FOR NORTH CHINA

Governor Orders Provincial Authorities to Put Down Activities Aimed at Independent State.

STILL TENSION AT SHANGHAI

Japan, It Is Contended, Is Getting Ready for New Push to Capture More Territory.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16.—Gen Han Fu-chu, Governor of Shantung Province, Chinese sources say, has ordered provincial authorities to put down any activities aimed at establishment of a separate government in North China, independent of Nanking.

In Hopei Province, however, supporters of autonomy continue their work and have appealed to civic organizations for support.

National Government leaders in Nanking are represented as feeling the move for autonomy is premature and that it could not be successful unless backed by Japanese troops.

New Japanese Push Expected.

Japan has moved naval forces into North China at Shanghai and reinforced its military power along the eastern border of North China. The Chinese say Japan is getting ready for another of its pushes into China—pushes which heretofore have meant the loss of Chinese territory. The Japanese say they are mere protecting Japanese interests and preserving China from communistic encroachments.

Acts of terrorism are alleged by both sides. The Chinese say Japanese police and soldiers are detaining and questioning leading Chinese as a kind of intimidation. The Japanese point to the assassination of a Japanese marine in Shanghai and to demonstrations against Japanese stores as proof of Government-directed anti-Japanese activities.

Further, the Japanese allege that the recent decree of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, nationalizing the currency of China, is a move against Japan, intended to cut off the Chinese market from the Japanese.

Another factor which the official Japanese expression cites as offensive is the announced intention of the Chinese Government of opening a commercial aviation service to French Indo-China.

This air service, intended as a link between the Pan-American Airways trans-Pacific service and Europe by way of the Far East, would open up new business areas to the United States companies, and Japanese spokesmen say it would violate the spirit of Japan's "hands off the Far East" doctrine.

Four Possibilities.

The situation indicates these possibilities:

1. China may unite into a homogeneous nation, presenting a solid front against all demands—but such a possibility is so purely theoretical as not to deserve consideration.

2. The status quo may be maintained, with demilitarized areas serving as a buffer between Japanese-controlled territory and China proper—but both sides say this status quo already is broken.

3. Japan may extend its "sphere of influence" in North China and be satisfied with the appointment of officials in that area sympathetic with Japanese ideas and desires.

4. Japan may sponsor the establishment of a new, autonomous state in North China, similar to Manchukuo.

Japanese Patrols Withdrawn.

Tension in Shanghai, which has been high since the killing of the Japanese marine on a street a week ago, was reduced somewhat today by the withdrawal of patrols of armed Japanese marines from the Hongkew area, where the killing took place.

Consequently, the evacuation of Chinese from native sections to the security of the international settlement almost stopped. Thousands had fled from their homes.

A force of Chinese troops, a dispatch from Peiping says, is on the march in Hopei province, while Japanese troops are concentrated near the Great Wall.

Japanese and Chinese leaders are conferring in Peiping.

PHYSICIANS' REUNION DINNER

Internes at City Hospital 30 Years or More Ago to Attend.

Physicians who served as internes at City Hospital 30 years ago or more will hold a reunion dinner at the hospital at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. About 75 are expected to attend. It is planned to make the reunion an annual affair.

Dr. Amand Ravold, former president of the St. Louis Medical Society, who served his interneship at the hospital in 1881, will read a paper which he came across recently among his effects and which was presented to the Medical Society in 1858 by the late Dr. Julius Knoll. The paper described the then new city hospital, characterizing it as the most modern institution in the country.

Europe's Cartel Plan and Application Under NRA

thority who attributes the development of cartels in Germany to the depression of 1873. German cartels developed rapidly before the World War and after 1918, too, they played an important part in Germany's depression economy. But the existence of European cartels has varied with the fluctuations of the economic cycle. In periods of depression they have been formed to maintain strict control over numerous industries but with returning prosperity their hold has been relaxed. The effect of the cartel, Pribram says, is to increase unemployment and to perpetuate the inequalities in the economic system. Also, the existence of cartels tends to prevent the economic order from regaining its equilibrium, he finds.

Shifting the Burden.

"The burden imposed on economic life by securing profits for the cartelized producers," he writes, "is shifted by innumerable and intricate processes to the returns of other trades and to individual incomes. This is likely to result in threatening the existence of concerns which otherwise would be able to survive the depression. The burdens do not accrue entirely to members of uncartelized industries, since special cost situations may cause a policy of high prices and heavy reduction of output to be detrimental also to some cartel members. A presumption exists, not capable of full verification, that profits accruing to cartel members out of cartel policy will not offset the losses to others and will therefore be detrimental to the economy as a whole in terms of accruing current income."

The existence of a "protected market position," within a cartel, is always at the expense of other unprotected or less well protected groups, Pribram says. The monopolistic group shifts the risk to a group that is not protected by a monopoly agreement.

Old Policy Modified.

Both Great Britain and the United States have been opposed until recently to cartel policy, according to Pribram. It has been held here and in England that the "best economic results" were obtainable through the competition of individual business units. It was believed that prices would adjust themselves in an equitable way more or less roughly in accord with the "laws" of supply and demand, without too much interference from monopolies. While Great Britain never passed specific anti-trust laws, it was implicit in British common law that restraint of trade—serious interference with individual liberty of action in trading—was unlawful. Under the impact of the depression, which was of much earlier origin in Great Britain than in the United States, this policy has been somewhat modified and in certain markets collective agreements have been permitted.

Totalitarian State.

In Fascist Italy there is involved in the idea of the totalitarian state the possible need for cartelization. Under the totalitarian concept the whole economy of the State is to be forged into a weapon for national power and supremacy. If cartels will contribute toward the strengthening and unification of the economy, then cartels will be formed under the sponsorship of the Government. That is what happened in 1932.

The Fascist Government passed laws making cartelization compulsory for any industry, if it is proposed by a qualified majority of the employers concerned, that is 70 per cent of the employers in an industry controlling at least 70 per cent of the output of the industry or a smaller percentage of employers controlling at least 85 per cent of total production.

"Here again," Pribram writes, "the position of the national federations (under cartelization) is of prime importance. It is a characteristic feature of the plan of regulation that authorities deliberately avoid prescribing details and laying down minute directions for the operation of compulsory combinations. The rules and regulations proposed by the industry concerned are to be approved by royal decree; they are bound to include the constitution of a board of appeal called to decide issues arising out of the cartel's activity. Moreover, the competent minister is authorized to exert a permanent control over this activity, thus safeguarding national interest against possible abuses. With a view to coordinating all cartel activities, such cartels as may exist by virtue of voluntary agreements are bound to inform the competent minister of rules and regulations*"

Business Men's View.

There is widespread sentiment among business men in this country favoring "developments in the direction of cartelization," Pribram finds. He bases his conclusion upon the answers to questions in a questionnaire sent out in 1934 by the United States Chamber of Commerce, with the intention of getting the views of affiliated organizations on the future of the NRA and the recovery law. An overwhelming majority of the votes were cast in favor of the proposal: ". . . that each industry should be permitted to formulate and to put into effect rules of fair competition which receive governmental approval, but that the governmental agency should have only the power of approval or veto."

Ninety per cent of the replies favored this proposition: ". . . that there should be an opportunity for members of an industry to enter into agreements other than rules which when approved by the governmental agency will be enforceable against parties to the agreement." And business also favored by a large majority the proposal that any new NRA legislation should make clear that "its provisions, so far as compliance with them is concerned, will supersede any other statute which might appear to conflict." This was undoubtedly aimed at the anti-trust laws, Pribram adds.

Share-the-Market Plan.

"The proposals quoted," Pribram writes, "were obviously guided and linked together by an economic policy meant to deliver self-government of industry from enforcement of regulations not desired by the industry. The objectives were to break up the industrial structure into industries defined on market lines, or even into groups of competitive concerns formed by voluntary agreements, and to authorize each industry or group under this scheme to regulate its competitive conditions independently of any other.

"The 'share-the-work' postulate voiced by labor's representatives was paralleled by the 'share-the-market' demand of organized employers. While under a system of free competition all undertakings were indistinctly connected with each other by the free movement of uncontrolled prices, the proposals appear to envisage the erecting of barriers of fixed prices from industry to industry and the shifting of commercial risk from each firmly entrenched industry to the preceding or successive stages."

"Defensive Gestures."

The author is very careful to make no predictions about the future. It is his belief that cartels are merely "defensive gestures" on the part of economic groups which seek to hold the position they already have in society; it is their effort to cling to the element of ownership and profit left to them. But the more they resort to such "defensive gestures, the more seriously are the stability and productivity of the economic system threatened."

In the long run, the author suggests, the severity of the business cycle, from depression to prosperity, may determine whether or not business in this country will resort to the "defensive" device of the cartel.

SOUTHERN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION MEETING

To Open at Auditorium Tuesday for Four Days; 474 Papers to Be Read.

The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association will be held at the Municipal Auditorium and Hotel Jefferson for four days beginning Tuesday. Branches of nine other specialized medical groups will hold meetings at the Jefferson, Statler and Chase Hotels and the auditorium during the week.

A total of 474 papers will be read. A general public session will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the Jefferson Gold Room. Speakers and their subjects at this session will be: Dr. Alton Ochsner of Tulane University, "Pain in the Abdomen;" Dr. Seale Harris of Birmingham, past president of the Southern Medical Association, "Reducing Fads vs. Rational Reduction Diets;" Dr. A. T. McCormack, Kentucky State Health Officer, "The Romance of Immunization;" and the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, Dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, "Society's Debt to the Doctor."

The general business meeting of the association will be held at the Jefferson at 8 p. m., Wednesday. Most of the clinical sessions will be held at the Municipal Auditorium.

Tuesday will be St. Louis day. All the papers—110—will be read by St. Louisans, chiefly members of the staffs of the Washington and St. Louis University schools of Medicine, and of the Health Department and local hospitals.

The places and subjects of the sessions at the auditorium will be: Assembly Room No. 1, diseases of women and obstetrics, and a symposium on cancer; Room No. 2, surgery, in which proctology for the practitioner, repair of muscle tendons, surgical treatment of tuberculosis, the thyroid, and brain tumors will be discussed; Room No. 3, diseases of the heart vessels, the respiratory system and the gastro-intestinal system; Room No. 4, diseases of the endocrine glands, including a discussion of giantism in the case of Robert Wadlow Alton youth, blood diseases, neurology and skin diseases; the Opera House, ailments of the eyes, nose and throat.

Four general clinical sessions will be conducted concurrently by physicians from various parts of the country on Wednesday morning. Diabetes, poliomyelitis, sleeping sickness in Africa, arterial diseases, postoperative methods, heart wounds, skin tumors, congenital malformations and other subjects of general interest will be reviewed.

The remainder of the week will be given over to sessions of special sections. These will be: Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, children's diseases, stomach and intestinal ailments, neurology and psychiatry, skin diseases, and surgery; Thursday and Friday mornings, pathology, radiology, bone and joint surgery, obstetrics, urology; Wednesday and Friday mornings, gynecology; Wednesday morning medical education and railway surgery; Wednesday afternoon, public health; eye, nose and throat all day Wednesday and Thursday and Friday morning; and a symposium on heart failure Thursday afternoon.

MRS. LINDBERGH'S BOOK FAVORITE AT CITY LIBRARY

More Requests for It Recently Than for Any Other Volume.

Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh's book, "North to the Orient," has been requested more frequently than any other volume in the Public Library recently, Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian, announced yesterday. "Life With Father," by Clarence Day, and "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" by T. H. Lawrence, also are in great demand, he said.

Among the 4000 new books added to the library collection are 253 volumes in Braille or Moon type and 31 "talking book" records. Cobb's "Paths of Glory" and Luhan's "Winter in Taos" are the two most popular recorded books.

The library circulated 365,150 volumes during October.

CHRISTMAS CAROL PROGRAMS TO BE HELD OVER MISSOURI

Associations to Contribute Half of Funds Collected to Crippled Children.

More than 100 Missouri cities are expected to participate in a program of Christmas Eve carol singing, sponsored by the Missouri Christmas Carols Association, according to William H. Danforth, president.

Under the program, associations are formed locally and the State organization acts only as a co-ordinating agency.

Where alms are collected, groups are asked to contribute half of the funds to the Missouri Society for Crippled Children. The remainder is used locally for any purpose desired by the group. All cities are eligible for membership by applying at State headquarters, 610 Rialto Building.

63 STATE PWA JOBS ON SCHOOLS, LIBRARIES

Total Cost About $10,000,000—Nearly $4,500,000 in Loans and Grants.

Loans and grants aggregating nearly $4,500,000 have been made by the Public Works Administration for construction of 63 school and library buildings or groups of buildings, total cost of which will be about $10,000,000, William M. Spann, acting State Director of the PWA, announced yesterday.

Spann said school construction had lagged behind normal volume during the depression but that the PWA had given it a big impetus. New structures, additions, repairs and general rehabilitation were included in the program. Much of this could not have been undertaken without PWA aid, he pointed out.

Under the second or 1935 public works fund 22 school grants totaling $1,500,000 have been made in Missouri. In addition, the applicants will furnish $2,000,000, including $250,000 borrowed from the PWA and $1,750,000 of their own funds or received from private sale of bonds.

Although there were 22 applications, 44 structures were involved. One application, for example, was from the University of Missouri, but provided for seven buildings, including a library, hospital, biology and engineering buildings and other facilties.

There were 41 allotments of PWA funds for schools under the original or 1933-34 public works fund. These covered 82 structures. Included was a $578,000 grant to the St. Louis Board of Education to help pay for new structures, additions and repairs—about 14 buildings in all. Construction has been completed under 20 of the original allotments and is under way on the rest.

"Everything possible is being done to get the new school building program under way," said Spann. "John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education, has joined with PWA officials in urging recipients of public works grants to get their construction contracts awarded (before Dec. 15) so that work may begin without delay. The administrator has warned applicants that dilatoriness will result in revocation of allotments."

UNIFORM PROCEDURE CODE FOR ALL FEDERAL COURTS

Rules to Eliminate Diversity of Practice in Different Districts Being Drafted.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A uniform code of procedure in equity and law cases for Federal Courts is being drafted by a committee of lawyers under direction of the Supreme Court. The code is intended to simplify diversity. At present Federal Judges follow the rules of State Courts in the States in which the Federal Districts are.

Two former Attorney-Generals, William D. Mitchell and George W. Wickersham, are among the lawyers at work. The group has been meeting several days and may make an announcement early next week. The new outline of procedure will not be announced until the Supreme Court has approved it.

In addition to Mitchell and Wickersham the committee includes Scott M. Loftin, president of the American Bar Association; Wilbur H. Cherry of the University of Minnesota; Charles E. Clark, dean of Yale Law School; Robert G. Dodge, Boston; George Donworth, Seattle; Joseph W. Gamble, Des Moines; Monte M. Lemann, New Orleans; Edmund M. Morgan, Harvard Law School; Warren Olney Jr., San Francisco; Edison R. Sunderland, University of Michigan; and Edgar B. Tolman, Chicago. Armistead M. Dobie of the University of Virginia, also a member, has been unable to attend.

PEDIATRICS ACADEMY SESSION

Delegates to Open Clinical Meeting Tomorrow.

Delegates from the Southern and Middle-Western regions of the American Academy of Pediatrics will hold their second annual clinical meeting at Hotel Chase tomorrow and Tuesday.

Members of the St. Louis committee of the academy are Dr. Theodore C. Hempelmann, chairman; Dr. Alexis F. Hartmann and Dr. Gustave Lippmann.

deers and wild geese, but by cows which graze now on the patches of grass in Dickson. For the first time in Arctic history, a pig farm has been organized, and the pair of pigs which came in 1934 have increased to 22. A dog nursery has also been organized on an island which will supply 60 pack dogs for the polar station and expeditions under Otto J. Schmidt, head of the chief administration of the Northern sea route.

Dickson even has a daily radio newspaper, "Arctic News," which gives information about all the polar stations in the Soviet Arctic. As the conquest of the Northern sea route goes forward under the vision and pioneer spirit of men like Schmidt and Samoilovitch, Dickson will emerge more and more into the hub of the Arctic as the radio center and airplane terminal for ships and planes navigating across the top of the globe.

Supreme Court Orders Promoters to Disgorge

to be fraudulent, the one legitimate inference to be drawn from the defendants' silence was that the value of the lands was not greater than the cost, at least in any large amount. If that be so, the company was made insolvent at the outset when the process of subscriptions were devoted to the use of the promoters.

"No consent of the shareholders could make such conduct lawful when challenged by the receiver as the representative of creditors. . . . This is not a case where at the time of issuing the securities the shareholders and the promoters were the only ones concerned. Here at the moment of conveyance the interest of the bondholders and noteholders were put in jeopardy by a division of the proceeds that would make their mortgage worthless. The promoters could not receive for themselves or deliver to subscribers the bonds and notes of the company secured by deed of trust until title had been acquired to the lands covered by the deed. On the other hand, they could not pay the purchase price and acquire title to the lands without the proceeds of subscriptions, the contributions of the public. All this was known to the shareholders, for the promoters were the shareholders and the directors men of straw.

Furlaud's Responsibility.

"In its effect upon subscribers the transaction was the same as if the proceeds of the bond issue had been paid into the treasury of the company and then paid out to the directors for the use of their confederates. It was not within the power of the shareholders to legalize this waste to the detriment of others. It would not have been within their power to bring that result to pass though the shareholders and promoters had been different persons, acting at arm's length. Still more clearly it was not within their power when shareholders and promoters were in substance the same persons. Consent in such conditions, so far as it gives approval to conduct in fraud of the rights of others, is a word and nothing more. It is not in accord with realities."

Justice Cardozo made short work of the argument that Furlaud as an individual was not responsible for the acts of his corporations.

"The respondents," he curtly observed, "makes the point that Maxime Furlaud is not subject to personal liability for wrongs committed by the Furlaud company or Kingston. He was the head of the front of the conspiracy. For anything done in fulfillment of the common purpose either by himself or by any of the corporations dominated by him, he and his confederates are liable in solido."

Answering Justice Roberts' declaration that the proper procedure would be for the investors to sue individually for damages caused by misrepresentation, the white-haired Justice said:

"We find it immaterial that the defendants or some of them may be liable to creditors in common law actions to recover damages for false misrepresentation as to the value of the assets. That is not the basis of the suit before us now. Moreover, the question is not here whether restitution of illicit profits as the outcome of this suit may be proved to mitigate the damages in actions by other plaintiffs, if any such there are. As we have striven to make clear, the receiver does not claim to have succeeded to the rights of bondholders or noteholders to recover damages for deceit. The wrong that is here redressed is the unlawful depletion of the assets whereby the company was made insolvent and the creditors defrauded of their lawful rights and remedies."

Justice Cardozo went far beyond the opinion of the District Judge, who had held for the receiver. The original trial court awarded damages of about $2,000,000 to the receiver as representative of the bondholders. Justice Cardozo and the majority agreed that the promoters should restore also the funds they received from the sale of common stock. All damages were from 1930, when the Duquesne Corporation was formed, with 6 per cent interest to the time of payment. The majority opinion agreed that there might be an appropriate expense for commissions, attorneys' fees, printing disbursements and the like, for which a fund of $300,000 was originally set up. The Court, however, gave the following warning about allowances from this fund:

"The record makes it clear that only a part of this fund was necessary for expenses of any kind, and that only a small part of the expenses, if any, were of such a nature as to be permissible deductions for parties to a fraud."

Minority Opinion.

Justice Roberts and the minority held that the Cardozo opinion was in defiance of the unanimous decision of the court, written by Justice Holmes in Old Dominion Copper Co. vs. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206, which held that any wrong which had been done to innocent subscribers could not be redressed in an action by the corporation. The reasoning of the minority was that the receiver was acting in the name of the company.

"I concur in the view," Justice Roberts said, "that the promoters of Duquesne Gas Corporation took an unconscionable profit which they reaped at the expense of a credulous and avid purchasing public. This fact, however much it may invite animadversion, ought not to induce courts to disregard settled principles in an effort to deprive the respondents of the fruits of their scheme."

Justice Roberts insisted that the majority, as represented by Justice Cardozo, went far beyond the pleadings to build up the structure of the case. He declared that the bill of complaint had not stated that the properties were not worth the amount in bonds, stock and cash which the Duquesne Corporation paid for them, and that it failed to allege false misrepresentation to the security purchasers. He stressed the point that the shareholders had agreed to all of the deals leading up to the acquisition of the lands and the sale of the securities.

Justice Roberts' View.

"On its face," Justice Roberts said, "the transaction under investigation amounted to this and nothing more: The promoters paid themselves an exorbitant price in bonds, notes, stock and cash for property which they turned over to the corporation they had promoted. The bonds and notes thus acquired they sold in the open market and as principals. If in such sale they misrepresented the value of the security they are liable to those to whom they deceived. This is not denied. It was stated at the bar that numerous actions had been brought against them on this basis. Although purporting to be purchasers of securities and sellers of the same in turn for their own account, they are now converted into trustees for the corporation, which corporation they were in essence at the time of the transaction and which corporation had, therefore, full and complete knowledge of every factor in the transaction. This again is in the teeth of Old Dominion Copper Co. vs. Lewisohn."

Continuing his denial of the majority declaration that the promoters were in a trust relation to the security holders, Justice Roberts said: "The so-called fiduciary relation of promoters may be availed of by the corporation only in virtue of the equity of innocent stockholders defrauded by the promoters' scheme. So holds Old Dominion case, and so hold many other authorities which are in accord.

"It is said that the right of the corporation to pursue the promoters depends upon the circumstances under which the stockholders gave their consent to the transaction involved in the promoters' scheme. Nothing is disclosed in the opinion of the court to differentiate this case from the Old Dominion case save that, as asserted, but not found below, the transaction caused insolvency to the Duquesne Corporation and the suit is brought here by a receiver."

Effect on Other Creditors.

Justice Roberts brought up the interesting point as to the effect of the court's decision on creditors of the Duquesne Corporation other than the security holders.

"The record does not inform us," he said, "how many such general creditors—sellers of merchandise, lenders on unsecured paper, or employes and the like—there are. Certainly these have no equity and no vestige of claim against the promoters. And yet a recovery here will inure to their benefit as well as to that of the bondholders. If, as it is said, the receiver represents the bondholders, shall the obtaining of a decree in this action operate as res adjudicata in other actions brought by the bondholders and now pending? The opinion does not answer.

"It seems clear that a suit by the receiver must be in the right of the corporation, and that the most he can claim is what the corporation could claim, namely, a derivative right to suit based upon fraud perpetrated upon innocent shareholders who were such at the time of the consummation of the scheme. Upon the facts pleaded and proved there can be no such derivative right in this case."

Of such divergent views are made the divided opinions of the United States Supreme Court. The majority opinion, of course, becomes part of the law of the land and will be a precedent for future cases. An interesting incidental phase of this particular divided court is that Justice Van Devanter, who has usually sided with Justices McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler, was in this instance aligned with Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo.

SUPREME COURT SAYS 'NO' MORE THAN 'YES'

Out of 931 Cases Last Year Only 256 Were Even Granted a Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Out of 931 cases considered by the Supreme Court last year, only 256 were even granted a hearing. The others were turned down flatly without review. This year, the Court continues to say "no" oftener than "yes." In one recent decision day the Court said "no" 32 out of 37 times.

In the last fiv years, the Court has turned down without hearings more than two-thirds of the cases docketed.

Court officials will not estimate the average cost of hearing the Court say "no", but they said the figures, aside from attorneys' fees, were sometimes as low as $30, covering the printing and docketing expense. In many other cases the printing costs alone run up into hundreds of thousands of dollars, which the losers must pay. One case last year, in which the Court denied a review, cost $6000 for printing and docketing. The expenses in a case this year, which the Court agreed to consider, were $7000.

As for lawyers' fees, no estimate is possible. In a recent Illinois telephone case, attorneys' fees of $1,500,000 were allowed, but this figure included much investigative work and the trial in lower courts.

Court attendants said the reason so few cases are granted a review is that the justices find that previous opinions of the Court have answered the questions presented. In other cases reviews are refused because no Federal question is involved or the Federal question is not properly presented.

In recent years the court has attempted to dispose of all cases during the term they are presented. Several years ago the docket was cluttered with appeals and often two or three years elapsed before the question of a review was decided.

Denver Wright on Another Hunt.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Nov. 16.—Denver Wright of St. Louis made camp today near Neely's Landing, north of here, and said he would begin a wolf hunt early next week. Wright, who conducted a synthetic lion hunt on an island in the Mississippi River here several years ago, is still without wolf-trailing dogs.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 17, 1935.

Ethel Barrymore Brings Back "Constant Wife"

Distinguished Actress Returns to W. Somerset Maugham Role She Played at Shubert In 1928—On Long Road Tour.

RETURNING to St. Louis tomorrow night after an absence of five years, Ethel Barrymore will be seen at the American Theater during the coming week in a revival of "The Constant Wife," the W. Somerset Maugham comedy which has been one of her outstanding successes and one of her favorite vehicles.

The play was presented originally at the Maxine Elliott Theater in New York in 1926, running a full year. Afterwards Miss Barrymore played it for six months in Chicago and at the Shubert Theater here in April, 1928. That occasion was not her most recent visit to St. Louis, however, as she came back in "Scarlet Sister Mary" in October, 1930.

"The Constant Wife" delineates a situation in which the wife of an English physician discovers that her husband is having an affair with a young married woman who is one of her best friends. Simultaneously, the wife is offered an escape of her own in the reappearance of a former suitor. The outcome is a typically "modern" one.

In the cast with Miss Barrymore are Reginald Malcolm, J. W. Austin, Frank Greene, Adelaide Hibbard, Lynn Kendall, Jean Arden, Cynthia Latham and Robert Noble, none of whom was in the former company.

The star revived the play for summer theater audiences before undertaking an extensive road tour. She has been through the East and South already and comes here after a week in Oklahoma and Kansas. The road and one-night stands are nothing new to Miss Barrymore, her representatives point out, since her earlier days in the theater were spent in trouping over the country.

Of the most distinguished and best-known family in the American theater, she became a star at the turn of the century and has played all manner of roles from light comedy leads to serious characterizations, even one in blackface. Her one talking picture, although she made several silents, was "Rasputin and the Empress," in which she appeared with her brothers, John and Lionel.

After the run of "The Constant Wife," St. Louis will have no professional legitimate fare before "The Great Waltz," on Dec. 2, at the Auditorium, unless "Tobacco Road," its schedules upset in Chicago and Detroit, starts out again.

"The Great Waltz" is the elaborate Max Gordon production which held the stage at New York's big Center Theater all last season. Based on the lives of the Strausses of Vienna, it is replete with music in three-quarters time. In 10 scenes depicting the gay Vienna of 1885, it emphasizes scenic spectacle. The finale, a ballroom scene in which a hundred dancers waltz to the "Blue Danube," while scenery, chandeliers and such come into place automatically, was one of the most-discussed features of the show last winter.

By odd contrast, the show originally began as a small, almost intimate musical comedy in Vienna, with a chorus of only 12 persons. In a later London production, Hassard Short developed many of the extraordinary scenic effects.

Kirsten Flagstad, concert artist for the Civic Music League.

Kirsten Flagstad, Wagnerian Soprano, In Recital Tuesday

KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD, Wagnerian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will make her St. Louis debut Tuesday night at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, opening the Civic Music League season.

Now on her first extensive tour in this country, Mme. Flagstad will return to New York for the opening of the opera season. Admittedly a sensation of the past year at the Metropolitan, she was even regarded as the attraction which kept the organization on its feet financially. Following her first appearance last February in "Die Walkure," she became so popular that schedules were rearranged to allow more Wagnerian operas than for many years previous.

One of the manifestations of her popularity was the return of the "Caruso line," the standees at the box office before curtain time. All of her later performances were sell-outs.

Flagstad had sung for years in Oslo and Gothenburg, Norway, before she was invited, two years ago, to be an artist at the Wagnerian festival at Bayreuth. Giulio Gatti-Casazza and Artur Bodansky, scouting for the Metropolitan, persuaded her to go to St. Moritz for an audition and engaged her immediately afterward.

Her program here is:

Aria, "Leise, leise," from "Der Freischutz"	Von Weber
Der Nussbaum	Schumann
Fruehlingsnacht	Schumann
Lachen und Weinen	Schubert
Der Erlkonig	Schubert

"Wunderkind" to Open At Little Theater Tomorrow Evening

"Wunderkind," the Little Theater prize play, will have its premiere at the playhouse, 812 Union boulevard, tomorrow evening, as the second play in the organization's repertory season. It will be offered again on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Written by Gretchen Damrosch, daughter of the celebrated conductor, Walter Damrosch, and Samuel Chotzinoff, New York music critic, "Wunderkind" tells the story of a young Russian violinist from the time of his childhood to his success as a concert artist 19 years later. The chief complication arises when the youth, in spite of a domineering mother and manager, falls in love with a girl who knows almost nothing about music.

David Orthwein will be Grischa Tarnevski, the "Wunderkind," Mathilde Leimkuehler his mother, Gordon Sommers his manager, Ruth M. Peltason an aunt, Paul G. Pohl his cousin, Jules Biegelson his father and teacher Dolores Hartnett the girl he loves and Eula Morgan a Russian Princess who befriends him. Others in the cast are Herbert MacCready, Margaret Miserocchi, Mildred Carpenter, Ted Hall, William Schuyler and William Lechner.

Sibelius' Symphony No. 4 His 'Most Mysterious' Work

Werner Janssen, young American composer-conductor who will direct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at its concerts next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening in the absence of Vladimir Golschmann, has chosen as his principal work the Symphony No. 4 in A minor of Jan Sibelius, Finnish musical genius. The Symphony No. 4 has not been performed in St. Louis before and since Sibelius has termed Janssen "the most gifted interpreter of my works," it is pertinent to discuss the composer himself.—Ed.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

ONE of the more interesting phenomena with which the American musical consciousness has been concerned during the last 10 years has been the emergence of Jan Sibelius from the mists of the North European obscurity. Sibelius is now 70 years old, has composed seven symphonies, a violin concerto, a number of tone poems, orchestral suites and incidental pieces, two string quartets and a quantity of piano music. His symphony in A Minor which Werner Janssen will present when he conducts the St. Louis Symphony orchestra next Friday and Saturday, was written as far back as 1911. Yet it was only a few years ago that Sibelius became known in this country, chiefly by his "Valse Triste" and the "Finlandia" overture.

Sibelius, however, need no longer be treated as a novelty. The revival is over and for the present, at any rate, he has a place in the permanent repertoire of most orchestras. Even the St. Louis orchestra, whose director, Vladimir Golschmann, would not count the Finnish bard as one of his favorites, has played his Second and Fifth symphonies and the violin concerto within two years. He must be considered, therefore, in relationship to the body of established music. And immediately upon doing so one is struck with an originality that is all the more baffling for having nothing to do with any so-called modernism.

With the exception of the A Minor symphony, Sibelius music does not make any extensive use of those devices—such as atonality, polytonality and extreme dissonance—which have figured so prominently in most of the stuff written since Debussy. He is not a partisan of any particular theory and does not overwork any particular mannerism. Yet his identity is unmistakable. His music is unlike any that ever went before and any that exists now.

This peculiarity is in the essence of the music. Cecil Gray said of the Fifth Symphony that considered in its parts it could have been written by anybody but considered as a whole it could have been written by nobody but Sibelius. That would be more or less true of all his work except the A Minor symphony which is completely original both as a whole and in all its parts. The special quality which pervades all his music is not to be found, therefore, by analysis or microscopic examination. It is not to be found at all, in fact, but it can be explained perhaps, by saying that the music of Sibelius expresses a new range of experience.

It is not man battling with his fate, nor the lilies and languors of one who counts the world well lost for love nor the defeated protagonist moaning that all is vanity. Even in his earlier works which are informed, to some extent, by a Northern and racial spirit, it is not the Northland we have encountered in other music and other art. It has little in common with Grieg's icy pastorals, for instance, or with the Nordic sagas which have formed the basis of the Nibelungen legend. The Sibelius Northland is a domain of glacial plains and black forests where man and nature contend on equal terms. Even in his earlier symphonies which are more patently geographical and national and in his tone poems which are directly inspired by the Finnish Kalevala, the scale is bigger and the struggle between the mysterious contending forces more uncompromising than in any other Northern tale I have ever encountered.

In the later works, beginning with the Fourth Symphony, the struggle is less intense and the geographical allusions disappear almost entirely but the theater of action is even more mysterious. And of all those later works, the A minor symphony is the most mysterious and the one having the least concern with the ordinary emotions of humanity.

In the circumstances I must pause and pay tribute to Mr. Janssen for his courage in undertaking to be the one to play this symphony in St. Louis for the first time. The chances of its being a popular success at any first hearing are almost nil. It is prevailingly dark and with a darkness that is relieved not by blushes of bright color but merely by occasional flashes of lightning. It is compact in its mass—an elliptical statement of material which another would have put through an infinite variety of repetition and transformation. It is expressed in a musical language that has little to do with conventional key-relationships. It is built up from melodic fragments. But it has one thing in its favor. It is a masterpiece.

Janssen, 35 years old, is a native of New York City, a graduate of Dartmouth College and has conducted symphony orchestras throughout Europe and this country. In the second half of his program he will offer the St. Louis premiere of "Mediterranean," a suite by Anis Fuleihan, native of the island of Cyprus who now resides in this country.

Golschmann, conducting the Philadelphia Symphony this week, will be back for next week's concerts, which feature Fritz Kreisler, violinist, playing the Mendelssohn Concerto in E minor.

Showing of Foreign Language Films Begun By New Organization

A GROUP of St. Louisans interested in the showing of foreign-language films has organized the Film Forum, to present such of the outstanding European-made pictures as are available in the 16-millimeter size.

The group held a screening of "Poil de Carotte," French film, last night at the Musicians' Hall, but has not settled on a permanent auditorium. Its plans are to begin regular showings late this month, offering each picture for two nights, two showings a night.

All of the pictures shown would be talking pictures, most of them with super-imposed English titles. A tentative list includes "A Nous La Liberte" (French), "Petersburg Nights" (Russian), "The New Gulliver" (Russian), "Laughter Through Tears" (Yiddish), "Mother" (Russian), and "La Maternelle" (French).

Use of 16-millimeter film (35-millimeter is the usual commercial size) will result in a smaller screen image but sound effect are of standard volume. Among those in the organization, which already has more than a hundred subscribers, are Walter B. Simon, Mrs. George Berry, Al Levine and Carol Drew.

Movies Cut Down Dialogue.

The talking picture of today has 50 per cent less dialogue than those of seven or eight years ago, according to an English authority.

Rogers' Final Picture Example of Best Work

"In Old Kentucky" Provides Comedian With Many Opportunities—"Dream" Film and Impressive Spectacle Among New Movies.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

TRIBUTE should be paid, and doubtless will be, to the Fox organization for holding back Will Rogers' next-to-last picture, "In Old Kentucky," for his final footage on the screen. For the Will Rogers at the Fox Theater this week is the Will of fond memory. As a horse trainer in the bluegrass country, he is again the slick trader and trickster of "David Harum" and "The County Chairman," again the homely wit that he was, at some moment or other, in all of his pictures. The modern version of the old melodrama which Sam Hellman and Dorothy Lehman have written, does not rely on Will alone for amusement. Bill Robinson, for instance, gets a powerful lot of fun out of a pair of feet; Etienne Girardot as a daffy rain-maker, excites more mirth than at any time since he ran through "Twentieth Century" pasting his "Repent Ye" stickers, and Charles Sellon, the sour old dyspeptic who lives with a shotgun in hand all but takes the show away from the star. Happily Will has enough to do mimicking Girardot, rehearsing tap-dancing with Robinson and keeping Sellon under cover to keep himself in front of the camera. Melted in also are scenes of his amazement in a modiste's shop, cutting in at a dance, and riding madly through the pastures. Dialogue is particularly suitable to the star, allowing him to poke fun at the Republicans and stuffed shirts. In such lines as one where he says he bought a picture of Lily Langtry "thinking it was Mae West," it is impossible to tell who is the humorist, Rogers or Hellman—one of our St. Louis newspaper alumni if the fact must be mentioned again. The management must have wanted to save marquee space when it chose "Grand Exit" for the second picture. Edmund Lowe, as a detective investigating fires, is one of the present-day screen heroes who regard water as only something for throwing on flames. The picture is recommended for pyromaniacs and any who have the time.

PETER IBBETSON. The story goes that Henry Hathaway, an assistant director, became a director because Gary Cooper, his pal, insisted on it. Hathaway did "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which is among the year's best pictures. Now he handles "Peter Ibbetson," a very difficult new assignment. The glory is his. "Peter Ibbetson," at the Orpheum, is not for the wise guys. It appeals to the Victorian remnant, to sentiment and tear ducts. It IS the George du Maurier novel translated to celluloid. At the moment, I cannot recall a screen presentation more in the spirit of its original. From the slowly clearing and slowly fading titles at the beginning of the film to the last sound effect, that of shackles dropping from Peter's wrists at his death, the film keeps the dream quality of the book. Dealing with realities, such as Peter's dissatisfactions as an architect, Hathaway is not so sure of himself and the sequences are uninteresting. But tremendously effective mountage aids him at other times as he details, movingly, the bitter separations of Peter (Gary Cooper) and the Duchess of Towers (Ann Harding) and the mutual visions which unite them. In setting his scenes, Hathaway could instruct both Max Reinhardt and Ernest B. Shoedsack, whose "Last Days of Pompeii" is something to marvel at. The two principals are well suited in the leads, Dickie Moore and Virginia Weidler lending valuable support. "The March of Time," also on the program discusses the political situation, game preservation and strike-breaking. Its producers are giving all Hollywood lessons in realism.

THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII. Any who expect to find a screen transcription of the Bulwer-Lytton novel at the Shubert this week will be disappointed. "The Last Days of Pompeii" stands in ruins as far as that goes. But out of the ashes has come a new original story of an ancient self-made man (Preston Foster) who became a millionaire of murder in the arena. His ruthless methods even reach to the Holy Land where he aids Pontius Pilate in a pilgrimage of plunder, and passes up the Master. Eventually Vesuvius gets down to business and with everybody out at Foster's ball game, so to speak, gives 'em the works. The pandemonium and panic, the crumbling walls and toppling towers are sights worth seeing. And for acting, Basil Rathbone as Pontius Pilate, a perfect conscience-stricken compromiser. He appears in two different sequences, first as the unscrupulous Roman Governor who sanctions a raid on one of his subject tribes in order to keep peace and hold his job. It is in such a time that he becomes acquainted with the promoter from Pompeii and also sends the Master to his doom. Later on, as an aged man, he is condemned to those moments of reflection that belong to Anatole France's "Procurator of Judea," although with clearer memory. The second film, a little modern gladatorial combat called "Two-Fisted," comes from the relatively modern stage play, "Is Zat So?"

THANKS A MILLION. Down at Loew's, where "Mutiny on the Bounty" is going to blossom forth in length and loveliness one of these days, there is "Thanks A Million," a musical which requires no greater stretch of imagination than that Dick Powell could become Governor by a crooning campaign. Further explanation will hardly be necessary except to say that Fred Allen and Patsy Kelly get full play in the piece, that Paul Whiteman and the Yacht Club boys are in it and you know the rest.

Mummers to Hold Tryouts.

Public tryouts for Gogol's "Inspector-General," and Paul Green's "The Field God," two Mummers' productions for 1936, will be held at the Mummers' studio, 4477A Olive street, next Saturday evening.

Cast for "Post Road."

Principals selected for "Post Road," the two-act comedy which the Thyrsus Dramatic Society of Washington University, will present on Dec. 7, include Herman Waldman, Kibby Henry, Jack Weaver and others.

PETER IBBETSON. The story goes that Henry Hathaway, an assistant director, became a director because Gary Cooper, his pal, insisted on it. Hathaway did "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which is among the year's best pictures. Now he handles "Peter Ibbetson," a very difficult new assignment. The glory is his. "Peter Ibbetson," at the Orpheum, is not for the wise guys. It appeals to the Victorian remnant, to sentiment and tear ducts. It IS the George du Maurier novel translated to celluloid. At the moment, I cannot recall a screen presentation more in the spirit of its original. From the slowly clearing and slowly fading titles at the beginning of the film to the last sound effect, that of shackles dropping from Peter's wrists at his death, the film

IN MEMORIAM

AHRENS, MARY—In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away Nov. 20, 1934.

BOVERSMITH, ANNA E.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Nov. 19, 1934:

Often from my heart
Comes the bitter cry
Why, oh why,
Did our mother die?
Then comes a thought,
So solemn and deep:
She is not dead,
But only asleep.
Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

BUERGER, MILDRED—Died Nov. 14, 1923, and while she lies in peaceful sleep, her memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

GORTLAND, JOS. L.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away Nov. 20, 1934.

Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in his heart and mind,
A beautiful memory he left behind.
He had a nature you could not help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew him and loved him
His memory will never grow cold.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND FAMILY.

GARSTANG, HELEN—Who died Nov. 16, 1934. Sadly missed by HUSBAND AND SON, GARSTANG FAMILY AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

HALL, SYLVESTER—In loving memory of my dear husband who departed this life, Nov. 18, 1934:

One year of sorrow, lonely and blue;
Life is so empty, dear one, without you.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, FREDERICKA HALL.

HOWE, HENRIETTA R.—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother who passed away 1 year ago, Nov. 17, 1934.

How great is Thy love, O Father Divine
That we lose not our dearest and best
But find her again with Thee safe at home
In the mansions of eternal rest.
HER FAMILY.

JOHNSON, FRANCES—In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Frances Johnson, who departed from us Nov. 16, 1933:

Time rolls on, it will not stay;
What grief we've felt since that sad day.
With one so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you.
Daughters,
LOTTIE, LUCILLE, HELEN.

JUDY, JACK E.—In fondest remembrance of our dear husband, daddy, who departed this life Nov. 21, 1933.

Sweet to remember him who once was here,
Who, though absent, is just as dear.
Sadly missed by WIFE, SON.

KOENIG, MATTHIAS H.—In loving memory, who departed this life Nov. 19, 1929.

Years of sorrow, lonely and blue,
Life is so empty without you.
Sadly missed by his wife,
LILLIE KOENIG.

Requiem mass at St. Vincent De Paul church, Ninth and Barry, at 8 o'clock, Nov. 19, 1935.

NELSON, WILLIAM E.—In memory of my beloved husband, who died Nov. 16, 1931:

The depths of my sorrow I cannot tell
At the loss of my husband I loved so well.
HIS WIFE FLORENCE.

OLLIGES, GERALDINE—In loving memory of our daughter who departed from us in her fifth year, Nov. 21, 1929:

Often my darling, my tears will flow,
Longing to have you in my arms to hold.
The stars seem dim, as I whisper low
My darling girl, I miss you so.

PRIVES, MARIE (nee Seipp)—In memory of my dear daughter, who passed away Nov. 18, 1928

We speak of you often, and always intend to keep you right with us until the end.
Sadly missed by
SON, MOTHER, DAD, SISTER, BROTHERS.

SANDERSON, MIRIAM VIRGINIA — In loving remembrance, who died 5 years ago Nov. 12.

MEN

Let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed by a national institution with powerful resources.

During the past 6 weeks I have set a number of men up in business for themselves in Missouri and still have a few opportunities left.

If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earn as much as $50.00 in a single day and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizable monthly income not regulated by seasons, as ours is a year-around business.

Selling experience not necessary, as if you are selected, you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us. We stand all expenses of business, training you completely in our system, and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all your time payment paper. You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything. Our business is depression proof, as same has increased constantly throughout the past six years.

With 1935 our biggest year, we have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected wih this offer and if you can meet the above requirements, you will be granted a personal confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests. Apply Monday morning, 9:15 to 1:15 at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive Sts.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR REAL SALESMEN WHO WE ARE

A nationally known corporation, highly rated, established 31 years. Business: Industrial relations campaigns for manufacturers. Among our accounts are General Electric Co., General Motors Corp., Kendall Refining Co., United Steel and Wire Co., NoMend Hosiery, National Battery Co., and hundreds of others nationally known. A liberal commission with fully protected territory plus a thorough training assure men chosen far above average earnings.

WHAT WE WANT

Four salesmen with wide experience in the sale of advertising, business services, sales promotion or other things where the "idea" is sold rather than merchandise. We want men capable of earning $1000 a month and have the opportunity for them. They must be between 30 and 45 years of age, an automobile will prove helpful, the positions are permanent, not a short time deal.

Two men will be placed in St. Louis, one in Eastern Missouri, one in Kansas City and one in Tennessee.

If interested and able to meet our requirements reply at once giving age, past experience, territory preferred and phone number so an immediate interview may be arranged. Box Y-32, P.-D.

Dorothy Grote Makes Her Debut

SEVERAL hundred guests called at the flower-filled home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edward Grote, 27 Windermere place, Friday afternoon to meet their daughter, Miss Dorothy, at her debut reception. A stringed orchestra played in one corner of the long living room in which the debutante and her mother stood from 4 to 6 o'clock. The fireplace was concealed behind palms and ferns and white chrysanthemums, and baskets of blossoms alternated with old brass branched candelabra filled with lighted tapers on the ledges above. With this setting as a background for the guest of honor, the rest of the room was decorated with many baskets of flowers, pink predominating, and bowls of orchids, lilies of the valley and gardenias, all gift flowers.

Fall shades were used in the reception hall. In the dining room to the right of the entrance were red roses. They adorned the center of the tea table and the buffet and were frozen in garlands in the block of ice from which ice cream was served.

Off to the north end of the living-room the terrace was inclosed in canvas to represent a garden in winter time. White walls were lined with frosted cedar trees several feet tall and lighted indirectly by globes in the branches. The green of low shrubbery on the entrance porch was enlivened by yellow chrysanthemums in urns on the balustrade and newels.

Champagne punch was served from a small table in a corner and debutante contemporaries of Miss Grote alternated between the dining-room and a second long table in the center of the marquee. Here the decorations were white snapdragon and bouvardia arranged in small, oblong, white china bowls around a vase centerpiece filled with long-stemmed white flowers.

Miss Grote wore the gown in which she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball last month, of azure blue crepe banded in horizontal strips of blue velvet from the waist to skirt hem and train. The square neck bodice was edged in velvet and there were velvet shoulder straps. She carried an armful of pink bouvardia tied to match. Mrs. Grote's gown was severely cut of dark red velvet, with long sleeves and a train. Deep toned orchids were fastened at the point of the low V bodice.

Debutantes serving included Miss Lila Marshall Childress, Miss Ann Shapleigh, Miss Peggy James, Miss Aurelia Gebhard, Miss Jane Jordan, Miss Ann Tierney, Miss Joy

Country Club Party For Blanche Fischel

MISS BLANCHE ELLIOT FISCHEL, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, 14 Lenox place, was the guest of honor at a large dinner dance given at the St. Louis Country Club last night by Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, 4526 West Pine boulevard, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur B. Jones, 4386 Westminster place.

A table seating 70 guests was arranged in the alcove dining room for the debutantes and their escorts. Mrs. Blossom and Mr. and Mrs. Jones entertained eight friends at a smaller table. Pink roses combined with other pink flowers were used to adorn the tables.

The following debutantes were present: Miss Lila Marshall Childress, the Veiled Prophet Queen; Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Ann Shapleigh, Miss Elisabeth Cole Freeman, Miss Betty Brown, Miss Judith Oliver, Miss Phoebe Weed, Miss Grace White, Miss Laura Baumgarten, Miss Vera Angert, Miss Katherine Burg, Miss Elizabeth Myrl James, Miss Katherine Collins, Miss Kathleen Wallace, Miss Bliss McConnell, Miss Ruth Stevens, Miss Suzanna Bitting, Miss Frances Charlot, Miss Carroll West Jones, Miss Lydia Ann Allen and Miss Marion Ewing.

Some of the guests attended a cocktail party earlier in the evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan at the Park Plaza, in honor of Miss Angert and Miss Allen.

Breakfast in Honor Of Harriet Hulburd

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN BENJAMIN TILGHMAN will give a breakfast this morning at their home, 7030 Maryland avenue, in honor of Miss Harriet Hulburd. Breakfast will be served from a buffet which will have as centerpiece a crystal cornucopia filled with yellow roses.

The guests, who will be seated at small tables scattered through the living rooms, will include: Miss Elizabeth Goodson, Miss Lucile Field Keeler, Miss Aurelia Gerhard, Miss Marcella Berkley, Miss Mary Jessie and Miss Nancy Burnside Connett, Miss Jane Jordan, Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Vera Virginia Angert, Miss Anna Mary Royston, Miss Elizabeth Sidney Johnston, James V. Reynolds, George Dyer, Alanson C. Brown Jr., Edward Haverstick Jr., William Carroll Connett IV, Reuben Taylor Jr., Hugh Logan, John Scott, Allen Maestre, John Wagner, John Cole and Jerome Bernoudy. Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman will entertain Mr. and Mrs. C. Earl Hulburd, parents of the guest of honor, in the breakfast room.

Mme. Nijinsky Will Speak to Junior League

THE St. Louis Junior League will present Mme. Romolo Nijinsky as the first speaker in this season's series of Monday morning lectures, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the league's new clubrooms, 4932 Maryland avenue. Miss Martha Pettus, who entertained the speaker at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at her home, 33 Westmoreland place, will introduce her. Her topic will be "The Great Masters of the Ballet—Nijinsky, Fokine, Petipas, Noverre."

Mme. Nijinsky, although her name will always be connected with that of her famous dancer husband, is an artist in her own right. She is an accomplished dancer and actress, and is the author of "Nijinsky," a biography of her husband. Hungarian by birth, she is the daughter of Hungary's great tragedienne, Emilia Marcus, and De Pulszky, founder of the state museum.

She made her bow to society at the court of Emperor Francis Joseph. During a performance of the Russian Ballet in Budapest she met and fell in love with Nijinsky, and she gave up her social career and that of a young actress to enter the ballet. After several months she was admitted to the troupe, and some time later, during a trip to South America, Nijinsky proposed to her through an interpreter and they were married in Buenos Aires. Her husband is now in a Swiss sanitarium, where he spends much of his time painting.

During her stay here Mme. Nijinsky is a guest at Hotel Chase.

Christmas Dinner Party for Debutantes

MR. AND MRS. LEO DE SMET CARTON, who, with their son, Langdon, are living at the Park Plaza this winter, will give a Christmas holiday dinner dance for debutantes the night of Dec. 27 at the Bridlespur Hunt Club. The guests of honor will be Mrs. Carton's cousin, Miss Ann Shapleigh, and Miss Kathleen Wallace, of the St. Louis group, and the Honorable Anne Vavasseur Fisher, daughter of Lord and Lady Cecil Vavasseur Fisher of Kilverstone Hall, Thetford, England, another cousin of the hostess, whom she expects to have as her guest.

The Honorable Miss Fisher is now in Philadelphia, where she will be represented to Eastern society at a ball to be given by her grandmother, Mrs. Randall Morgan, at the Bellevue-Stratford the night of Nov. 29.

To Give Supper Party

Mr. and Mrs. Firmin Desloge of the Clayton road will entertain friends at supper Tuesday night in the crystal room of the Park Plaza in honor of Ralph Snyder and Harold Rick, who are appearing there as entertainers. Their guests, who will previously attend Mme. Kirsten Flagstad's concert under the auspices of the Civic Music League, will include Mr. and Mrs. Royall H. Switzler, Mrs. Grace Wilson Clark, Edwin A. Lemp, Peter Seltzer and Dr. Oliver Campbell.

MISS ISABEL SWIFT MOBERLY, daughter of Victor Thomas Moberly, who made her bow at luncheon Tuesday at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

MISS MARTHA WESTLAKE, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Brownell Westlake. She was introduced at a tea Thursday.

MISS MARY VIRGINIA STOCKER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Charles Stocker, before her tea guests arrived Tuesday.

Miss Isabel Fry Is Betrothed to D. M. Houghtlin

THE engagement of Miss Isabel Fry, daughter of Thomas W. Fry, 6420 Cecil avenue, and Robert Germain Houghtlin of Jackson, Miss., formerly of St. Louis, son of David M. Houghtlin, 5592 Pershing avenue, was announced yesterday afternoon at a luncheon given by Miss Fry's aunt, Mrs. Guy B. Fulton, at her home, 4122 Flora boulevard. Tiny scrolls inscribed with the two names were brought in with the dessert plates.

Miss Fry is a graduate of the Villa Duchene and attended Washington University, where she became a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball and has traveled extensively abroad and in this country. Miss Fry is a twin sister of Mrs. Eugene J. Schneider, the former Miss Fanita Fry and is a niece of Mrs. A. C. Janni of New York.

Mr. Houghtlin is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is a member of the University Club of Jackson.

The wedding will take place in January.

Jeanne Frances Charlot Honored With Luncheon

MISS JEANNE FRANCES CHARLOT, debutante daughter of Mrs. Theodore Ferguson Fowler, 43 Kingsbury place, was the guest of honor yesterday at a 1 o'clock luncheon which Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Moss of Upper Ladue road, gave at the St. Louis Country Club.

The table, decorated with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, was set in the card room, with places laid for: Miss Lila Marshall Childress, Miss Eugenie Evans, Miss Katherine Collins, Miss Elizabeth Myrl James, Miss Kathleen Wallace, Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Elizabeth Cole Freeman, Miss Grace Ballard White, Miss Martha O'Neill, Miss Ruth Bixby Stevens and Miss Suzanne Bitting.

At a smaller table Mrs. Moss entertained five of her close friends.

Irene Pettus Honored With Dinner Dance

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" Is Setting of Country Club Party Given By Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moulton.

THE gossamer fantasy of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was recalled Friday evening at the dinner dance at the St. Louis County Club, given by Mr. and Mrs. William Horace Moulton, 26 Brentmoor, for their debutante niece, Miss Irene Pettus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Pettus of the St. Louis Country Club grounds.

Fronds of rose and lavender artificial wistaria hung from the ceilings, green with smilax, and simulated fireflies flickered among the clustered blossoms, which decorated the middle lounge of the club, the main dining room, the private alcove and the terrace inclosed under a canopy for the occasion. Early in the evening, a stringed trio played Mendelssohn's music composed for the Shakespeare play.

Tables were set through all the rooms except the east lounge, to which dancing was confined during dinner. One large U-shaped table for debutantes was arranged in the alcove, against a painted midsummer scene, mottled at intervals by fleecy clouds passing across the face at the full, crimson moon. Other debutantes and their escorts were seated at a large table in the main dining room, one wing of which was reserved for the stags. On all the tables pastel-toned snapdragons and shell pink tapers were used for decorations. The guests, numbering about 350, included all of the season's debutantes; friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Pettus, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Moulton, of Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Moulton's son-in-law and daughter, who have recently ocme to St. Louis from Kansas City; of another son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett Jr., and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins Moulton.

A strolling accordion player provided entertainment during dinner, and after the tables were removed, dancing continued until dawn, interrupted only for breakfast, which was served, buffet style, after midnight.

The guest of honor, who made her formal debut at a reception which her mother gave for her at home in the late afternoon Thursday, Oct. 31, wore the gown in which she was presented to His Majesty the Veiled Prophet at the Coliseum. It is of rich green velvet with a metal sheen, made with a full skirt of the velvet over silver cloth. Her shoulder corsage was of purple orchids. The hostess was in black velvet with a yoke of crystal beading.

Preceding the dinner dance, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hitchcock, 16 Ridgemoor drive, gave a cocktail party in honor of Miss Judith Oliver, Miss Ann Elizabeth Shapleigh and Miss Ruth Bixby Stevens.

Gold Rush Party At Woman's Club

A DANCE hall of the nineties such as Robert W. Service described in his poems of the Yukon valley will be set up in the ballroom of the St. Louis Woman's Club Saturday night at the Klondike Gold Rush party being arranged by the juniors. Prizes have been offered for the best costumes worn by the guests who have been asked to come dressed as sourdoughs and dance hall girls of 1898. Incidents from those days are to be included in skits and musical numbers sung from the stage during dinner.

Mrs. Nelson Lawnin is chairman of decorations, with Mrs. Edmond A. B. Garesche as vice chairman, and the following assistants: Mrs. Hugh M. Bowen, Mrs. John Clayton, Mrs. Jerome F. Kircher, Mrs. Russell E. Lortz, Mrs. George K. Miltenberger, Mrs. Albert E. Happel, and Mrs. T. Middleton Lewis.

Junior League Book Sale Dec. 7

SEVERAL thousand books are now being sorted for the old book sale the St. Louis Junior League will have from Dec. 7 through Dec. 14, for the various charities in which it is interested. The properties committee, headed by Miss Janet Orthwein, is busy putting the store at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets in order for the sale. Mrs. Roland F. O'Bryen is in charge of painting posters and signs. All the books will be catalogued according to type; mystery stories, novels, poetry, fiction, children's books, biographies, some medical books and old magazines, all ranging in price from 5 cents a copy and up.

Other chairmen of committees for the old book sale are: Mrs. Clarence Maloy, in charge of the morning shift of girls selling books; Mrs. O. P. J. Falk, the afternoon shift; Miss Roccena Baldwin, in charge of the evening shift. Mrs. Isaac C. Orr and Mrs. Warren Lammert, co-chairmen of finances; Mrs. George G. Titzell Jr., Miss Marie Eleanor Busch, Miss Jane Johnson, in charge of delivering and calling for books, and Mrs. Towner Phelan and Mrs. Robert L. Morton Jr., publicity. Until this last spring Mrs. Samuel Capen Jr was collection chairman.

Marian Frank Wed To Richard Kline

MISS MARIAN JEANE FRANK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon M. Frank, 7232 Greenway avenue, University Hills, and Richard J. Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Kline, Clayton and Cella roads, were married last night by Rabbi Ferdinand M. Issermann at Westwood Country Club. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock in the presence of the families and a few close friends who remained for dinner. Decorations consisted of white blossoms banked against the mantel where the bridal party stood, and white roses and bouvardia on the dinner table.

The bride's sisters, Miss Margaret and Miss Virginia Frank, attended her, and Robert Kline was his cousin's best man. Mrs. Kline was married in a gown of cream-colored velvet, a bias cut model with a boat neck, and a long circular train. A heavy corded monk's belt ending in long tassels held the waist line in place. Her tulle wedding veil was arranged from a halo coronet of velvet, and she carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her sisters wore gowns of green crystelle velvet and carried yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kline will spend a week in New York before sailing for Bermuda on their wedding trip. They will live in the Versailles Apartments.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

By LUCIUS BEEBE.

THE cause of Communism, which has always flourished in Manhattan in an atmosphere of caviar, hand kissing, morning coats and champagne, has suffered, it is reported by observers, a decided setback, and is very demode this week among the literati and other fashionable pinkos. It is all due to the entertainment offered by John Arens, the new U. S. S. R. Consul General, who doesn't lavish it the way his predecessor in office did. Consul General Tolokonski, when he came to town, took over Representative Ruth Pratt's magnificent Sixty-first Street mansion and had in the best people. Flunkies flooded them with strong waters; firkins of Astrakhan caviar as big as your shirt stud were wheeled by at frequent intervals. The World Revolt flourished in the midst of splendor of Cecil de Mille proportions and the comrades from along Park Avenue were enchanted. The cause won recruits like crazy, and bourgeoise ideology was heartily damned by monocled gaffers and long-haired book reviewers.

It's all off now, however. The new Consul General gave a literary tea the other afternoon for a pair of visiting word painters from the land of the tractors, and the embattled revolutionists of the town donned their cutaways, gave their silk hats a final polish and set out for a high time while plotting the destruction of the capitalist "system." Nobody went so far as to say they were inhospitably treated, but certainly there were no footmen in knee breeches, no buckets of vintage champagne, no costly furnishings to contribute to the handsome scene. There was punch and biscuits and a bottle of vodka for special guests, and the entire atmosphere for once vaguely resembled the popular concept of life under the Russian deal. It was, in a word, Spartan, and the book reviewers couldn't even work up enthusiasm enough to sing the conventional "International." The World Revolution simply pines and withers around the town unless it is to be accomplished with orchid corsages, magnums of Mumms and the music of the best string quartets.

"Oh, yeah?" "You're telling me?" and "So what?" seem mercifully to have gone their way, although Lois Long continually remarks that she "will thank you to keep a civil tongue in your face," but a new catch phrase promises shortly to drive the town daffy. "Oh, rise above it," hails irritatingly from England, where it is reported to be very fashionable at the moment, and for a time now, whatever happens to you, from getting a foot in the cuspidor to sitting on your top hat, you will be exhorted, "Oh, rise above it!"

Gastronomic explorers around town sooner or later come to a little bistro over in East Forty-fourth street run by the engagingly named Italian, Christ Cella. Mr. Cella is a very loud boniface. Eating in his dining room, which is also his kitchen, is done to the tune of such shouts and roars as make conversation by the guests quite impractical. "How ya like my beef stew with wine sauce, ha?" he screams at a patron, and the windows rattle. "Putta more fire on thatta veal!" he howls to an assistant, and bits of plaster fall from the ceiling. It is extremely unlikely that you will get what you order, but whatever arrives on your plate will be excellent. Somehow in a madhouse atmosphere of smoke, shirt-sleeved garcons bearing bottles of Cinzano, coming, going and hollering, there is evolved a really splendid cuisine. The bouillabaise is magnificent, if you are a fancier of the dish; the liver and bacon, chops, beef stews and steaks are really distinguished chophouse fare.

The establishment is largely frequented at lunch time by publishers and magazine folk from the Grand Central district. Charlie Duell of William Morrow Company is a regular. So is Barry Bingham, who was there one day last week, as were Gene Tunney, Joseph Bryan, 3d, and Amos Pinchot. The whole "Time-Fortune" crowd of executives and editors sometimes descends on the place from the neighboring Chrysler Building, having first telephoned down from the fortieth floor offices to see what the weather is doing at street level. Upstairs is the meeting place of Christopher Morley's Sherlock Holmes, with 22½ Baker street painted on the door and a bust of Conan Doyle on the mantle shelf. There is a Holmes map of Europe on the wall showing the scenes of his various adventures, and Frederick Dorr Steele drawings all over. Mr. Cella, incidentally, has been created a Kentucky Colonel by Gov. Ruby Laffoon. It doesn't interfere with his noisy cooking.

The manners of even the whitest tied and supposedly decorous Manhattanites were adequately commented on by Franchot Tone the other evening at the Colony Restaurant, and a swell job, too. He and Joan Crawford had been subjected to the stares and remarks of other diners in the town's most costly cook shop almost as rudely as they are subjected to the impertinences of autograph fiends at first nights, and as they left the establishment a well known debutante ahead of them remarked to her escort that she couldn't abide the company of actors, they were all show-offs. Miss Crawford was all for pulling her hair, but Tone said loudly: "You mustn't mind, my dear. We must make allowances for tourists."

On the Boulevards: The entire "season" seems to have been moved forward this year, all the big balls and other whist and beanos having been scheduled for before Christmas . . . The reason is that so many folk go to Florida later . . . The Russian Naval Ball next week promises to be the most spectacular cotillon, and every one you ever heard of will be there . . . Statisticians report that there is just no point in John Perona's closing El Morocco at all—people stay so late they might as well be allowed to sit through to the next evening . . . Reliable witnesses swear that Tony Williams was there recently in a dinner suit and Ascot tie . . . For pity's sake, Mister! . . . Geoffrey Parsons has a set of solid gold matches to play the match guessing game with . . . Barracuda steaks are in season at Prunier's . . . Harry Bull complained bitterly that he didn't like the Hurdy Gurdy Ball, but contrived to bear it until just quarter of seven a. m. . . . Many citizens registered horror when Otto Klemperer conducted at Carnegie last week in a short coat . . . Whatever is the world coming to? . . . Bar cars are the rule on all football special trains . . .

King and Queen To Sandringham

LONDON, Nov. 16.

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary left London for their Sandringham country residence immediately after the Armistice day ceremonies for the purpose of disassociating themselves from the election campaign.

Their house guests at Sandringham included Lady Innes-Ker, the former Anne Breese of New York, and her husband, Lord Alastair Innes-Ker, uncle of the present Duke of Roxburghe.

Whitney Straight, with his bride, Lady Daphne Straight, were prominent among the Anglo-Americans at a quiet little banquet ball arranged by the Duke and Duchess of York.

Mrs. Olga Vickers, eldest daughter of the Prince and Princess Alexander Galitzine, announced she will wed Geoffrey Tooth, only son of the late Howard Tooth, famous London physician.

The Earl of Derby, Lord Camrose, and Field Marshal Viscount Allenby will be among the guests at the Pilgrim Society's banquet Nov. 20. The society was formed to promote cordial English-American relations. Prominent members of the Anglo-American colony will be present.

Debut Calendar At Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.

DESPITE the fact the weather has been unseasonably warm, there has been a great impetus to social functions during the past fortnight. The debutante season opened last week and until after Christmas the young members of society will hold sway. Each day some of the 50 girls who have decided to make their bows this season will be presented at luncheons, teas, dinners or balls.

The diplomatic corps has contributed Senorita Amelita de Alfaro, daughter of the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, who has lived most of her life in Washington. She was absent for a year or more when her father returned to Panama to assume the office of President of the republic, but now the family is back. She will be presented at two teas in November, and in December the Minister and Senora de Alfaro will give a ball in the Pan American Union.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter entertained Thursday at a reception to present her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, to society.

Others who will make their bows are Miss Virginia Rodgers, Miss Mariam Scott and Miss Mary Jay. Miss Rodgers is the daughter of Mrs. Philip O. Coffin and Commander C. R. P. Rodgers. Miss Scott is the daughter of Mrs. Russell Sard and Thomas A. Scott, originally Thomas Scott-Thropp. He had his name changed legally and now bears his maternal grandfather's name. Miss Jay's mother, Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay, will present her daughter in both New York and Washington.

Benefit Ball Dec. 13.

The Joint Council of Women's Auxiliaries Welfare Association will conduct its annual benefit ball at 8:30 p. m. Dec. 13 at the Arcadia Ballroom. Proceeds of the ball will be used to help maintain the three homes for women and girls now conducted by the organization.

Social Items From the Army Post

FOLLOWING a review of the regiment and attached troops, Col. and Mrs. Walter C. Short entertained a large group of friends at a tea dance at the Officers' Club from 5 until 7 o'clock Friday afternoon. Col. and Mrs. Short received their guests in the lounge of the club, before the fireplace, which was banked with ferns and garlands of smilax. Baskets filled with yellow and white chrysanthemums were placed on either side of the fireplace. Mrs. Short wore a gown of burgundy lace, fashioned on form-fitting lines, with a matching jacket and slight train. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. The dining room of the club, cleared for dancing, was also decorated with ferns and flowers, and eight sets of regimental colors were placed around the room. Music was furnished by the post orchestra. A four-foot crest of the Sixth United States Infantry, which was flanked on one side by the regimental colors and on the other by the national colors, was placed in front of the fireplace in the dining room. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth in the center of which was a low bowl of yellow, orchid and white chrysanthemums. Tall ivory tapers in silver holders lighted the table. About 200 guests were present.

Lieut. R. W. Jenna and his mother, Mrs. M. W. Jenna, entertained several friends at a buffet supper at the quarters last Saturday afternoon and evening. His guests were Lieut. and Mrs. Roscoe C. Miss Virginia Williams of Poplar Bluff, Mo., spent the week-end on the post as the house guest of Maj. and Mrs. Nels L. Soderholm. Maj. and Mrs. Soderholm entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Roettger and Miss Louise Guill of St. Louis at dinner Sunday noon, at their quarters.

Mrs. C. C. Ellison departed Saturday to spend a month visiting her mother, Mrs. E .W. Erickson of Minneapolis, Minn., and her sister and brother-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Francis of Fairbault, Minn.

Capt. and Mrs. C. E. Gray entertained a group of friends at a dinner and bridge party at their house last Saturday evening. Their guests were Col. and Mrs. C. H. Muller, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, Maj. and Mrs. Charles Henry, Maj. and Mrs. R. E. Murrell, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Sharples, Maj. and Mrs. G. F. Spann, Capt. and Mrs. R. L. Dean, Capt. and Mrs. R. W. Goodyear, Capt. and Mrs. B. M. Harlow, Capt. and Mrs. H. M. Reedall and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crutsinger.

Mrs. Louis W. Truman has started a class in ballroom and tap dancing, for the young men of the post. The first class was held Thursday evening at Lieut. and Mrs. Truman's quarters, with about five boys present. Mrs. Truman is an accomplished dancer and instructor, having studied in St. Louis and New York.

Capt. and Mrs. Roland S. Henderson had as their dinner guests at their quarters Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gardner of Webster Groves.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stevenson of New York, who spent several days in St. Louis this week as the house guests of Mr. Stevenson's parents, were the dinner guests Wednesday evening of Mr. Stevenson's brother-in-law and sister, Lieut. and Mrs. Louis W. Truman.

Lieut. Herman H. Kaesser Jr. departed last Friday for Perkins, Ok., where his marriage to Miss Charlotte Cotton, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert C. Cotton, took place yesterday.

First Lieut. J. L. Bradley, Dental Corps Reserve, arrived on the post Saturday from his home at 409 N. Church street, Virden, Ill., to remain for two weeks' active duty with the station hospital.

Col. Walter C. Short spent Tuesday on a tour of Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Illinois. He visited the following camps: Charleston, Shiloh, Tuscola, LeRoy, Eureka, Pekin, Isaac Walton, New Salem and Jacksonville, which are in the Jefferson Barracks CCC district.

Maj. Floyd V. Kilgore left the post Tuesday to spend a three-day leave of absence visiting friends.

Capt. and Mrs. G. R. Townsend were host and hostess to the following officers and ladies last Tuesday evening at a dinner at their home: Col. and Mrs. C. H. Muller, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Sharples and Maj. and Mrs. James C. Reed.

Maj. and Mrs. Ralph Murrell entertained a group of friends at a buffet supper at their home Saturday evening, among them being Capt. and Mrs. Paul A. Brickey, Capt. and Mrs. Harry Kirsner, Col. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, Maj. and Mrs. G. F. Spann, Maj. and Mrs. Charles Henry, Capt. and Mrs. H. M. Reedall, Maj. and Mrs. Frank Sharples, Mr. and Mrs. O. Treat "Cold Weather Blues" with Miami's Sunshine!

COSTS ARE MODERATE:

200 hotels $2 to $10

5,000 furnished houses, all sizes, and

10,000 "ready to live in" apartments—$200 to $750 for the six-months season, or special weekly and monthly rates. Living expenses are reasonable—light clothes effect real economy. Rates for transportation at special low levels.

WRITE to Chamber of Commerce, Miami, Fla., Department D-5 for illustrated booklet, rates and details.

Come down now—avoid health hazards of unsettled fall and winter weather in the North. It's smart because it's economical. By taking advantage of seasonal rates, and through fuel and heavy clothing economies, visitors find they can enjoy Miami's health and recreational advantages at much the same cost as living at home.

The Sunshine Sports Parade Is On!

Young and old alike find new health and vigor in golden sunshine. Games to play and games to watch enliven their days. Golf, Tennis, Fishing, Yachting, Polo, Horse and Dog Racing, Surf Bathing are available throughout the winter. Nighttime diversions feature headliners of the stage, screen and radio in colorful spas and smart casinos. It's America's gayest, most carefree existence—and it can be yours this season on even the most moderate of vacation budgets.

Hope Levy Engaged To Howard Nussbaum

ANNOUNCEMENT was made Friday of the engagement of Miss Hope M. Levy, daughter of Mrs. Etta Levy of the Congress Hotel, and Howard Nussbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Nussbaum, 6619 San Bonita avenue. The news was told at a luncheon given by Mrs. Levy at the Congress, in honor of Miss Muriel Strumpf of Philadelphia, the guest of Mrs. Rudolph Stulz. The wedding will take place in January.

Miss Levy, whose father was the late William B. Levy, is a graduate of Mary Institute and last year attended Washington University. Mr. Nussbaum is an alumnus of Washington University.

Kathryn Rogers Wed To Dr. G. H. Adles

MR. AND MRS. HARRY E. ROGERS announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Kathryn Elizabeth and Dr. Galen Harry Adles, Nov. 11, at the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church. A dinner followed at the Claridge Hotel.

The day also marked the golden wedding anniversary of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spangler of Lake Charles, La., who were here for the ceremony.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Hahn were best man and matron of honor, respectively, and Miss Carol Rogers, a cousin of the bride, came from Wichita, Kan., to be bridesmaid.

Dr. and Mrs. Adles have gone to Chicago and French Lick Springs, Ind., on their honeymoon and will live with Mr. and Mrs. Rogers at 3850 Cleveland avenue on their return.

The bridegroom is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Max Adles of Du Quoin, Ill. He is a graduate of the St. Louis University Dental School and is a First Lieutenant in the United States Medical Officers' Reserve Corps.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Spangler, who lived here many years while Mr. Spangler was a railroad man, the out-of-town guests included the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. Emma Orvis — Wichita.

Special Program Committee of Wednesday Club to Present Robert Edison Fulton Jr. in a Lecture at Evening Meeting — Robert Lyle Finch of St. Louis University to Address College Club

CONTRARY to its usual custom, the Wednesday Club of St. Louis will hold an evening meeting this week. There will be no meetings during the day. Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock, the special program committee, Mrs. Everett W. Pattison, chairman, will present Robert Edison Fulton Jr. in a lecture on his trip around the world with a motor cycle and a motion picture camera. A reception for members and guests will follow at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Fulton, a graduate of Harvard University, class of 1931, is a direct descendent of Robert Fulton and a godson of Thomas A. Edison.

The Creative Work Class will meet Thursday. Dorothy Gaynor Blake will discuss six original songs by club members. The one-act play contest open to club members will close Dec. 1.

Robert Lyle Finch of St. Louis University will speak at the College Club on "Youth in a Changing World," Tuesday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock. The program will be sponsored by the Parent Education Group.

The lecture will be preceded by several meetings at the club. At 10:30 a. m. Miss May Steinmeach, art instructor at Washington University, will talk on "Creative Art and Your Environment," at a meeting of the Art Study Group. Luncheon will be served at noon when the International Relations Round Table Group will meet. Miss Elizabeth Moore will continue discussions of "Summary and Conclusions." Miss Lorine Pickett will review "Catherine, the Portrait of an Empress," before the Contemporary Literature Group at 1:30 p. m.

Friday, at the afternoon book hour at 5 o'clock, Miss Bertha Doane will review "Of Time and the River," by Wolfe. A buffet supper will follow at 6:45 p. m. The Social Economics Group will meet at 8 p. m. when Miss Lorine Stringer will review "Peter Abelard."

The Tuesday Literary Club of St. Louis will meet at the Artists' Guild Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. A patriotic program will be given. Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw will present the guest speaker, Dr. A. S. Baillie, whose subject will be "The Leadership of America." Dr. Baillie is pastor of Maplewood Christian Church and a teacher of English in the Maplewood High School. Mrs. Charles T. hewell and Mrs. W. M. Whelpley will be hostesses at the tea table.

The Scottish Rite Woman's Club Dramatic Art Section will meet Tuesday at 11:45 a. m. for luncheon. Mrs. H. E. Manker, chairman, will have charge of the meeting. Because of the illness of club members the play which was to have been presented at this time has been canceled. Mrs. Julius L. Berge will preesnt the program "Creative Art," prepared for the September meeting but postponed because of the American Legion parade.

Mrs. Stella Woodrow Barnes will read one of her own plays. Mrs. H. W. Wiese, Mrs. Bergs and Dr. Helen F. Gibson will read original stories. Mrs. Emil C. Wachter will give a series of bird calls and Mrs. Edward Extein, Mrs. Nellie Stewart Cain and Mrs. Phin Kimball will read original to the accompaniment of music composed by Mrs. A. C. ON KSD

TANIA LUBOV

ACTRESS, who is playing "heavy" women's roles in KSD's Friday night Court of Human Relations broadcasts. A native of Russia, she came to this country with her mother when a child, leaving her father, who was three years finding a way to get out of Russia to join his wife and daughter in Chicago.

"HEADIN' SOUTH" is the title of a new program on KSD, at 2 p. m. Sundays, beginning today. It will combine news comment, music. Donald McGibney, who served as war correspondent and soldier in the World War and the Riff war, will be the commentator. Roy Shields, music director for the NBC in the Chicago region, will lead the orchestra. The singer will be Edna Odell, known as the "Hoosier Songbird," who has been heard on numerous network programs, and the Vacation boys trio.

Bob Burns, the Arkansas comedian who won over listeners generally by his work on Rudy Vallee and Paul Whiteman's programs, is expected to play return engagements for Whiteman next Thursday night and on Nov. 28. Everett Marshall, the baritone, also is billed for next Thursday.

Bing Crosby, it is reported, will be Paul Whiteman's "guest" for four of the latter's Thursday night programs on KSD through December. Then Whiteman will take over the series that has been featuring Crosby, and Crosby will continue on the Music Hall program, taking charge of it and importing Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra.

Georges Metaxa On KSD Tonight.

GEORGES METAXA is to succeed Pierre le Brunn as tenor of the Manhattan Merry-Go-Round programs on KSD Sunday nights.

Strickland Gillilan, the humorist who plays the "Cross Roads Philosopher" on KSD's Saturday night Corn Cob Pipe Club program, was born in Virginia, and is widely known as a newspaper man and author. All the other performers on this program, from Pat Binford, the master of ceremonies, to "Jim Grapevine," the yodeler, are native Virginians. The broadcasts come from the studios of WRVA, in Richmond, Va.

Thornton Fisher is billing Frank Thomas, coach of Alabama's "Crimson Tide" eleven, and Howard Jones, coach of the California "Trojans," for his sports broadcast on KSD the night of Saturday, Nov. 23.

Music from Sigmund Romberg's forthcoming "May Wine," will have its premiere on his KSD program Tuesday night with the composer conducting the orchestra. "May Wine" is in rehearsal in New York, and soon will open in Wilmington, Del.

With Al Goodman leading the orchestra, KSD's Saturday night Hit Parade has a new cast headed by Loretta Lee, blues singer. Willie Morris, the New Orleans soprano, who has risen to stardom within the past year, sings light concert songs. Stuart Allen is the tenor. Only the Frim Sisters and Rhythm Kings trios of the old cast are retained. Playing of the 15 hit tunes of the week will continue to be a feature.

Shakespearean Play in Two Installments by the Radio Guild.

SHAKESPEARE'S "King Henry IV" will be performed by the Radio Guild on KWK in two installments—at 3:30 Thursday and at the same time next week. Clayton Hamilton, the playwright and critic, will be the narrator.

Terry La Franconi, a young Italian tenor, who has lived in this country since childhood, will make his network debut on the WJZ chain at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, singing semi-classical, romantic and songs by European composers. Starting in the chorus of the San Francisco Opera Company in 1930, he rose to leading roles in French, Spanish and Italian works with the San Francisco and Los Angeles opera.

Legends of Ireland will be related by Padraic Colum, the Irish poet and playwright, in four weekly broadcasts at 4:15 p. m. Thursday, on the WEAF net, starting Dec. 5.

Stories and anecdotes by some of New York's best known wits will be broadcast from a dinner of the Banshee Club, in honor of George McManus, creator of the Jiggs and Maggie comic, at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on the WEAF net. An "amateur show" will be staged with Bugs Baer, Robert L. Ripley, Lowell Thomas, Damon Runyon, Billy Debeck, Jack Dempsey, Eddie Rickenbacker and Otto Soglow as contestants, and Bill Corum, the sports columnist, ringing the gong. (Probably on KSD.)

Stoopnagle and Budd Separate for a While.

STOOPNAGLE AND BUDD plan to go their separate ways until early next year. Stoopnagle will motor West for a stay on the Pacific Coast. Budd will have a program on the CBS net at 9 p. m. Saturdays, starting Nov. 23. He will lead an orchestra, sing and act as master of ceremonies. Before he and Stoopnagle went on the network, he sang frequently on WGR, Buffalo, N. Y. In 1928 he worked his way to Europe and back as leader of a ship's orchestra, and later had an orchestra at a Lake Erie resort.

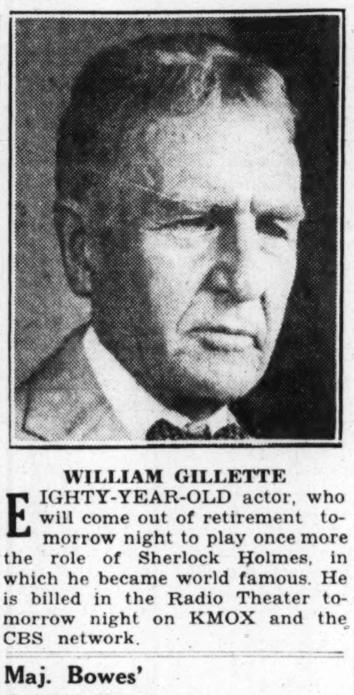
Parts of the new movie, "Captain Blood," starring Errol Flynn and Olivia De Haviland, will be part of the Hollywood Hotel program Friday night.

Ella Logan, the "torch singer" from Scotland, is to be featured in the Band Goes to Town programs at 6:45 p. m. Thursdays on the WJZ net.

Margaret Santry, newspaper writer, will interview persons socially prominent in a new series at 3:45 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays on the CBS net, starting Dec. 2. Jerry Cooper, baritone, and Harold Stern's orchestra also will be featured.

KWK has asked the Federal Communications Commission for permission to move its transmitter from Kirkwood to a point half a mile southwest of the intersection of the Water Works Railroad and the main line of the Burlington Railroad.

Betty Winkler has joined the cast for Curtain Time, at 3:30 Sundays, on WMAQ.



WILLIAM GILLETTE

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD actor, who will come out of retirement tomorrow night to play once more the role of Sherlock Holmes, in which he became world famous. He is billed in the Radio Theater tomorrow night on KMOX and the CBS network.

Maj. Bowes' Capitol Family Anniversary Today.

CHARLES HUGHES and June Meredith, who played the "First Nighter" and feminine "leads," respectively, in KSD's First Nighter dramas, are to be featured in a new Mutual network show, "Behind the Camera Lines," with an orchestra and cast of 25 other actors. The show will be carried by WLW, WGN and WOR.

The thirteenth anniversary of Maj. Edward Bowes' Sunday morning Capitol Family program is to be celebrated at 10:30 this morning on WMAQ (670 kc), WOW (590) and some other WEAF network stations. M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., will be the principal speaker. Also on the program will be Odette Myrtil, the French comedienne; the Pickens Sisters trio, the Sizzlers trio and others, while the orchestra will be led by Waldo Mayo.

Frank Parker, the tenor, will be Ben Bernie's guest Tuesday night.

Clyde Lucas and his orchestra replace Aldo Ricci and his band on Phil Duey's Rendezvous program Wednesday night, Ward Wilson will be the master of ceremonies.

The Notre Dame Glee Club will sing on the CBS net at 11 a. m. Saturday.

William Gillette as "Sherlock Holmes" in Radio Theater.

WILLIAM GILLETTE, who is "Sherlock Holmes" to theater goers, will come out of retirement to play his famous role once again, at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Radio Theater on the CBS net and KMOX. Gillette is 80 years old. His performance tomorrow night will mark the sixtieth anniversary of his first stage appearance and the thirty-sixth of his first appearance in "Sherlock Holmes." The play was written by Gillette in collaboration with Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the "Sherlock Holmes" detective stories. Richard Barthelmess and Lillian and Dorothy Gish will play "Way Down East" in the Radio Theater on Nov. 25.

For the concert at 6:30 p. m. yesterday, Edward D'Anna's Band programmed "From the Halls of Montezuma" for the special benefit of 350 survivors of Forty-ninth Company, Fifth U. S. Marines. The story behind it all goes back to 1918 when 16-year-old Carl Snare joined the company, his big brother's "outfit," in France just after his brother was killed in battle. Snare, the youngest survivor of the company, will be married Dec. 7. The tribute last night was arranged by Frank H. Garvin of Chicago, who served with Snare's brother and is the author of a book, based on exploits of the Forty-ninth Company, in which the Snare boys figure prominently.

Ben Smith, of the Theater Guild; Roman Bohnen, of the Pulitzer prize winning Group Theater, and Katherine Standing, the British actress, who is a daughter of Sir Guy Standing, will be the featured players in several episodes in the Roses and Drums dramas Sunday afternoons, beginning today. Bohnen will play Gen. William T. Sherman; Miss Standing, the Southern woman Gen. Sherman had known in happier days, and Smith, "Philip Wyman," Northern spy, who is the third officer to fall in love with "Betty Graham," the Confederate secret service operative.

Frank Cooley of St. Louis, is among the announcers added recently to the staff of WLW, Cincinnati.

Jane Froman and James Melton will head the cast in a Light Opera Hour performance of selections from the new movie, "Stars Over Broadway," Friday night.

Aircraft Short Wave Radio

All-Wave Set Owners Can "Listen in" on Pilots Talking, Often in "Trade Jargon," to Ground Stations—Bits of Drama Frequently Overheard.

RADIO has become as indispensable to aviation as the signal block is to the railroad. Commercial airplanes operating over the airways of the United States are in frequent communication with ground stations.

All ranges of frequencies are used in the navigation of aircraft. Short waves are specified for communication from plane to ground and from company radio station to plane. The long waves are utilized for navigation and by the Department of Commerce for transmitting weather information to pilots. Airport stations also transmit traffic regulations on the long waves.

Due to the various frequencies and the "trade jargon" encountered on tuning in the airways, the home listener more than likely feels dizzy after the first few attempts. There is so much information to be passed between a pilot and the ground station in a limited time, that many short cuts are taken in the conversation, to the confusion of the uninitiated listener. There is system behind it all, however, and the home listener may find out what it is all about with little trouble, as explained by Archie League, plane dispatcher at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

By way of illustration, take up the radio communication systems of two air lines operating out of St. Louis. One line operattes on 4967 kilocycles in the daytime and on 3088 kilocycles at night. The other line uses 4917 kilocycles for day operation and 3127 kilocycles after sundown. Some frequencies work better at night, which accounts for the change.

Perplexing at First.

THE frequencies of the first company are used in the area between Kansas City and St. Louis to New York, and Kansas City, Chicago and New York. West of Kansas City, the frequency is changed because there is so much traffic between stations that there is not enough time during the hour to carry all of it on the same frequency.

The second company uses its frequencies for communication between all ground stations and planes between Chicago, St. Louis and Fort Worth, Tex. This frequency is also used between Chicago, Cincinnati and Washington,

DICTION MEDAL WINNER

ALOIS HAVRILLA

WINNER of this year's Radio Diction Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. This award is given annually to the announcer whose diction, in the judgment of the Academy's committee, has been outstanding during the preceding 12 months. There was no award last year. In previous years, the medal was awarded to Milton J. Cross, Alwyn Bach, John Holbrook, David Ross and James Wallington. Of the six medal winners, five were NBC network announcers who have been heard many times on KSD. Ross the winner in 1932, is one of the CBS network announcers.

Martha Sleeper, stage and movie actress, will play a role in the K-7 Secret Service playlet on the WEAF net at 6 p. m. today.

Jeritza, Ponselle In Broadcasts Thursday Night

"Pagliacci" Definitely Billed at 11:30 A. M. Today — New York Philharmonic to Play Schumann and Beethoven Symphonies—Cyrena van Gordon and Rose Bampton, Soloists in Tonight's Concerts.

Radio Concerts.

LEONCAVALLO'S opera, "Pagliacci," which originally was scheduled for last Sunday only to be replaced by a concert of Wagner's music, will be broadcast in the Radio City concert at 11:30 this morning on KWK, it was announced. Jan Peerce, Robert Weede and Viola Philo are billed in the leading roles.

Schumann's Third Symphony and Beethoven's Seventh will be played by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at 2 p. m. today on KMOX and the CNS net. Otto Klemperer will conduct.

The "Cavatina," from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," will be Cyrena Van Gordon's principal song with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra at 8 p. m. today on KMOX. The contralto also will sing half a dozen songs. The principal orchestra music will be the prelude to "Die Meistersinger" and Grieg's Peer Gynt suite, No. 2.

Rose Bampton, the Metropolitan Opera contralto, has programmed the "Che faro Senza Euridice" aria from Gluck's "Orfeo and Euridice," the "Connais-to le pays" air from "Mignon" and several songs for the concert at 9 p. m. today on WSM, WMAQ and the WEAF net. The orchestra will feature the Largo from Dvorak's "New World" symphony, the fandango from the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Caprice Espagnole."

Thursday will bring radio appearances by Rosa Ponselle and Maria Jeritza. Jeritza will sing in the concert at 7:30 p. m. on KMOX and the CBS net, Ponselle on the World Peaceways program at 8:30 p. m. on KMOX. A speaker of note and a playlet adapted from Norman Archibald's "Heaven High, Hell Deep" also are scheduled for the Peaceways period.

Leon Sametini, a violinist of note, has joined WGN's concert orchestra as concertmaster and soloist. He may be heard in the WGN concerts of good music today, Wednesday and Thursday, and at intervals throughout the week.

Weekday radio concerts scheduled include:

Tomorrow—7:30 p. m. on KSD, Richard Crooks, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera; Margaret Speaks and William Daly's orchestra; 8:30 p. m. on KSD, Grace Moore and Richard Bonelli.

Tuesday—12:45 noon, on WJZ, symphony concert from Rochester, N. Y.; 4 p. m., on KSD, Civic Orchestra of Boston; 7:30 p. m., on KMOX, Lawrence Tibbett, the baritone.

Wednesday—12:45 p. m., another concert from Rochester; 8 p. m. on KMOX, Nino Martini, of the Metropolitan Opera; 8 p. m., on KWK, John Charles Thomas, the baritone; 9:30 p. m., on WGN, Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and orchestra.

Thursday—7:30 p. m., on KMOX, Maria Jeritza; 8:30 p. m., on KMOX, Rosa Ponselle.

Friday—10 a. m., on KSD, Walter Damrosch's Music Appreciation concert.

Saturday—10 a. m., on KMOX, concert by Cincinnati Conservatory of Music; 8 p. m. on KMOX, Lily Pons.

Three hours of symphonic music may be enjoyed by listeners Saturday night, Nov. 30, when KWK and the WJZ net will carry the Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert from 7:15 to 8:15 and WGN will broadcast a concert by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for two hours, from 8:15 to 10:15 o'clock.

Kirsten Flagstad, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who will give a recital in the Municipal Auditorium Tuesday night, will be the soloist with Victor Kolar's orchestra next Sunday night, when she will sing arias from operas by Wagner and Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich."

Lucrezia Bori of the Metropolitan Opera will be the soloist next Sunday night in the concert at 9 o'clock.

Jose Iturbi, the Spanish pianist, to play Mozart's E-flat Concerto with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra next Sunday afternoon.

A seventeenth century mass, "Catalonian Missa pro Defunctis," whose composer is unknown, will be sung by the Choral Society of the University of Pennsylvania at 1:30 p. m. next Sunday on the CBS net.

A concert by the Portland Junior Symphony orchestra is set for 10:30 p. m. Saturday on the CBS net. Schubert's Seventh Symphony is programmed.

Grace Moore will be back in KSD's 7:30 p. m. concert tomorrow, it is announced, and will have Richard Bonelli, the Metropolitan Opera baritone, as her "guest."

The premiere of a Scherzo in G-minor by Gustave Lengenus, clarinetist of the trio, and the playing of two pieces in manuscript by the late Charles T. Griffes, will be features of a concert by the New York Chamber Music Society concert at 9:30 p. m. Friday on the WJZ net.

A broadcast from Austria, at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, on the WEAF net, will bring a concert by the Vienna Symphony Orchestra, led by Bruno Walter. One of the Beethoven symphonies will be played.

DICTION MEDAL WINNER

ALOIS HAVRILLA

WINNER of this year's Radio Diction Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. This award is given annually to the announcer whose diction, in the judgment of the Academy's committee, has been outstanding during the preceding 12 months. There was no award last year. In previous years, the medal was awarded to Milton J. Cross, Alwyn Bach, John Holbrook, David Ross and James Wallington. Of the six medal winners, five were NBC network announcers who have been heard many times on KSD. Ross the winner in 1932, is one of the CBS network announcers.

Martha Sleeper, stage and movie actress, will play a role in the K-7 Secret Service playlet on the WEAF net at 6 p. m. today.

Jeritza, Ponselle In Broadcasts Thursday Night

"Pagliacci" Definitely Billed at 11:30 A. M. Today — New York Philharmonic to Play Schumann and Beethoven Symphonies—Cyrena van Gordon and Rose Bampton, Soloists in Tonight's Concerts.

Radio Concerts.

LEONCAVALLO'S opera, "Pagliacci," which originally was scheduled for last Sunday only to be replaced by a concert of Wagner's music, will be broadcast in the Radio City concert at 11:30 this morning on KWK, it was announced. Jan Peerce, Robert Weede and Viola Philo are billed in the leading roles.

Schumann's Third Symphony and Beethoven's Seventh will be played by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at 2 p. m. today on KMOX and the CNS net. Otto Klemperer will conduct.

The "Cavatina," from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," will be Cyrena Van Gordon's principal song with Victor Kolar's symphony orchestra at 8 p. m. today on KMOX. The contralto also will sing half a dozen songs. The principal orchestra music will be the prelude to "Die Meistersinger" and Grieg's Peer Gynt suite, No. 2.

Rose Bampton, the Metropolitan Opera contralto, has programmed the "Che faro Senza Euridice" aria from Gluck's "Orfeo and Euridice," the "Connais-to le pays" air from "Mignon" and several songs for the concert at 9 p. m. today on WSM, WMAQ and the WEAF net. The orchestra will feature the Largo from Dvorak's "New World" symphony, the fandango from the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Caprice Espagnole."

Thursday will bring radio appearances by Rosa Ponselle and Maria Jeritza. Jeritza will sing in the concert at 7:30 p. m. on KMOX and the CBS net, Ponselle on the World Peaceways program at 8:30 p. m. on KMOX. A speaker of note and a playlet adapted from Norman Archibald's "Heaven High, Hell Deep" also are scheduled for the Peaceways period.

Leon Sametini, a violinist of note, has joined WGN's concert orchestra as concertmaster and soloist. He may be heard in the WGN concerts of good music today, Wednesday and Thursday, and at intervals throughout the week.

Weekday radio concerts scheduled include:

Tomorrow—7:30 p. m. on KSD, Richard Crooks, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera; Margaret Speaks and William Daly's orchestra; 8:30 p. m. on KSD, Grace Moore and Richard Bonelli.

Tuesday—12:45 noon, on WJZ, symphony concert from Rochester, N. Y.; 4 p. m., on KSD, Civic Orchestra of Boston; 7:30 p. m., on KMOX, Lawrence Tibbett, the baritone.

Wednesday — 12:45 p. m., another concert from Rochester; 8 p. m. on KMOX, Nino Martini, of the Metropolitan Opera; 8 p. m., on KWK, John Charles Thomas, the baritone; 9:30 p. m., on WGN, Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and orchestra.

Thursday—7:30 p. m., on KMOX, Maria Jeritza; 8:30 p. m., on KMOX, Rosa Ponselle.

Friday—10 a. m., on KSD, Walter Damrosch's Music Appreciation concert.

Saturday—10 a. m., on KMOX, concert by Cincinnati Conservatory of Music; 8 p. m. on KMOX, Lily Pons.

Three hours of symphonic music may be enjoyed by listeners Saturday night, Nov. 30, when KWK and the WJZ net will carry the Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert from 7:15 to 8:15 and WGN will broadcast a concert by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for two hours, from 8:15 to 10:15 o'clock.

Kirsten Flagstad, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who will give a recital in the Municipal Auditorium Tuesday night, will be the soloist with Victor Kolar's orchestra next Sunday night, when she will sing arias from operas by Wagner and Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich."

Lucrezia Bori of the Metropolitan Opera will be the soloist next Sunday night in the concert at 9 o'clock.

Jose Iturbi, the Spanish pianist, is to play Mozart's E-flat Concerto with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra next Sunday afternoon.

A seventeenth century mass, "Catalonian Missa pro Defunctis," whose composer is unknown, will be sung by the Choral Society of the University of Pennsylvania at 1:30 p. m. next Sunday on the CBS net.

A concert by the Portland Junior Symphony orchestra is set for 10:30 p. m. Saturday on the CBS net. Schubert's Seventh Symphony is programmed.

Grace Moore will be back in KSD's 7:30 p. m. concert tomorrow, it is announced, and will have Richard Bonelli, the Metropolitan Opera baritone, as her "guest."

The premiere of a Scherzo in G-minor by Gustave Lengenus, clarinetist of the trio, and the playing of two pieces in manuscript by the late Charles T. Griffes, will be features of a concert by the New York Chamber Music Society concert at 9:30 p. m. Friday on the WJZ net.

A broadcast from Austria, at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday, on the WEAF net, will bring a concert by the Vienna Symphony Orchestra, led by Bruno Walter. One of the Beethoven symphonies will be played.

A full hour of music from Jerome Kern's operettas will make up the Show Boat program Thursday night. Clyde Barrie, the Negro baritone, and the chorus, will sing "Ol' Man River."

Metropolitan Opera Planned Again for Saturday Afternoons.

UNOFFICIAL announcement is that there will be Metropolitan Opera broadcasts on Saturday afternoons again this winter, starting, probably, during the Christmas season. The announcement said that the NBC had made the arrangements with the Metropolitan Opera management.

Whether the opera broadcasts will be sponsored or not is a question. Because union rules require that the musicians in the opera orchestra be paid $12 an hour extra for broadcasts, which means about $3500 for each performance put on the air, the NBC has had difficulty in obtaining a sponsor. It is reported that the NBC has paid around $100,000 a season for the opera broadcasting rights. The broadcasts were sponsored in 1933 and 1934.

Radio Pre-View of Max Reinhardt's Road of Promise.

MUSIC from Max Reinhardt's "The Road of Promise," soon to be produced on Broadway, will be heard in a broadcast on the WJZ net at 7:15 p. m. Saturday that will displace the Boston Symphony Orchestra concert, Frank Black's symphony orchestra, a chorus and soloists, will perform the work, which is based on a morality play by Franz Werfel, written around a theme from the Old Testament and translated into English by Ludwig Lewisohn. The score is by Kurt Weill, composer of the music for "The Beggars' Opera." Weill first made a success as a composer in 1929, when his "Lindbergh's Flight," for orchestra, soloist and chorus, was performed at the Baden-Baden festival. The scheduling of this broadcast appears to be in conformity with the custom of throwing out one fine program to make room for another, a custom that for years has caused complaint. Possibly the Boston Symphony Orchestra cannot broadcast next Saturday. If so, better the promising Max Reinhardt program than some ordinary "filler." If not, it would seem that some other time could have been found for it, or that some commercial sponsor might have been given the opportunity to cultivate listener good will by giving up his time to the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The Romany Singers are billed again for the Gypsies concert tomorrow night on KSD. Ben Klassen, the tenor who succeeded Jan Peerce on this program, will sing "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline," and "Red Balls in the Sunset."

Broadcast From Rumania Today, Latvia Tomorrow.

A BROADCAST from Rumania is scheduled at 11:45 a. m. today on the CBS net. It will consist of folk songs by the Carmen Choir and the Dinicu Gypsy orchestra and, possibly, an address by Foreign Minister Titulescu.

At 5 p. m. today, the WJZ net will carry a broadcast from Poland including a description in English of the dedication of the memorial to the late Marshal Pilsudski at Cracow and music by an orchestra and chorus and an address by United States Ambassador John Cudahy. The memorial is a large mound, just outside Cracow, capital of the old Polish kings. It is made of earth from every state in this country and from the various sections of Poland.

The first broadcast from Latvia will come from its capital, Riga, at 3:15 tomorrow on the CBS chain. It will celebrate the seventeenth anniversary of independence for Latvia, and will include songs of the country, music by a radio orchestra and a talk by Karlis Ulmanis, Prime Minister and dictator of Latvia Ulmanis was a student in the University of Nebraska before the World War, and returned home to play a part in his country's struggle for independence, which was won in 1918. Latvia, with a population of about 2,000,000, mostly peasants, had been under the domination of Germany, Poland or Russia for seven centuries.

The fight in New York between the large hotels and the musicians' union over a tax of $3 per broadcast per man in any orchestra broadcasting from a hotel, which has kept "big name" bands playing in that city off the air for months, seems at last to have been settled. As a result, several orchestras in big New York hotels have returned to broadcasting, and more are expected to follow.

Aircraft Short Wave Radio

D. C. Stations outside the areas mentioned operate on a different frequency, making it necessary to establish key stations equipped to transmit on more than one wave length.

All airways' radio stations on a certain frequency have specified periods for broadcasting. Planes flying in the sector between Kansas City, St. Louis and Columbus, O., are contacted at 20 minutes and 50 minutes after the hour. Kansas City starts the sequence. It goes something like this: "Kansas City to flight four, go ahead St. Louis. St. Louis to flight four, go ahead." This tells the initiated listener that a certain company has a plane in the air between Kansas City and St. Louis. This flight number indicates the direction in which the ship is flying. All flights with even numbers are eastbound, flights with uneven numbers are westbound.

The pilot's reply goes something like this: "Plane number 323 flight four answering St. Louis. Over Columbia at 10,000. High scattered, unlimited. Lower scattered at 4000. Visibility 12 miles, hazy. Temperature 50. Will arrive St. Louis schedule." The report is repeated by the ground station addressed, and verified by the pilot.

The information the flyer furnished was this: He was over the town of Columbia, Mo., at an altitude of 10,000 feet. Above him were high scattered clouds. The "ceiling" was unlimited. Below him were scattered clouds 4000 feet above the ground. He could see 12 miles in all compass directions, and haze prevented farther vision. The temperature outside the plane was 50 degrees. He expetced to arrive at St. Louis on time.

Planes flying between St. Louis and Chicago, operating on 4917 and 3127 kilicycles, are contacted at 22 and 52 minutes past the hour. In this particular instance, the pilot reports his position by mileage, instead of naming a town on the course. Northbound planes are designated either as "Narrow" or "Nomad." Southbound ships are announced as "Standard." The system of designation is very simple. When the character name begins with "N" the plane is northbound, a name beginning with "S" denotes a southbound ship.

Planes flying between St. Louis and Fort Worth, Tex., report their positions by block numbers and give their mileage from Fort Worth. These ships are reached by radio at four and 34 minutes after the hour. Quite often the code letters CAVU are used by a pilot in a position report. This means: "Calling and visibility unlimited."

Private planes equipped with two-way radio are assigned a frequency of 3105 kilocycles. Army flyers use several frequencies for two- way communication. Flight leaders are able to communicate with all planes in a formation by radio-telephone.

The Department of Commerce operates 2000-watt transmitters on frequencies between 200 and 400 kilocycles. The station at Lambert-St. Louis Field is on 290 kilocycles. These stations transmit weather information at scheduled periods and between broadcasts send out radio courses or beams for navigation purposes. Airport traffic control stations are assigned a frequency of 278 kilocycles. This falls in the Department of Commerce frequency band, permitting any plane equipped to receive weather information or radio beam signals to also receive traffic control directions. Traffic control is restricted to the area within 20 miles of the airport.

Ranges of the various broadcasts are as follows: Department of Commerce, 300 miles; TWA and American Airlines, 400 watt stations, any section of the United States; plane transmitters, 50 watt, 400 miles day time, coast-to-coast at night.

Dr. Brinkley Gets Back His XER in Mexico.

REPORTS from Mexico are that a decision by the Mexican Supreme Court will result in Dr. John R. Brinkley regaining his 75,000-watt XER, at Villa Acuna. The station, which is across the Rio Grande River from Del Rio, Tex., at one time had a large audience in this country. It was closed when fines of more that 600,000 pesos were levied for alleged violation of rulings on radio programs by the Mexican Government.

Following the court's decision soldiers were withdrawn from the station. Work repairing the transmitter and replacing equipment ruined by disuse is under way. Whether Dr. Brinkley will again use the station to broadcast his medical opinions and advice has not been disclosed.

The vocational guidance periods in the School of the Air on the CBS net and KMOX, started as an experiment last year, have been made a permanent feature, at 1:30 Fridays.

A hearing of an application by Springfield Newspapers, Inc., for permission to operate a daytime station on 710 kilocycles with 100 watts power has been continued by the Federal Communications Commission until Dec. 4.

Kenny Baker, the young California tenor, has won the permanent job of tenor stooge for Jack Benny.

Hendrik van Loon, the historian, will review his own book, "Air-Storming," in his broadcast at 7:45 p. m. today on the WJZ net. The book, dedicated to John F. Royal, NBC vice-president in charge of programs, contains broadcast programs substantially as they were heard on the air.

Sally Foster, a 17-year-old singer who has been on Wisconsin stations, made her network debut last night in the National Barn Dance broadcast.

Ruth Etting, who declared a while ago that she was through with radio and would go on a world tour, is likely to be broadcasting again in 1936.

Archbishop John T. McNichols' address at the convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, will be broadcast from Fort Wayne, Ind., at 11 a. m. today on the CBS net.

Eleanor Powell, radio and screen actress, singer and dancer, has signed a long-term contract for the Flying Red Horse Tavern series Friday nights on KMOX and the CBS net. She has been on the program as a "guest" since Oct. 25.

WLW is broadcasting its Latin-American Los Amigos concert at 10:15 p. m. Wednesdays.

Louis Armstrong, the Negro trumpet player, and his orchestra may be heard at 10 p. m. Thursdays and Fridays on the CBS net.

President Ford Frick of the National Baseball League will return to radio Nov. 30 to assist Stan Lomax in broadcasting the Army-Navy football game on the Mutual network.

WWL, New Orleans, is broadcasting messages from wives and friends to fishermen in boats on the Gulf of Mexico and tributary waters. The broadcasts go out at 10:30 p. m. Saturdays on 850 kilocycles.

Mary Steele, who formerly was the "Lullaby Lady" on KSD's Monday night Morgan L. Eastman program, has been engaged to sing on Roy Shields' Thursday night programs. Margaret Gent, of Chicago, is now the "Lullaby Lady."

When the Dutch Schultz gang murder was reported by the newspapers, WOR, Newark, N. J., broadcast an appeal to listeners for the names of witnesses and any other information that might prove helpful to the police.

Music in harmony with the name of the program, "Spanish Caballeros," will be featured by Walter Blaufuss and a novelty orchestra at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday on the WJZ net.

Ray Knight and his Cuckoos will shift to Saturday, at 5:05 p. m., on the WJZ net.

Human interest stories of the bureaus of Air Commerce, Lighthouse, Patent Office and seven other divisions of the United States Department of Commerce will be told in a weekly series at 3 p. m. Mondays on the CBS network, beginning Nov. 25. Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will be among the speakers on the opening program.

FIVE BOYS EARN $44.00
DURING FIRST WEEK AS YOUNG SALESMEN

Left to Right—Melvin Haselhorst, Walter Wissman, Roy Miller, Carl Radford, Harold Iserman.

Five boys, who only recently enrolled in the Post-Dispatch Young Salesmen's League, shared $44.00 in part-time earnings during their first week of work.

Walter Wissman Earned — $14.50
Harold Iserman Earned — 13.50
Carl Radford Earned — 6.50
Roy Miller Earned — 5.00
Melvin Haselhorst Earned — 4.50

What They Did—You Can Do

Any ambitious boy who is willing to work can equal or better these results. The carefully directed sales training given Post-Dispatch Young Salesmen makes a long apprenticeship without pay unnecessary. Boys who have devoted conscientious, persevering spare-time effort to this sales plan have achieved substantial weekly earnings from the beginning.

How to Enroll

School boys 16 years of age and older, living in St. Louis, East St. Louis or St. Louis County, who are not now engaged in the sale or delivery of the Post-Dispatch, are invited to join the many boys who are now making their spare time pay them a weekly income. You may arrange for an appointment to learn all about the Post-Dispatch Young Salesmen's League by forwarding the coupon below or telephoning MAin 1111, Station 406.

Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. George K. Miltenberger and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Page.

Dr. and Mrs. Williams returned last week from New Orleans where Dr. Williams attended a dental convention.

Miss Jane Patterson, 165 South Maple avenue, entertained at a bridge luncheon Thursday for Miss Catherine Siegmund, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter F. Siegmund, 225 West Swon avenue, who will be married to William Henry Dittmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dittmann, 547 Sherwood drive, Nov. 30. The guests were: Miss Susie Flint, Miss Marjorie Remington, Miss Eloise Megginson, Miss Christine Siegmund, Miss Virginia Grace and Miss Peggy Ray.

The Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Webster Groves was decorated with large bouquets of white chrysanthemums for the wedding last night of Miss Beatrice Ann Rosebrough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy W. Rosebrough, 500 Atalanta avenue, to Calvin Lister McComb, son of Mrs. Nancy McComb, 504 Atalanta avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Manly Cobb.

The bride was gowned in an ankle-length dress of brown velvet with long dolman sleeves and a cowl neckline. Her hat and slippers were brown trimmed with gold, and she wore a corsage of yellow roses. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Marjorie Rosebrough, whose dress was of henna georgette made with a cowl neckline and long sleeves full to the elbow. She wore a small brown velvet turban, brown suede shoes and a corsage of talisman roses.

John Brown of Webster Groves was Mr. McComb's best man. Following the ceremony a buffet supper for the two families took place at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride, who has been dietician in the University Hospital at Columbia, Mo., is a graduate of the University of Missouri. She and Mr. McComb will live in Richmond Heights.

The Fortnightly Dancing Club will hold its second dance of the season next Friday evening at the Monday Club, with Mrs. Leonard C. Martin, 22 Joy avenue, in charge. She will be assisted by: Mrs. Edwin Alexander Schmid, Sappington and Manchester roads; Mrs. M. Donovan Curran, 301 Berry road; Mrs. Norman Chivvis, 116 Jefferson road, and Mrs. Forrest C. Donnell, 55 Joy avenue.

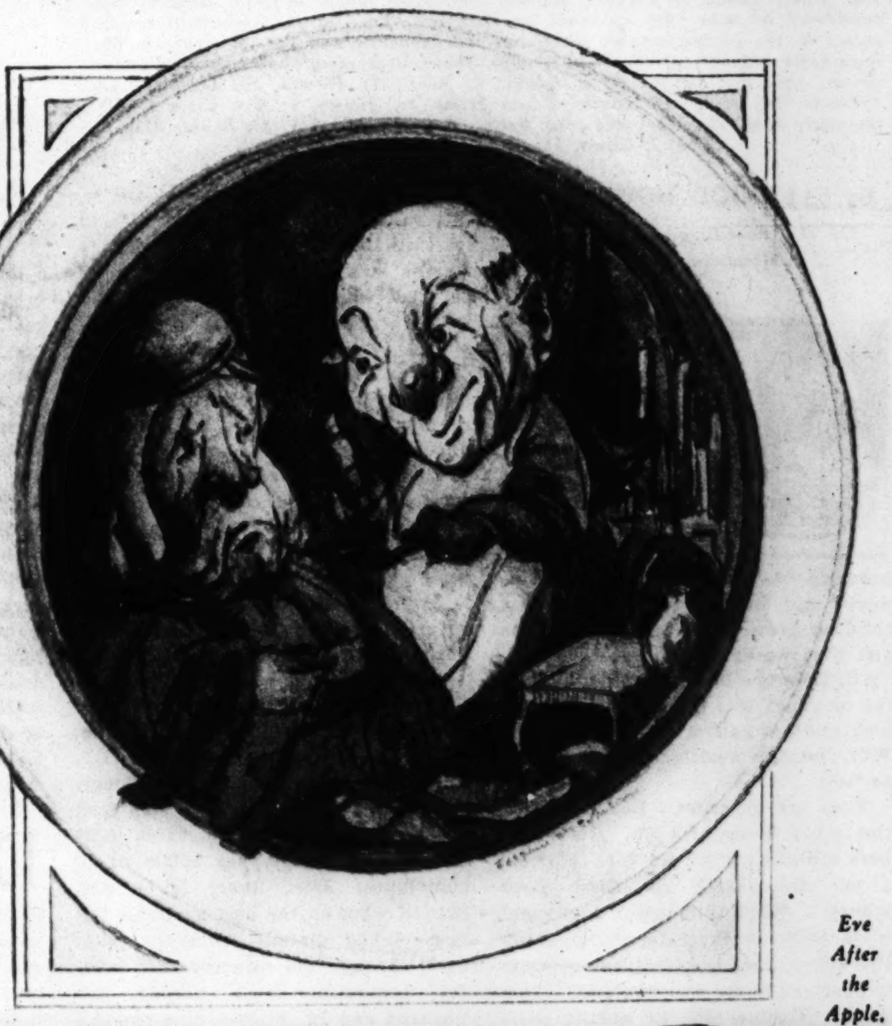
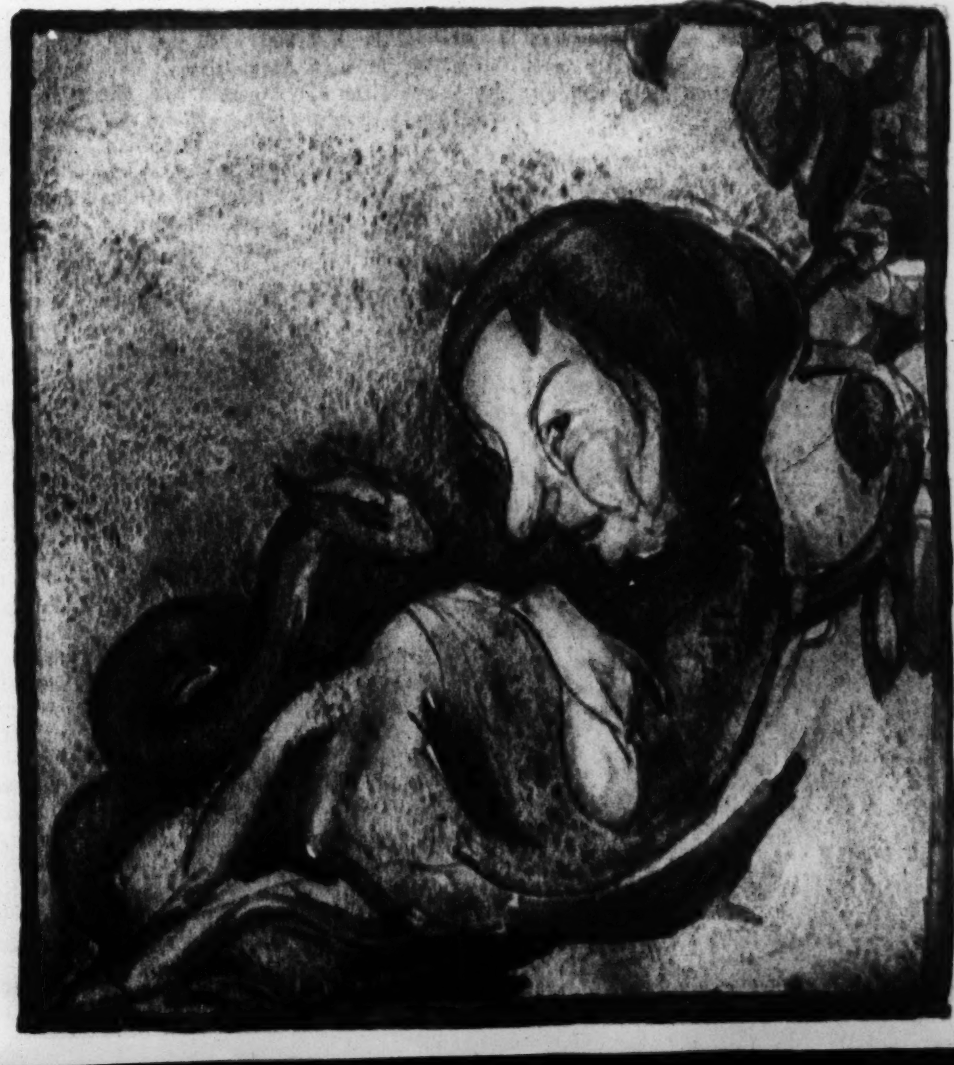
Josephine Johnson as an Artist

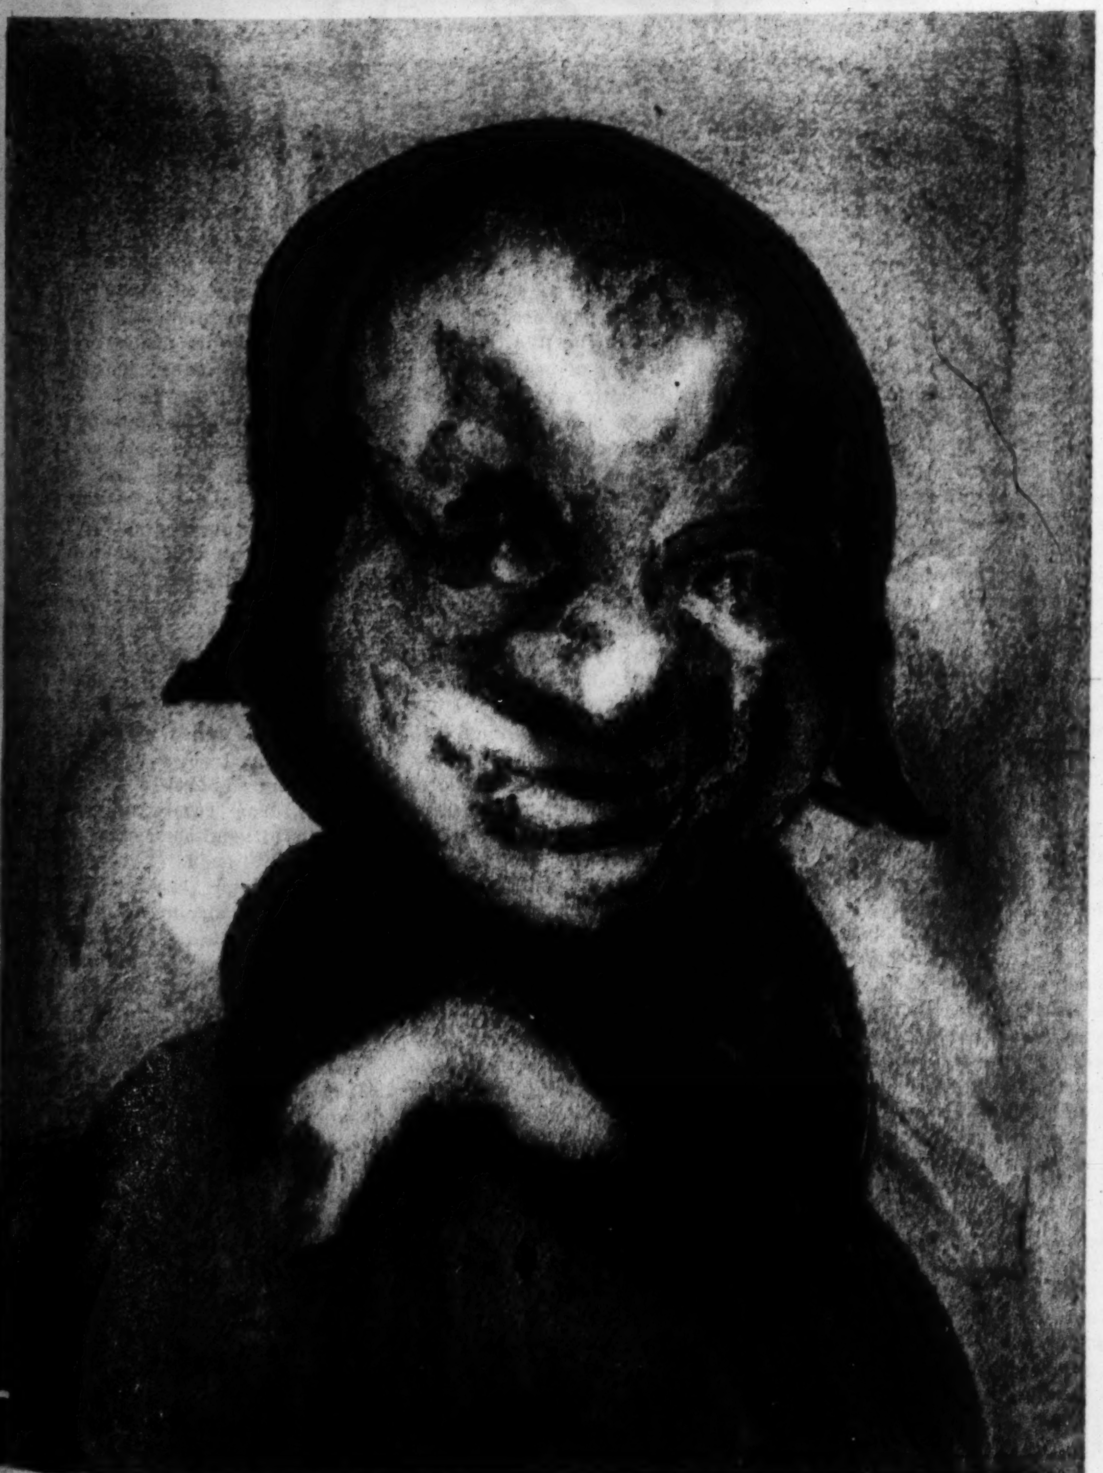
The Bizarre Fantasies of a Pulitzer Prize Novelist, as Expressed in Water Colors.



The Monarch and the Monk.



Eve After the Apple.



French Peasant Woman.

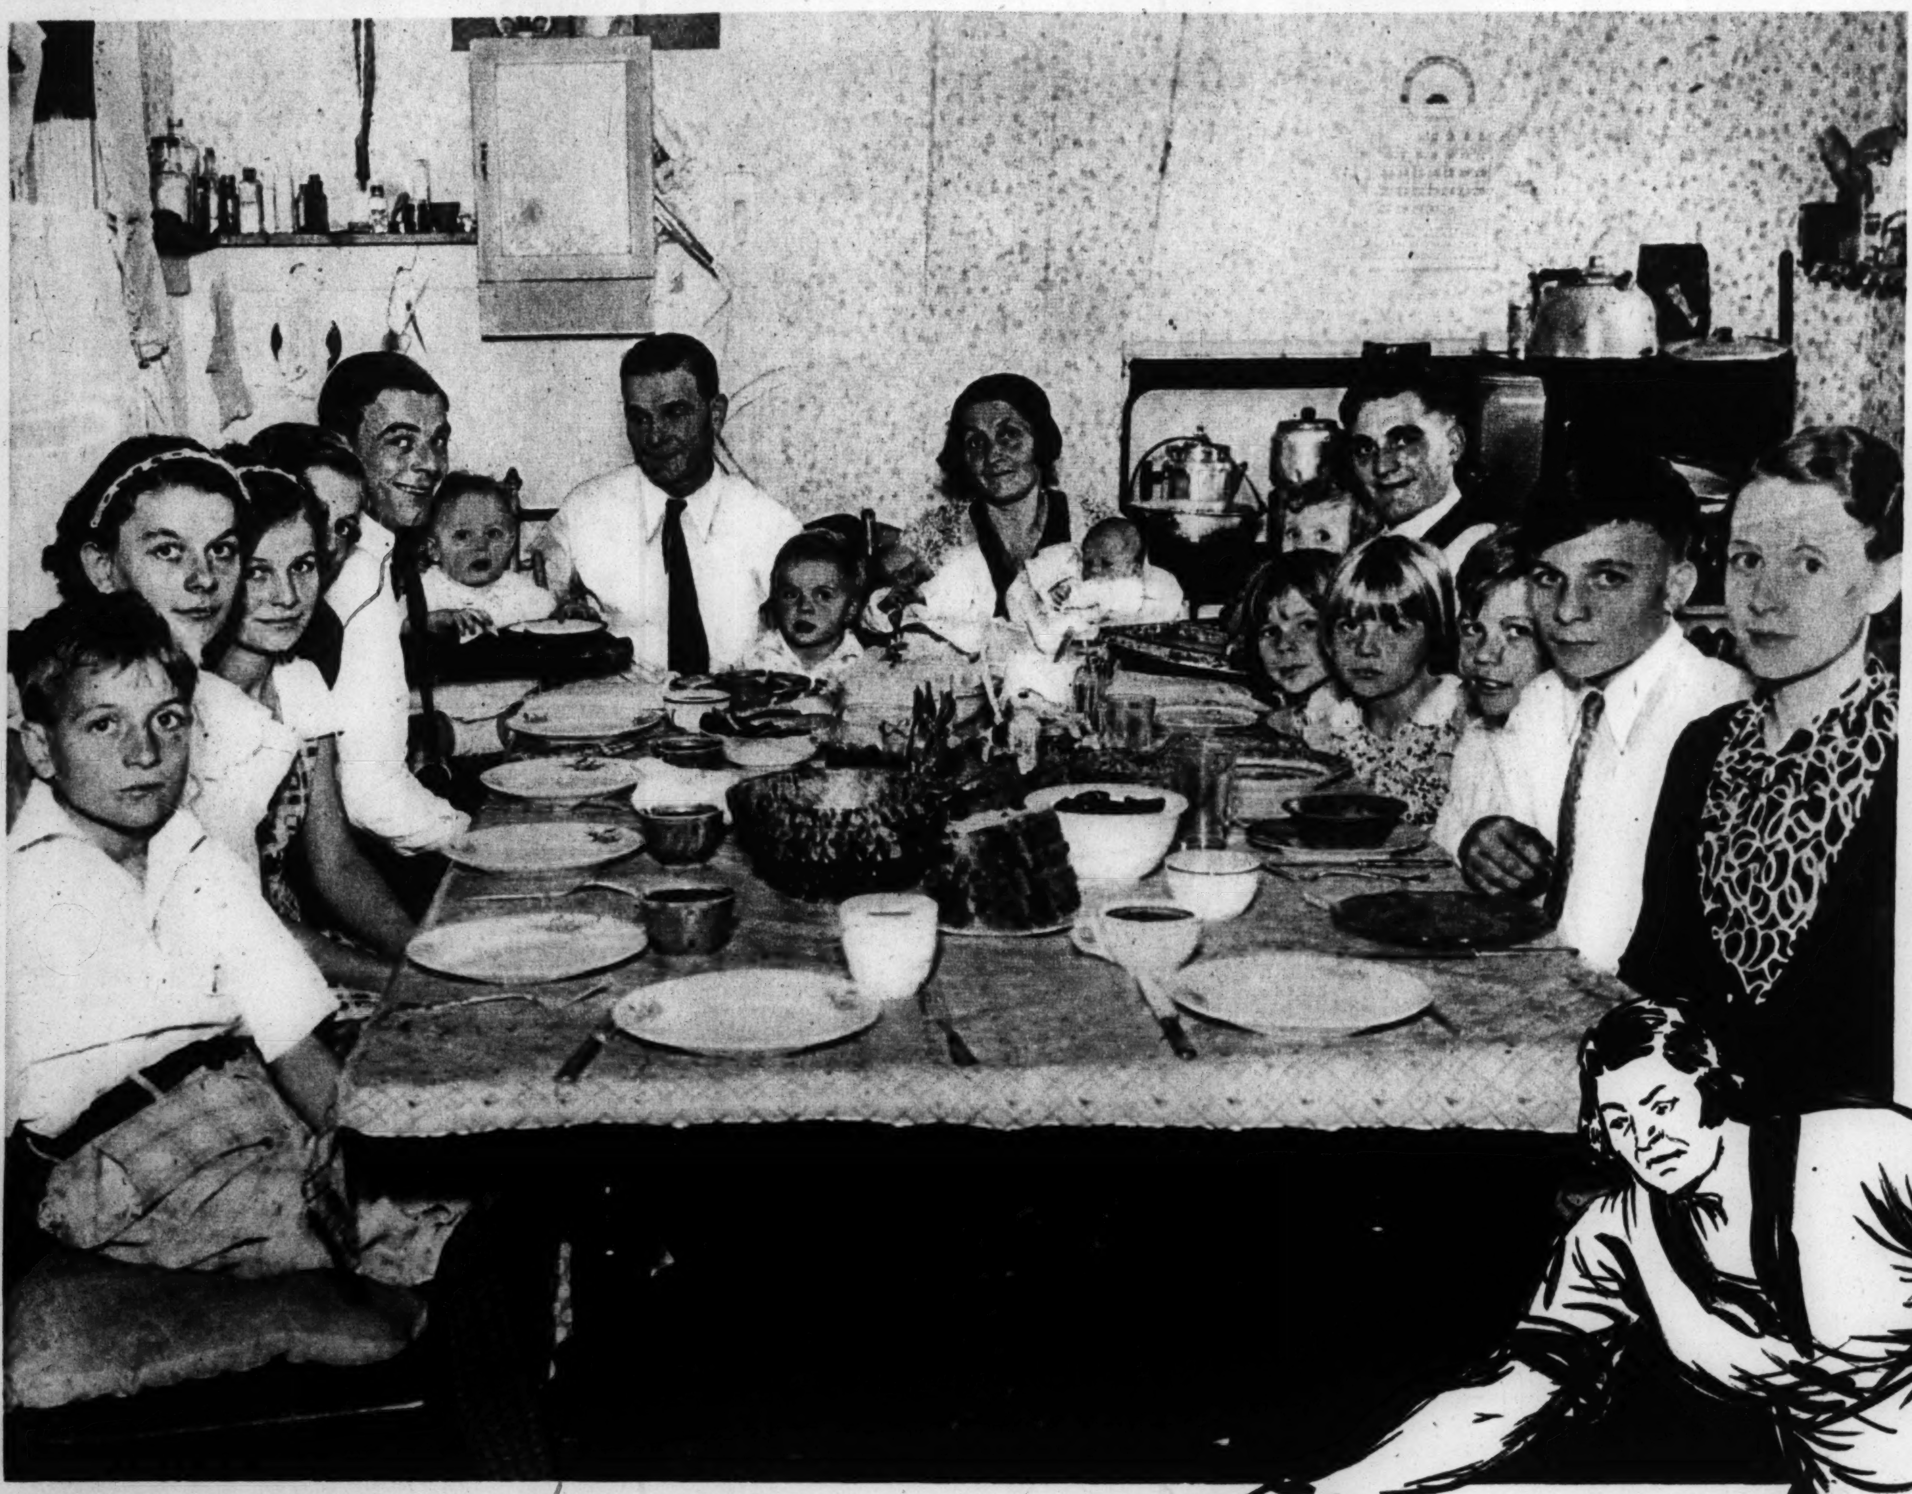
FIVE of the water-color fantasies of Josephine Johnson, selected through the courtesy of the Artists' Guild from a current exhibition at its Little Gallery, 812 Union boulevard, are reproduced in color today by the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

Miss Johnson is perhaps more widely known for her writing. Her first novel, "Now in November," won the Pulitzer Prize in literature for 1935. But St. Louisans have long been interested in her gay, shrewd, remarkably earth-free little translations of people, things or ideas to the graphic idiom of a fairy tale in water colors.

It is something she began, and continues, mostly to amuse herself. She studied in St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Washington University. Her work has been exhibited at the Artists' Guild at various times in the last three years. She has done fairy tales in murals for the Mission Free School and the Turner School for Negro children. The murals at Turner School, recently completed, include—on request of the children—Popeye, toy balloons, ice cream cones by the dozen. After she had done "The Golden Crab" at the Mission Free School she told the children they could choose the story for the next murals. Thus she was committed to "Tarzan of the Apes."

The Artists' Guild exhibition, which opened last Monday, includes recent batiks by Tanasco Milovich. Works of four St. Louis portrait painters are shown in the Main Gallery. A reception will be held in the galleries this afternoon.

Feeding a Family of Fourteen on 85 Cents a Day

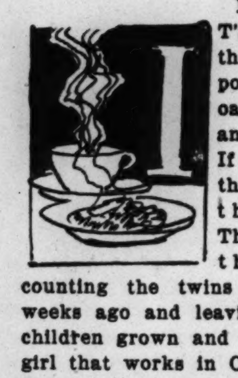


How the Schulz Brood Met the Continuing Pinch of Hard Times Under the Able Leadership of Their 42-Year-Old Mother

The Schulz family of Beecher, Illinois, the largest family in Wills County, and considered by many the healthiest and happiest. Four of the eighteen members shown in the picture support themselves independently and do not figure in the remarkable economy of the home group. Shown at a recent home-coming Sunday dinner, they are, left to right: Edwin, 9; Julia, 17; Trenna, 13; Lorraine, 22; Sylvester, 24; Bobby, 18 months; Edwin Schulz Sr., Jimmy, 3; Mrs. Clara Schulz, the newly born twins, Jack and Jean; Betty, 18 months; Laverne, 23; Bonnie Mae, 6; Clara, 7; Glenn, 11; Charles, 15, and Garneto, 20.

By ELLWOOD DOUGLASS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



BEECHER, Ill.

IT'S a lucky thing the Schulz kids like potatoes and beans, oatmeal and rice and garden greens. If they didn't they'd have to eat them anyhow. There are 12 of them at home, counting the twins that came five weeks ago and leaving out the four children grown and married and the girl that works in Chicago. They're "Will County's biggest family." And, fed on much less than $1 a day, they look and act and talk—and eat—like Will County's healthiest and happiest as well.

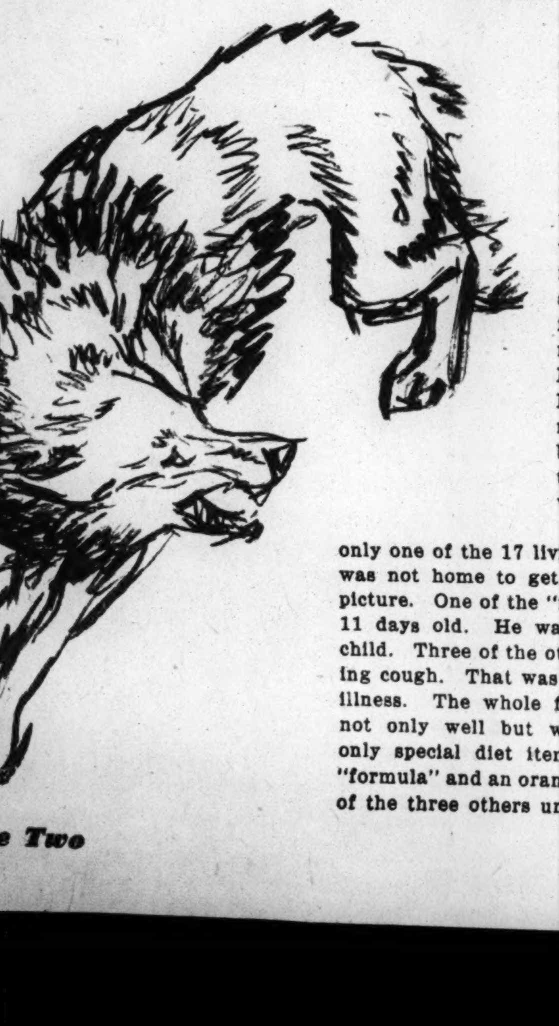
They are on relief. Edwin Schulz, the father, is out of a job. His neighbors call him a good worker. He held a job nine years. He made "good money." When they had it, they spent it—a tendency that, depression fatuities notwithstanding, may be not wholly confined to the working class. It is highly possible that Ed Schulz could be persuaded to take a drink, or that Mrs. Schulz was not wholly unsusceptible to such idle lures as lace curtains for her home or pretty clothes for her babies.

But now that they haven't got it, they're making the best of it with at least all the courage it requires to lay up the steam yacht and order a 20 per cent wage cut. They're doing it with a gratifying absence of whining and a team spirit that sparkles in every exchange of word or glance—or hard hour's work—and seems to take in even the youngest twins, who are uncommonly good-humored infants.

There's nothing extraordinary about any one of all the Schulzes, to look at. It is more than possible that they are average Americans, and that their red-blooded battle with circumstance is by no means unique. In fact, the reporter fully expects to hear numerously and in detail that it is not. But—even if someone writes in that she is feeding 22 on half a dollar a day—the Schulz record is still worth examining, if only as an example.

It's hard to pick a hero in this story. There are so many Schulzes. And each one down to the latest of three pairs of twins, it seems, has some bit to contribute. Most likely it is Mrs. Schulz, who, on the best available figures—taken directly from the relief card, through the courtesy of a helpful Supervisor—feeds herself, her husband and 12 children on a fraction less than 85 cents a day.

Besides her, there's Faith, the girl employed in a Chicago office, who sends home the $10 a month rent for their seven-room frame house, with an extra $1.60 to $2.64 for the light bill when Mrs. Schulz hasn't been able to lay it aside. Faith dropped high school in her second year when the chance for that job came along — "inherited" from Loraine, 22, when Loraine married Roy Olson—and now she goes to business college three nights a week.



Faith was the only one of the 17 living children who was not home to get into the family picture. One of the "first twins" died, 11 days old. He was the thirteenth child. Three of the others had whooping cough. That was the only serious illness. The whole flock are plainly not only well but wisely fed. The only special diet item is the babies' "formula" and an orange daily for each of the three others under three years.

Or there are the other grown children, who scrimped and schemed to get the folks at home an efficient heating stove and a perfectly marvelous kerosene cooking stove, that, besides all its other virtues, actually looks clean when it is clean. And it is.

But none of these likely candidates for fellow-hero, along with Mrs. Schulz, eclipses Julia. Julia is 17 years old. She hears, and, therefore, speaks, with difficulty. Special training for children like her is not provided in rural schools. Her mother did not want to send her away to a school for deaf-mutes, for she was neither deaf nor mute. It was difficult to teach her along with the other children, and so she learned a great deal about sewing, which instructors considered of potential use to her.

DESPITE her handicaps, she got through the sixth grade. She reads well. She has "the best handwriting in the family." She has a knack for sketching; for seeing where and how things will look best; for taking over drudgery and doing it as though it were fun.

For the last three years she has done all the cooking while her mother plans and sews—sews at the endless task of making over one child's clothes for the next, schemes at the endless problem of making ends meet. Julia takes her turn at looking after the babies, and the six children in school. She bakes bread every other day, with raisin bread and buns and cookies on Saturday and frequent cakes.

As with others in that remarkable brood, what Julia does is not so unusual as the way she does it. Probably there are things she'd rather do than wash dishes, and her sense of design indicates there are other things that, with training, she could do, but she takes the menial task as though it were a joyous thing.

But, after all, it is the 42-year-old mother who captains this team in its red-hot game of beating the wolf from the door. In that game, along with field hazards — notably the stork, though she certainly doesn't feel that way about it—she has certain "field advantages," of which the most important is a garden.

The game seems almost over, and the Schulzes expect to win. It began three years ago, when Schulz, who is 48 years old, lost his job in a local dairy. Previously he had worked nine years in highway building, and had become a foreman over 30 to 40 men, but was squeezed out when the depression cracked down on payrolls.

In a later job, a finger became infected and Schulz had to go to a hospital for amputation. He obtained a judgment of several hundred dollars. It went rapidly. Since then he has found it impossible, despite his reputation as a worker, to get a steady job.

He works an average of three days a month, at $1 to $2 a day; that is, once he got $2. His first trade was paper-hanging, but he takes any job he can get. He tells of papering a 15x20-foot room for $2.

What he earns, rarely $5 a month, more often about $3, goes to clothing. Sometimes there is a gift of a garment or two. Clothing allotments from the county relief organization totaled $28.06 in the 53 weeks up to Oct. 22. Nearly always, explained Mrs. Schulz, they go for shoes, since that is the one thing she can not make over.

Relief allotments for fuel for the period cited amounted to $22.77, of which $21 went for winter coal.

Except for kerosene, "All I have to think of is food, but that's plenty," says Mrs. Schulz. "I do my scheming at night when I can't sleep."

Every month 124½ pounds of flour, which is just enough, is delivered, and every morning three quarts of milk, which is not enough. In addition are the relief "slips," good in approved staples at the local grocery, which, Mrs. Schulz figured, ran about $14.70 every two weeks to cover both food and kerosene, which alone costs $2 a month.

The relief card figures even closer than that. The food allotments for a year and five days, from one Oct. 17 to the next Oct. 22, amount to $313.97; clothing, $28.06; fuel, $22.77. The total for the 370 days is $364.80. It requires Schulz's meager earnings to bring it up to $1 a day; on the basis of food allotments alone, it appears Mrs. Schulz has fed her family daily on 84 cents, 8 mills.

The day starts, six days a week, with 12 at table around a Gargantuan pot of oatmel. With it vanish the three quarts of milk and a deal of sugar, a cup of coffee for Schulz and one or two of the older children; sometimes tea for Mrs. Schulz "or a little milk if there's any left over that I can swipe from the children"; perhaps half a loaf of Julia's bread with butter—or rather, butter substitute.

Dinner, at noon, features a big kettle of boiled potatoes; or lima beans cooked down thick, perhaps flavored with a 9-cent can of tomato paste, or, rarely, bacon fryings, or, generally, plain lard and butter substitute; or approximately a tubful of soup; or a kettle of stew with potatoes and carrots and onions and the like from the garden and two cans of peas from the store thrown in with a luxurious 18-cent can of corned beef.

Pancakes, made with ordinary flour but requiring a pail of buttermilk, are greeted with enthusiasm.

In late afternoon the children are home from school, starved, and a loaf of Julia's bread is gone. She bakes six loaves every other day. Only an hour or two after school is out it's supper-time—"and you'd never guess they'd had a bite."

THERE was stew for lunch the other day, with a little left for supper. Fried potatoes were planned to piece it out, with a can of peaches or cherries from tiers of home-made preserves, or a little corn syrup and stacks of Julia's bread.

The day's supper is typical. Fried potatoes are mainstays. On days when there's been boiled potatoes at dinner and some are left to fry, rice appears at supper with a little diluted canned milk and butter substitute and cinnamon. Sometimes there's a little cheese. Three nights a week there's a one-egg cake, chocolate or yellow.

It is singularly shortlived. There are 12 to eat it "and only 16 slices in a layer cake," says Mrs. Schulz.

As science has ultimately confirmed, a flock of busy children can burn up a whale of a lot of sugar. And so Mrs. Schulz, along with milk and eggs and gardenstuffs and orange-juice for the youngest, takes care to provide wholesome sweets, though she has to do it on as little store sugar as possible. In the same way, eggs, at 35 cents a dozen, have to be used in cooking, and the three quarts of milk goes on the oatmeal. An extra quart daily, at 11 cents, is bought for the babies, with an 8-cent can for cooking. Ordinarily, there is about a fourth of a cup of fresh milk left for each of the very young children. Mrs. Schulz feels that it's not enough.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Schulz and Julia bake enough ordinary sugar cookies, or an oatmeal and rasin invention of their own, to fill the three-gallon jar.

On Saturday, too, they bake four loaves of raisin bread and 75 to 80 buns. These go for Sunday breakfast. Oatmeal porridge, for once, is dethroned. The milk that goes on it six days a week provides a pudding for dessert at Sunday dinner. On Sunday the potatoes are mashed. There may be sweet potatoes. There may even be hamburger—as a roast or as meat balls in Italian sauce.

Sunday supper includes sandwiches in the event that (1) there was meat for dinner and that (2) there is any of it left; cake, a piece around at the start and four to the winners; plain bread with corn syrup and jelly.

A gallon pail of syrup lasts two weeks; a pound of sugar goes in a day. A peck of potatoes makes two meals; two pounds of rice is enough for one. The garden is a life-saver.

It provides onions, carrots, lettuce, radishes, tomatoes, cabbage, greens peppers, peas, beans and the like through the summer. For the winter, it produces enough carrots to last until next season's crop comes in. Since last July, Schulz has dug two barrels of potatoes; he has just bought his first at the store. For canning, the garden produced 25 quarts of string beans and 14 quarts of rhubarb.

This was put up without sugar, which will be added whenever there's any left over from daily needs. The same thing applies to 34 quarts of cherries, from two trees; and, from the gifts of neighbors, eight quarts of apple-sauce, enough grape-juice to make 40 large glasses of jelly and enough apple-juice to make 30 glasses. Mrs. Schulz's glasses are a third larger than the usual. An ordinary jelly-glass doesn't hold enough to go around.

Milk, with four quarts fresh and an 8-cent can every day, is the biggest expense. But, as Mrs. Schulz figures it, since three quarts are delivered by the relief agency and she has only one to consider in her cash grocery allotments, it comes second to butter substitute, one pound a day at 21 cents. Then comes oatmeal, a pound a day, and potatoes, a peck every other day. But potatoes are wiped off the expense list while the garden supply lasts, and sometimes that is supplemented by a windfall from the Federal warehouse.

Curiously, their chief agony is the

TOM TINKER SCHROERS was a discarded pointer puppy—an outcast. First he was tossed aside by a nationally known Oklahoma bird-dog trainer and authority because he "wasn't properly marked." Then he was ordered shot by another prominent Missouri dog fancier because he developed rickets and "wasn't cut out to be a field trials dog, or even a shooting dog."

But Tom Tinker Schroers wasn't killed. His sickly condition and whimpering friendliness struck into the heart of the Audrain County farmer who was asked to kill him. That farmer nursed him back to health, trained him, although he had never owned a bird dog before, and a few weeks ago the dog repaid his friend and master by winning the amateur derby championship of Missouri at the fourteenth annual running of the Missouri State field trials near Sturgeon. To win, he defeated 19 of the best-blooded dogs in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, three of them owned by the man who had ordered him shot and two by the one who didn't like his markings.

His master, Irvin Young, 41-year-old tenant farmer of near Mexico, Missouri, not only had never owned a bird dog before, but had never seen a field trial until he ran the "outcast" and even had to be told how to start Tom Tinker Schroers when it came time for his race. But, because of his kindness to the dog, he reigns this year as king of the amateur derby handlers in Missouri, and has the right to enter his Tom in the national championship stakes at Holly Springs, Mississippi, next February.

Tom Tinker Schroers was whelped a liver-and-white pointer, July 2, 1934 in the kennels of Herb Schroers, Vinita, Oklahoma, automobile dealer, oil man and sportsman, who has as his hobby the training of fine bird dogs, most of them pointers.

His sire was Ted S. Moran, a field trials champion, and his dam was Madame Queen Betsy, also an outstanding pointer. But Tom Tinker's head was solid liver color. According to Mr. Schroer's experience, that was not good marking and, in all probability, the dog would not live up to his parents' reputations. He was not a dog Mr. Schroers wanted.

When the puppy was two months old, Mr. Schroers gave him to Mrs. Loyal Wonneman of Mexico, Missouri, who, with her husband, is also a lover of fine bird dogs and owns several fine ones. They put the dog in their kennels and kept him six months.

When he was old enough, he was taken into the field and given his chance for a place on the Wonneman dog line. But he was found wanting. True to Mr. Schroers' belief, he showed no sign of being either a field trials dog or a shooting dog. And he was unruly in the kennels. He was always taking a nip at every dog that came near him. Then he developed rickets.

So the Wonnemans also turned thumbs down on Tom Tinker Schroers. One Sunday they took him to the Irvin Young farm, eight miles from Mexico, gave him to Mr. Young, a distant kin by marriage, and also gave him two shotgun shells, with the request that the puppy be killed. "We've tried him out, he'll never make a field trials dog or any other kind of a bird dog, and besides he has rickets," they told him.

"That was last March," said Mr. Young, "and I was busy in the fields sowing oats. We put him in a pen, gave him some medicine, and it was a week before I could get around to killing him. And in that week my wife and I got so attached to him I couldn't think of killing him, and she wouldn't have let me if I'd wanted to.

"He was a friendly little cuss, liked to be petted and handled. And when we gave him medicine his whimpering and crying was too much for us. We just decided to do our best to make him strong again and see what would happen.

"I had always wanted a bird dog, but had never felt I could afford one.

The DOG THAT WAS CONDEMNED to DEATH and Then Won the State Championship

A Success Story in Which a Discarded and Discredited Pointer Pup Played the Part of the Abused Hero Who Made Good.

Tom Tinker Schroers, the dog who was ordered shot, but who lived to make good in spite of everything, and Irvin Young, the farmer who saved his life and, without previous experience, trained him to be a champion.

MOBERLY, Missouri.

TOM TINKER SCHROERS was a discarded pointer puppy—an outcast. First he was tossed aside by a nationally known Oklahoma bird-dog trainer and authority because he "wasn't properly marked." Then he was ordered shot by another prominent Missouri dog fancier because he developed rickets and "wasn't cut out to be a field trials dog, or even a shooting dog."

But Tom Tinker Schroers wasn't killed. His sickly condition and whimpering friendliness struck into the heart of the Audrain County farmer who was asked to kill him. That farmer nursed him back to health, trained him, although he had never owned a bird dog before, and a few weeks ago the dog repaid his friend and master by winning the amateur derby championship of Missouri at the fourteenth annual running of the Missouri State field trials near Sturgeon. To win, he defeated 19 of the best-blooded dogs in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, three of them owned by the man who had ordered him shot and two by the one who didn't like his markings.

His master, Irvin Young, 41-year-old tenant farmer of near Mexico, Missouri, not only had never owned a bird dog before, but had never seen a field trial until he ran the "outcast" and even had to be told how to start Tom Tinker Schroers when it came time for his race. But, because of his kindness to the dog, he reigns this year as king of the amateur derby handlers in Missouri, and has the right to enter his Tom in the national championship stakes at Holly Springs, Mississippi, next February.

Tom Tinker Schroers was whelped a liver-and-white pointer, July 2, 1934 in the kennels of Herb Schroers, Vinita, Oklahoma, automobile dealer, oil man and sportsman, who has as his hobby the training of fine bird dogs, most of them pointers.

His sire was Ted S. Moran, a field trials champion, and his dam was Madame Queen Betsy, also an outstanding pointer. But Tom Tinker's head was solid liver color. According to Mr. Schroer's experience, that was not good marking and, in all probability, the dog would not live up to his parents' reputations. He was not a dog Mr. Schroers wanted.

When the puppy was two months old, Mr. Schroers gave him to Mrs. Loyal Wonneman of Mexico, Missouri, who, with her husband, is also a lover of fine bird dogs and owns several fine ones. They put the dog in their kennels and kept him six months.

When he was old enough, he was taken into the field and given his chance for a place on the Wonneman dog line. But he was found wanting. True to Mr. Schroers' belief, he showed no sign of being either a field trials dog or a shooting dog. And he was unruly in the kennels. He was always taking a nip at every dog that came near him. Then he developed rickets.

So the Wonnemans also turned thumbs down on Tom Tinker Schroers. One Sunday they took him to the Irvin Young farm, eight miles from Mexico, gave him to Mr. Young, a distant kin by marriage, and also gave him two shotgun shells, with the request that the puppy be killed. "We've tried him out, he'll never make a field trials dog or any other kind of a bird dog, and besides he has rickets," they told him.

"That was last March," said Mr. Young, "and I was busy in the fields sowing oats. We put him in a pen, gave him some medicine, and it was a week before I could get around to killing him. And in that week my wife and I got so attached to him I couldn't think of killing him, and she wouldn't have let me if I'd wanted to.

"He was a friendly little cuss, liked to be petted and handled. And when we gave him medicine his whimpering and crying was too much for us. We just decided to do our best to make him strong again and see what would happen.

"I had always wanted a bird dog, but had never felt I could afford one. Up to that time there had never been a bird dog on my place. Sandy here," and he pointed to a large German police dog at his heels, "and Sandy's mother were the only other dogs I had ever owned. Well, here was a bird dog given to me to kill, but he wasn't going to be killed.

"I didn't know anything about them from experience, but Mr. Wonneman had given me quite a lot of books on bird dogs, and I had read them all. I had my nose in one of those stories every spare minute in the house. My wife says it was hard to get me to do anything because of that reading.

"Well, anyway, Tinker here got well. He took to my wife and me and stayed in the house a lot of the time. He was always at our heels, running, jumping and getting lots of pleasure on the farm.

"No, sir, he never did show a mean streak around any of us. Well, that is around people. But he will bite other dogs—nip them, that is. Seems like he gets a lot of pleasure out of that. I always figured he got a kick out of it and wanted to show what a big guy he was. But he never bit any of them very hard.

"After I had had him a while I decided I'd try him out. We went out one Sunday, circling about the farm. You know, I rent 260 acres here and can hunt on that 300 over there. But we didn't find any birds.

"YES, he looked to me like he was really hunting. Of course, he'd run kind of wild, but I'd call him back and start him over again. Of course, I didn't know much about how to train him, except what I'd read, although I'd spent lots of time with Sandy here, and his mother, and had taught them lots of tricks. Why, I could holler 'Whoa' at Sandy's mother and she'd freeze up just like that"—and Mr. Young indicated a point.

"Then the next Sunday I took Tinker out again. He found a covy of quails that time and made a stand on them, sort of a flash point. That sure tickled me, too, and I had a hunch right there he was a real dog; that there was something there after all.

"I went to work in earnest then. For a while during the planting and plowing season we just went on Sunday, and then, when I had time, I'd take him out for an hour or two on week days. For the first five or six times he was kind of slow, and a little hard-headed, but after that he went right on down the line.

"I got so I could whistle him out from here (near his farmyard) to the highway there (nearly a half-mile away), and if he made a point he'd stay there as long as he could hear me bellering at him. When I first started training him I got a stick with a white rag about as big as a handkerchief on it. I'd wave that at him when I wanted him to come in.

"Then, one day, I sent him off toward those two hay ricks over yonder (fully a half-mile), and motioned and whistled him on till he went all the way to them. About the time he got there I thought I saw him stop. Well, I went into the house and got my binoculars, looked over there and saw something I took to be prairie chickens. I went to the barn, got my horse, rode over there, and when I got there he made a stand on one chicken that was in a tree. When I flushed him five others flew up out of the weeds ahead of the dog.

"When Mr. Wonneman learned I was training the dog he got a big kick out of it. 'Who ever heard of a farmer training a bird dog,' he kidded me, and then haw-hawed. The next time he saw me he was at it again, and when I told him the dog was getting along he just laughed.

"He kept that up, and when I'd tell him I really had a dog he'd laugh some more. Every time I met him he'd yell, 'Who ever heard of a farmer training a bird dog?' He wouldn't believe me, so I just got so I wouldn't tell him anything—I'd just wait and show him sometime.

"Before the field trials (the fourteenth annual running at Sturgeon) Mr. Wonneman called me several times and wanted me to enter Tinker. First I told him that would cost money and I didn't feel like putting it out, but he insisted and said the entry fee didn't matter, he'd see that was taken care of, but I just didn't want to go at all."

At this point Mrs. Young came home and joined the conversation with Mr. Young and the writer.

"No, sir, we didn't want to enter Tinker. We were afraid he'd get hurt," she asserted, "and we think too much of him to take any chance, don't we Tink?" she added, patting the amateur champion on the head.

"Well, Mr. Wonneman called us at 11 o'clock the Sunday night before the field trials," Mr. Young said, resuming his story. "He'd been at Sturgeon all day helping arrange for the field trials, and he told me he wanted me to bring Tom to Sturgeon Monday morning so Mr. Schroers could see him.

"I went down that morning and didn't know until I got there they had entered him in the derby. As I said, I never had seen a field trial before, much less enter and handle a dog in one, but I let him stay in. Here was my chance to show Mr. Wonneman, though I'll admit, with all my greenness, I didn't have a lot of hopes against all those experts.

"I rode with the dogs that morning, until it came my time. Yes, they had to tell me how to start, and what to do, and after we started I just whistled him on and worked him like I always had, and he really went after it.

"Well, he won and I was tickled to death, and so was my wife, and we sure showed them, didn't we Tinker?"

Here his wife joined in the conversation again with the assertion, "We certainly were tickled at him winning, and it wasn't because of all those newspaper stories, but just because of the dog. He's such a sweet thing, so friendly and nice, and likes to be petted so much.

"Would we sell Tinker? We certainly wouldn't," both chorused in answer to a question. "Money couldn't buy him. He's our dog and he's always going to be our dog.

"No," said Young, "I don't think I'll show him in the national championship in Mississippi. That would cost something, and I can't afford it. I don't know about the others that may be held around here. I may never show him again. He won a championship for me, and as far as I'm concerned, that's enough right now. Want to see him work?"

Not having seen the dog run in the derby, the writer was glad of the opportunity. And the dog really works. He ranged far and wide under whistling of the owner, answering every call almost instantly. To the right, the left, forward, back, always seeing and scenting in his search. Within 15 minutes he was on stand—now, he was off again, creeping this time.

"IT'S those prairie chickens, and they're running," Mr. Young, explained. "I can always tell. When he's on chickens his tail is down and he's laying almost on the ground, ready to creep as they move. If it's quail, his tail's up and out and he really freezes.

Sure enough, it was prairie chicken—six of them—but to our disappointment they flushed before we could get near enough to get the pictures we wanted, and not a quail was to be found for a picture on point.

"Come back again," Mr. Young invited, "and we'll try to get that picture of those chickens going up."

And what about the two former owners of this State champion dog who showed them?

Says Mr. Schroers: "I hate to think of going back to Vinita. I'm quite a kidder, I guess, and they'll laugh me out of town. I can take it, though, if they hear about it, but you can bet your life they won't hear it from me. I'll never tell anyone down there I gave away the dog that beat mine and took the championship."

And Mr. Wonneman: "Yes, he's a real dog and I'm glad of it. Nope, I don't feel a bit sheepish about giving away the dog. I've given away lots of dogs in my time, and some of them have been good ones. Yes, I paid the entry fee because I wanted Mr. Schroers to see the dog."

As a final tribute to the outcast pointer that was ordered shot, but wasn't, here's what the judge who awarded him the championship, Thatcher A. Parker of St. Louis, said as the brace in which Tom Tinker Schroers was running began their race:

"There's a dog."

Irvin Young is now training several other dogs for Mexico owners, but doesn't intend to make a career of it.

The Adventures That Befell the Soviet Expedition Which Undertook to Navigate the Northeastern Sea Route From Murmansk to Vladivostok, as Told by Members of the Party.

By ROBERT A. RANDOLPH

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Wrangel Island
CHOUKCHI SEA SIBERIA ARCTIC STRAIT

FLINTY snow, driven by a 65-mile-an-hour wind, lashed into the faces of a few fur-clad men huddled on the fo'castle and hid the slow and steady approach of their fate. It had been a long time coming, their ship having been frozen fast for three months in the polar pack ice of the Choukchi Sea, which lies north of the eastern corner of Siberia. Above the howling of the blizzard, they could hear what the senior helmsman described as the "roaring of hundreds of mad bulls."

During intermittent lulls, they could see a 30-foot high ridge of jumbled ice cakes—less than 200 yards away—lazily tumbling toward the Chelyuskin. Several men ran to the rolling, crumbling mass and fell back before it as the ice beneath their feet broke up and squeezed forward.

At first the Chelyuskin was able to resist the pressure of the ice on its port side, the ship's starboard plates sliding over the motionless ice on that side and grinding it under. In 10 minutes the ship moved sideways 30 feet. Then the ice to starboard refused to give any longer. On the port side, the joints of the plates gave and the rivets tore out for 100 feet along the water line.

Someone on deck cried out: "This is different from other pressures we've had. This means business." Down in the engine room, Sasha Ivanov turned to another engineer and asked: "What on earth was that? Is Gordeiev blasting?" . . . Someone answered, "No; that's her ribs cracking and her plates bursting."

It was the beginning of the end for the Chelyuskin, the 300-foot ship that was used by scientists and explorers of Soviet Russia, under Prof. Otto J. Schmidt, in an effort to ascertain whether an ordinary cargo vessel could navigate the northeastern sea route from Murmansk to Vladivostok. Their experiences, which began in August, 1933, and did not end until the following April, are recounted in the "Voyage of the Chelyuskin," published by the MacMillan Company of New York, and made up of chapters written by members of the expedition and the aviators who rescued them.

Orders were passed for the black gang to "get up steam and be ready to pump water," while the remainder of the 93 men aboard unshipped stores and supplies in preparation for camping on the huge island of ice. The 10 women and two infants left the ship for the ice and comparative safety. The only shelter was the nearby tent where Ibrahim Fakidov, the physicist, had set up his headquarters for studying ice vibrations.

The disabled airplane, used earlier in the voyage to reconnoiter when the ship approached big ice fields, was unloaded. Sacks of bedding and cases of provisions were slid down planks to men on the ice who dragged them off to safety.

Occasional tremors that had run through the ship became continuous shivers. Something grated harshly against the bow. Crashes and shocks followed in rapid succession as the shifting floes groaned and ground against the Chelyuskin.

Great slabs of ice tore the vessel open below the water line. Thunder filled the engine room as the port bow was stove in. Stokers and engineers dodged fragments of iron that flew from snapping rivets, plates and ribs and clattered on the steel platforms with a machine gun rattle.

Somebody on the bridge telephoned down to learn why the pumps were not going—the two forward holds were filling rapidly. The answer—ice had torn away the connecting pipes leading to the emergency pump system and jammed the valves.

THE din of ice overcoming metal was so loud that a stoker, emerging from the gloryhole with a message for the chief engineer, had to shout to make known that "the port plates are bursting in. The pipes of the auxiliary boilers have been twisted off, the water is rising under the footplates."

Then the port boiler, the only one under steam, shifted from its bed, and to the noise of crushing ice and tearing metal was added the crescendo of steam roaring from broken pipes. Stokers and engineers fled from the stifling atmosphere to avoid being scalded. As they emerged from the engine room they were confronted by ice protruding through a cabin.

On deck someone had remembered the three pigs aboard. Several men were trying to steer them down the gangway with lusty kicks, but the squealing animals were too stubborn. Yells of "no time for ceremony, we must slaughter them." Grisha Dourassov, a giant of a sailor with a sharp knife, was summoned. He fell on the pigs and they soon reached the ice with their throats slit.

The ship was going down by the bow. The ventilators on deck hissed and gurgled with air displaced by water. In the third and next to last hold aft, Ilia Kopousov, assistant chief of the expedition, came across Prof. Schmidt, calm as ever, although the Chelyuskin was listing badly.

"Well, Otto, and so that's the end of our expedition," Kapousov remarked as the water swirled about their knees. Very solemnly, Schmidt replied, "The Chelyuskin is doomed, but that need not disturb us. It will all come out all right. Has everything been unshipped?"

A series of rapid shocks ran through the Chelyuskin, still gripped by the floes, the ship went down in jerks. The last command from Captain V. I. Voronin rang out: "All on the ice, leave the ship!"

In the words of Helmsman Mikhail Markov: "The gangway twisted and fell. I lost my balance and fell flat on the ice. I sprang to my feet and saw the captain lying near me, a beam on him. And Boris Mogilyevitch, who a moment before had been standing calm, with a pipe between his teeth, evidently slipped. . . . There were alarmed cries from the ice: 'Boris, Boris, hurry, jump!' He strove to get to her stern, then a barrel bowled him over and we saw him no more."

NEXT, the bridge crashed as the stern rose in the air. The wind whipped a black cloud of soot from the funnel into the faces of the men on the ice. The propellers and rudder flourished in the air and then where the Chelyuskin had been there was a confusion of dirty ice, milling beams and debris. The struggle had ended after three hours.

The survivors shivered as Schmidt ordered a roll call. It was 30 degrees below zero. Everyone was present or accounted for save Mogilyevitch.

The radio crew set to work trying to drive pegs through the snow to the solid ice. They would not hold. The mast whipped wildly in the gale. Finally, Operator Ernest Krenkel switched in the rheostat, the battery crackled, and a merry foxtrot came out of the ether.

Krenkel continued searching the air. He heard Wellen, 160 miles to the southeast in Siberia, and Cape North, 300 miles southwest of him, asking if either had heard from the Chelyuskin. He switched on his transmitter, but was unable to get any station. The next day, February 14, the aerial was lengthened and Wellen was contacted, a full report being sent from "Schmidt Camp" for relay to Moscow. Word was flashed back that rescue planes would take off from Wellen and Cape North as soon as weather conditions permitted.

Outside the radio tent, brigades of workers rustled timbers and barrels about and improved shelters. Misha Filippov, a mechanic, passing by the iced-over hole where the Chelyuskin sank, cried out that he had found a tub of butter from the ship. Men with crowbars and axes hurried to the spot and laboriously dug out—a tub of clay.

Days went by and the weather was too bad for flying. During the nights men leaped from their sleeping bags and tents as the ice rumbled and even broke beneath them. Again and again they rushed into the darkness to rescue their scanty supplies. Self was subordinated to the group in the true manner of the Soviet collective. That has happened many times, however, when men have kept their courage in the shadow of death. The hydrobiologists, meteorologists, zoologists, physicists and ice experts continued their daily observations. Sailors, stokers and engineers were kept busy clearing the landing field they had selected for the rescue planes.

THE morning of March 5 was clear and without wind when, for the third time since the fateful February 13, the radio operator got word that Anatoli Lyapidevski's plane, able to carry the 10 women and four children, was on its way from Wellen. The women, who had been busy carting snow to pack about their hut, dropped their work and hurried for the landing field.

"Well, this is the third time," one of the men said. "You're sure to get away this time. Now mind, you're not allowed back, you know."

Petrovna Soushkin, the ichthyologist, described the scene as they hurried toward the field: "That sunny day, the wild beauty of the primeval chaos about us, looked especially brilliant; the green floes were piled fantastically; there were masses of pack ice which looked like petrified monsters, and the whole was shot with unexpectedly varied and animated colors, as if you were going among incalculable masses of precious stones; thick ancient floes in emerald blocks; reflections of aquamarine and turquoise, and icy grottoes and caves burning with a deep sapphire blue; and the crystals of snow glittering like dazzling diamonds. There were hardly any of the dull grey and white tones in which the Arctic is usually painted. It seemed as if those masses had stood and would still stand for centuries, fettered in a cruel sleep; and involuntarily that great silence took possession of us, and we, too, went along without a word."

A few minutes later they heard the roar of the plane's motor and saw the red stars on the wings. Lyapidevski, hampered by his padded face mask, circled the tiny field (500 by 1500 feet) twice and landed at the very edge of a ridge of floes. The women and children got in the plane. Two hours and 15 minutes later they were in Wellen.

Bad weather prevented further flights until March 14. On that day, Lyapidevski damaged his ship badly in a forced landing, after going to Vankarem for repairs. Other flyers were arriving, however, and early in April several got through to Camp Schmidt.

On April 7, Vassili Molokov, perhaps the oldest and best polar pilot in Russia, arrived at Vankarem, and that same day removed three men from the camp. The next day he was unable to find the camp because of mist, and on the following day the landing field cracked up so badly no plane could land.

ON April 10, Molokov made three round trips to the camp. On two of the trips he took off five men, each time putting one in the long, narrow, cylindrical parachute case under the wing of the plane.

Those who rode in the parachute case were pushed in head first, with arms folded. On the takeoff and landing they received a good shaking.

The last trip was made on April 13, when Nikolai Kamanin, in his own words, "with great calm took Bo'sun Zagorski aboard and eight dogs, and then, as prescribed for such solemn occasions, made three farewell circles about the camp and set a course for Vankarem."

The members of the Chelyuskin expedition were taken by plane, sled and ship to Vladivostok, where a special express carried them to Moscow, making 170 stops en route for receptions and celebrations. At Moscow they were met by a government delegation headed by Joseph Stalin, marched to the Red Square and decorated.

Schmidt, now head of what is known as the Soviet Northern Sea Route Department, reported on October 23 that during last summer more than 100 vessels plied the route from Europe to the Far East before winter closed it to all but the ice breakers. In addition, five new Arctic radio stations have been built and eight airlines, covering 5300 miles along the route, have been established.

Preparations are being made now to repeat the famous experiment carried out in 1893 by the Norwegian, Fridtjof Nansen, who let his specially constructed vessel, the Fram, freeze in ice north of Eastern Siberia and begin a three-year drift that carried it to Norway. The Soviets, in the fall of 1937, plan to complete a ship with sloping sides and immense strength. They expect this ship, like the Fram, will be lifted instead of crushed, with the floes sliding under it. The ship will be allowed to freeze into the ice in the region where the Chelyuskin sank and drift through the polar regions, with 10 seamen and five scientists aboard it.

So, with ships bucking through or sinking in pack ice, airplanes fighting Arctic fog and blizzard, explorers with dog sleds braving unknown wastes, meteorologists and radio men making observations and reports from solitary stations on desolate capes, the Russians continue to pursue the phenomena of the polar world in the hope of reducing its hazards of life and travel.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

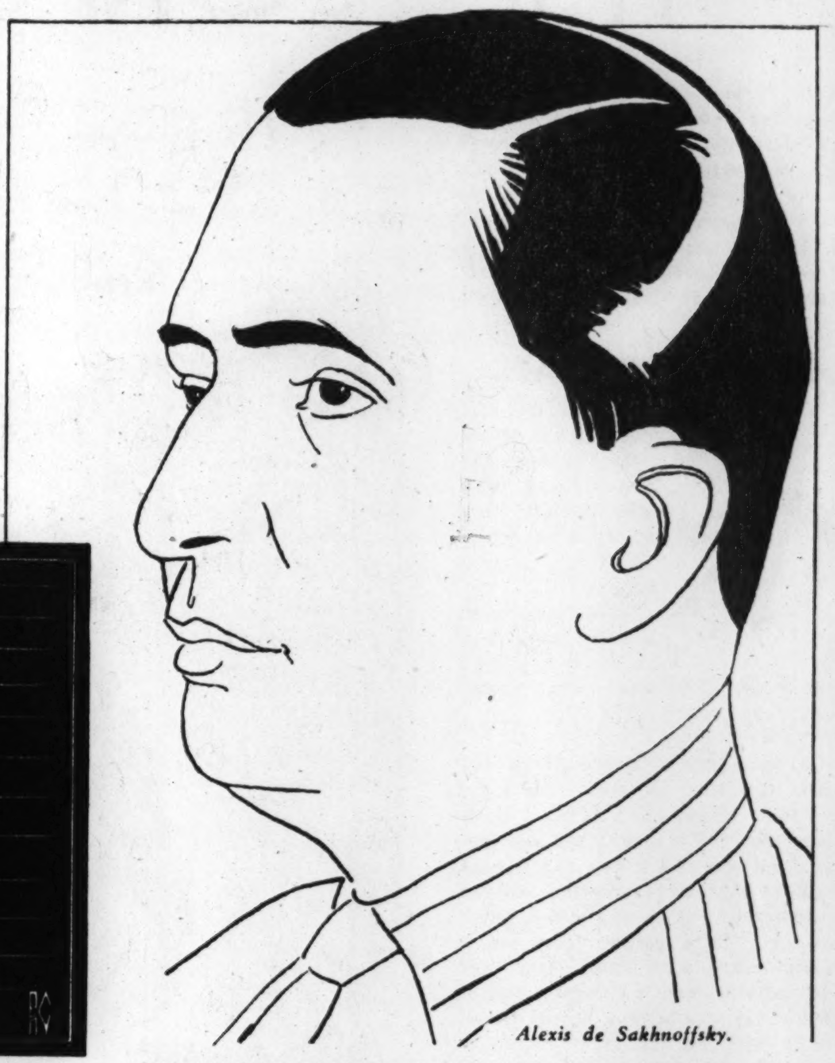
STREAMLINED HUMAN BEINGS the IDEAL of THIS DESIGNER



Alexis de Sakhnoffsky.

PHILADELPHIA.

TO most people, streamlining may be just another fad which is now at the height of its tremendous popularity and which will eventually die down like so many modern quirks and whimseys.

But to Count Alexis de Sakhnoffsky, a tall, dark and handsome member of the now deposed aristocracy of Russia, streamlining has come to stay. In his opinion, streamlining is a definite symptom of our age, a definite result of our modern love for speed as well as our ability to attain it.

To the Count, who is very soon to become a full-fledged American citizen, streamlining was instituted to give not only speed but an appearance of speed to automobiles, trains, motorboats and airplanes, even when they were not in motion. And since this appearance of speed is duplicated in our modern mechanized way of living, Count Sakhnoffsky asserts streamlining, more than any other outward phase of our life, expresses the modern era.

What is more, the Count, who happens to be an exceptionally talented designer and a very imaginative draughtsman, has not only made a place for himself as an expert in streamlining a great variety of objects all the way from radios to refrigerators, and from cocktail bars to kitchen pots and pans, but he has also been devoting himself to the study of what human beings should look like if they, too, were to keep pace with their inanimate possessions and themselves give appearance of speed and velocity.

Count Sakhnoffsky is not yet thirty-four years of age, but has lived a crowded life since he was born to a very wealthy family in the city of Kiev, in southern Russia. When war was declared, in 1914, the young Count was not old enough to join the army, but six years later he did join up with the White Russian forces in their campaigns against the new Red Army.

Later that year, 1920, the Count's mother and two sisters decided to run away from the civil war that was shaking Russia; the Count went with them and they landed in Marseilles, France. A short while later, County Sakhnoffsky was enrolled at the Engineering School of the University of Lausanne in Switzerland.

AFTER three years of study, the Count went to Paris, where he spent a short time designing dresses for women in the shop of a fashionable modiste. But the young designer already knew what he was really interested in: he decided that his vocation lay in working with automobiles. He got himself a job at the Vandenplas auto plant in Brussels and there he displayed his talents as an engineer and a draughtsman of skill and invention.

Requests came in to him asking him to express his ideas for the pages of French and American trade magazines on what he thought would be the future appearance of automobiles; his superiors began to watch the development of their young designer with great interest. He was promoted to the position of art director of the Vandenplas auto plant in a short time.

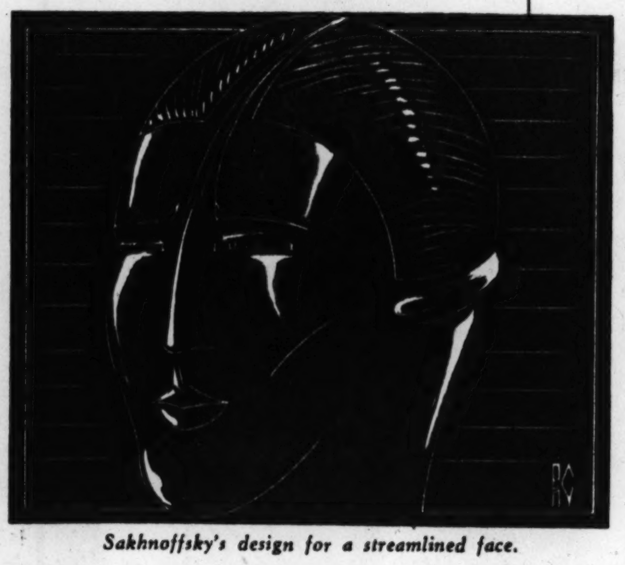
As art director, Count Sakhnoffsky completed designs for Rolls-Royce, Bentley, Minerva and Hispano-Suiza automobiles. Many of his designs won prizes, the most notable being the Cord which took first place at the Monte Carlo competition, a signal honor, in 1930.

Seven years ago, Count Sakhnoffsky came to the United States. At first he lived in the West, designing automobiles for several concerns. A few years ago he moved to the East and he now, fittingly enough, has offices in the Philadelphia Savings Fund Building, perhaps the most modern office building on the entire Atlantic seaboard.

In this country, the Count's efforts have been not all confined to streamlining automobiles. He serves as consultant-designer to a large number of varied manufacturing concerns. Besides these many occupations, Count Sakhnoffsky has won considerable fame for himself because of the striking illustrations he produces as mechanical fashions editor of "Esquire" magazine.

But in spite of his popularity as a designer of inanimate objects of almost every description, this exponent of the streamline declares that his favorite avocation is planning a streamlined human being who will be consistent with the tempo of the times.

"When I talk about my favorite topic of streamlined human beings," explained the Count, "I find that people look at me a little queerly, as if they suspected that I were not altogether right in the head. But when I declare that they must admit that the quicker tempo in which we travel, work, and play today requires snappier reactions and simpler shapes, they usually concede that even though what I say may sound impractical, it does have some sense and plenty of imagination behind it.



Sakhnoffsky's design for a streamlined face.

"First of all, everyone knows that when a mechanic takes a motor apart, and looks inside, he is apt to say to himself: 'Now, if I had had the chance to put this thing together in the first place, I would have avoided trouble by placing the spark plugs in a different place and putting the valves further apart.'

"In the same way, when a surgeon is operating on a person, I imagine he thinks to himself that if some kind of support had been placed under a floating kidney and if the appendix, which is useless, had been omitted, the patient would have been much happier.

"In the same way, while an automobile motor is given gas, oil, air and water that are scientifically purified, why can't human beings breathe only filtered air instead of air that contains all kinds of dangerous and irritating microbes and pollens? It seems to me that something ought to be done about these things.

"Besides health, there is the question of appearance. A glance at the large numbers of men and women who go to plastic surgeons and use depilatories shows that people know they are far from perfect."

COUNT SAKHNOFFSKY visualizes a sort of world convention which would meet for the purpose of streamlining human beings. It would be composed of delegates from every nation, delegates who would be divided into two groups: biologists, anthropologists and other scientists, and artists, poets and psychologists. It would be the business of the scientists to point out what the body has which it no longer needs, what it lacks for modern use. The artists would make the new design.

"Why should we have the same old-fashioned body, ears that stick out like handles on a sugar bowl, noses that protrude and offer wind resistance, coloring that is often exactly wrong for the principles of artistic ornament, hair that crops up in the wrong places, toes that were meant to help our ancestors climb trees?" asks Count Sakhnoffsky.

"It seems to me that toes ought to be eliminated, thus permitting streamlined, interchangeable shoes. Ears should be streamlined to the head; why, in Hollywood they are even now taping back the ears of the film lovers because they realize how ugly they are. Ears should resemble the fenders of a racing car. Hair should be used for accent and decoration like lipstick. Other changes should be made in the contours of both men and women to make them more graceful. But one thing must always be remembered—the human body is the most marvelous mechanism ever devised and we must not change its fundamentals, just improve upon them to suit our modern needs."

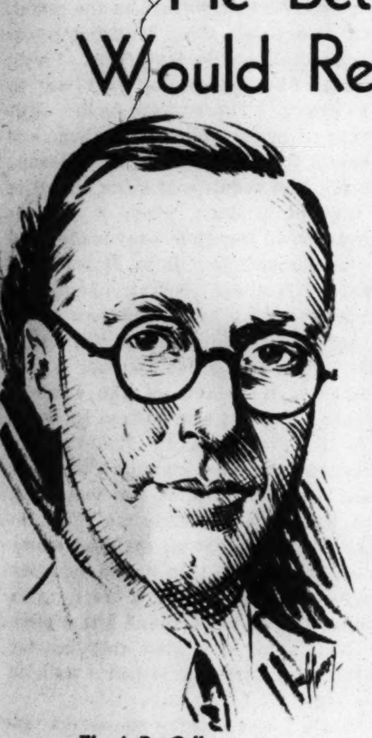
He Bet $14,000,000 America Would Recover From the Depression



Floyd B. Odlum.

NEW YORK.

THE man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo couldn't have held a candle to Floyd B. Odlum. Odlum bet $14,000,000 in cash that America would recover from the depression. The Monte Carlo gambler couldn't possibly have come near that.

There were a few other financiers who made a spectacular show of purchasing huge blocks of stock after the dam broke in 1929. But they soon retreated with their money bags when they saw that the mob refused to accept the bluff. Odlum did his betting quietly. And today, a little over five years later, he is hailed as the depression era's financial wizard. His stake has been run up past $100,000,000. That's the estimated net asset value of his Atlas Corporation today.

Atlas is the biggest investment trust in America and Odlum is its father, nurse, tutor and general manager. If financial legerdemain staggers you, you can get even a bigger bang by reflecting that the $100,000,000 really had its origin back in 1923 as a mere $40,000. That was the original capital behind Atlas when it was born.

Odlum is only 43 years old and as unimpressive a chap as you'd meet on any street car. He is medium-sized and balding. He wears horn-rim glasses and is spindly in build. He might be taken for a confidential secretary. But he has a poker face, invaluable to a trader, and he moves fast and has one of the most orderly of minds.

The ability to make money characterized him from boyhood. He was the youngest of five children of an impecunious Methodist minister and he was as canny about money matters as his father was inept. Little Floyd always had a scheme to make money. Around Union City, Mich., where he was born, and every town to which his parent got a call, he dug ditches, picked berries, worked in a lumber mill or hoed vegetables. When one job gave out, he found another. Some weren't too profitable. One was a job clerking long hours in a clothing store at $2 a week. He sold goods house-to-house and once, at Grand Rapids, straddled an ostrich and rode it in a race against a horse.

He was 16 when his family moved to Boulder, Colo. The youngster entered the state university and worked his way through without aid—as assistant librarian, business manager of the college paper and impresario of the dramatic club. In summers he rented deserted fraternity houses and operated them as boarding houses for summer students.

He was a good student, but no grind. He even found time to run on the track team and take active part in college debates. He belonged to the honor society.

When he graduated in 1912, the year book editor wrote of Odlum: "Manages to get his hands on everything that makes money."

Odlum got his law degree in 1914. He decided to practice in Rock Springs, Wyo., because there was only one other lawyer there. But a bargain turned up and changed his career. A Salt Lake City girl, who was visiting Boulder, liked the college town and decided to stay for a time. She offered Odlum her return trip ticket for $5. The fare to Salt Lake City was $30. Unable to pass up this bargain, he bought it.

Salt Lake City proved a hard place to get a legal job, but he finally landed one at $50 a month. His job was to chase ambulance chasers. His employer, Utah Power & Light, a subsidiary of Electric Bond & Share, advanced the bright young man fast. Before two years had passed Odlum was sent to New York with a letter of introduction to a law firm. He got a job as clerk at $100 a month.

Electric Bond & Share was one of the firm's clients and Odlum was the contact between them. An executive of the utility, Sidney Z. Mitchell, liked the clerk so much that he brought Odlum into the utility and made him his protege. By 1920, Odlum was a vice-president.

He maintained his connection with Electric Bond & Share until 1931. Then he got out to supervise more closely his $14,000,000 wager on recovery.

Since 1923, he had nursed Atlas along on the side. Atlas began with $10,000 subscribed apiece by Odlum, his wife, George Howard, a lawyer friend; and Howard's wife. Atlas was a success from the start. In one year its net assets per common share rose from $4 to $19. At the end of 1925, the figure was $69. The Republican golden age was on the rise.

One of the most excellent judgments in the history of American finance gave Odlum his famous $14,000,000 cash stake. In 1929, when almost everyone else was assuming there was no top, he decided that prices were too high. So he began converting a great part of Atlas holdings into cold money and quick assets. The crash did not catch him with his guard down.

With his board, he set about buying up investment trusts. Here the depression psychology aided him. Most trusts were pretty well deflated by the crash. Their portfolios contained mostly air. Moreover, share holders in the trusts now distrusted the voices that had lured them in and they wanted to get out. They were willing to take huge losses. The fact that many trusts had been conducted simply for the enrichment of their officers made investors all the more wary. Odlum quietly bought up blocks of shares at low prices. One day he would walk in and announce to the board of directors that he was now the owner and would they kindly relinquish the leather chairs?

He loved to see their surprised expressions. There was a great deal of general confusion in those troublous days, but it was duck soup for Odlum. When he was in school, it was nothing for him to work out his homework in calculus while his father was rehearsing his sermon in the same room. The panic failed to bother him.

Odlum salvaged much from the trusts he took over. The prevailing throw-me-a-rope psychology gave him portfolios of shares at prices below their asset values. He sold some of the holdings and retained many that were flat on their backs but, in his opinion, had possibilities. The latter, apparent white elephants, have redeemed his faith in them many times over.

ALL told, Atlas took over 22 investment trusts. Their holdings gave Atlas (and Odlum) a finger in a good part of American business, so that Atlas is, to some extent, a management company today. Odlum says he expects to make a lot of money. He is still betting on recovery.

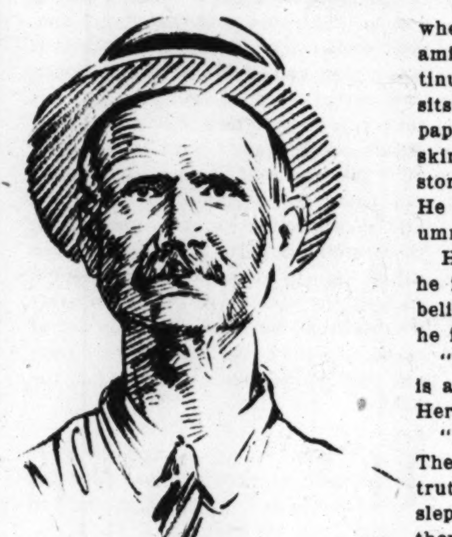
Odlum dislikes social life. He plays golf, badly. He collects nineteenth-century English paintings and likes to meet unusual personalities. He lives in Forest Hills and belongs to the famous tennis club there, but doesn't play tennis.

Odlum used to have trouble sleeping due to nervousness. Now he has an infallible formula for relaxing. He makes clever models in clay of bronze pieces. Before going to bed he squashes them back into balls of clay. This gives him a feeling of having completed a cycle satisfactorily and sleep comes easily. He shuns red meat. His favorite drink is milk.

Recently, Odlum's marriage, begun in 1915 in Salt Lake City, was liquidated in Reno by Mrs. Odlum, who is a native of Utah. Mrs. Odlum, the former Hortense McQuarrie, daughter of a rancher, still remains as head of Bonwit Teller, Fifth avenue women's store. She took over management as a hobby when her husband acquired the establishment several years ago in an investment trust deal. She will continue running the store. Apparently the break is a friendly one. There are two sons, Stanley, 19, a student at Dartmouth, and Bruce, 11, who goes to a private school in Forest Hills.

JACK ALEXANDER.

THE MAN WHO 'NEVER SLEEPS'



Albert E. Herpin.

TRENTON, New Jersey.

MEN have chosen divers ways to gain distinction in this century of progress. They have made the headlines by flying oceans, by sitting on top of flagpoles and by eating huge numbers of flapjacks. None has gained the accolade of fame in the manner of Albert E. Herpin of Trenton.

Herpin, 83 years old and hearty, has never had a single dream; he has never been torn from slumber by the annoying tinkle of an alarm clock; he has never known the agony of getting from a warm bed on a chilly fall morning. The reason: he has, he insists, never been asleep.

There just isn't any sleep in Herpin, says Herpin. Not a bit. When he was an infant he alarmed his parents by lying awake in his crib staring at the blue ceiling above. When he continued to stay awake week upon week, physicians said he could not live. He lived. Thirty years ago, his case amazed the medical and scientific world. From far and wide came physicians and specialists of all kinds to examine this peculiar man.

They examined him thoroughly and exhaustively. At the end, they admitted they were baffled, but added that Herpin could not live long. Today, when many of the physicians who examined him are memories, Herpin continues to work most of the day and sits up most of the night reading newspaper after newspaper. He doesn't skim over the headlines or read the stories that interest him particularly. He reads the papers column for column, digesting every line.

Herpin's philosophy is as plain as he is perplexing. He asks no one to believe in his strange case. He admits he is a freak. But he adds:

"If a doctor says that Herpin's case is an impossibility, that doesn't make Herpin sleep.

"People have been skeptical of me. They don't believe I am telling the truth when I say that I have never slept. I defy anyone to prove that they have even seen me a little drowsy, and I have lived here since I was five years old. I never slept in my life. There isn't any sleep in me.

"I'm not after fame and notoriety because of my sleeplessness. I've had a dozen offers to go on the stage. But why should I? I'm not built that way. I'd rather work like any other man for a living, and I've worked hard."

What does Herpin do when tired?"

"I rest," declares Herpin.

This sleepless wonder does just what he says, too. He sits up in a comfortable arm chair, places his arms straight at his sides, stretches out his legs and remains quiet. There are no regular intervals for this rest, either. He may recline in this chair in his small, modestly furnished house for an hour, or even two. Or he may stay there but a few minutes.

"Don't you want to sleep," an interviewer asked Herpin.

"Sleep?" he asks back. "I can't sleep. I've tried it a hundred times. Then I gave it up as a bad job. I can't even close my eyes. It's a strain to keep them closed. I can't lie on a bed. It annoys me to stretch my body out full length. I get a stitch in my side when I do. I got a cot in my home. I tried to rest on it. No good. I like best to rest in an arm chair, and I get the best results when I sit up straight, too."

Herpin is an amazing figure in more ways than one. The octogenarian carries himself erect as an athlete. His step is firm, his eye clear. In spite of the heavy usage he gives his eyes, he does not wear spectacles. His arms and legs are limber. His apparent sleeplessness hasn't hurt his well being.

For many years Herpin was a China decorator. The industry hit a slack period; he was laid off. Then he worked for the city street department, remaining in municipal employ for about 20 years. For the past several years he has occupied himself going gardening and tending to furnaces in the residential section of the city.

And the days he works, Herpin really works. He walks to his chores, and walks back again. He never rides. He has had but two rides on a trolley car. Until a couple of years ago he had never ridden in an automobile.

Herpin is just as perplexed at his condition as the many experts who have examined him. He is at a loss to explain his sleeplessness, but suspects that a fright his mother suffered in an accident caused a prenatal shock to his spinal column.

"I can't give any real reason for it all," says Herpin. "There is no other case like it in our family.

"I'M far from being a crank. I like to laugh and enjoy life. I smoke at nights, lots of it. The pipe. goes in my mouth when I get home and stays there while I read. I'm a teetotaler, too.

"The doctors can't understand my case. They have tried for years. Often, when they had me under observation they gave me dope. It didn't make me sleep. It made me sick."

Once, in Philadelphia, Herpin was put in a room filled with gas which ordinarily produces immediate sleep. Herpin remained awake, he says.

Looking around at his humble surroundings, he continued:

"And what if I did have a lot of money? What would I do with it? I have enough for my own needs; my health is good, I have plenty of work."

So Herpin continues to tend furnaces, trim lawns, rake leaves and spend his loose change for toys for children in his neighborhood.

CONVERY EGAN

(Editor's note: A medical explanation of Herpin's condition is that he actually does sleep, but that on this one subject he suffers from an "hallucination," i. e., that he simply cannot remember sleeping.)

THE CORPSE IN THE CREEK

The Sixth in a Series of True Life Detective Stories Tells How Ellis Parker Solved the Bank Messenger's Mysterious Death.

Ellis Parker, a small-town detective living and working in Mount Holly, New Jersey, is nevertheless a nationally-known figure in police circles through the remarkable number of major crime mysteries he has unraveled. His skillful analysis of fragmentary evidence immediately suggests that celebrated fictional detective, Sherlock Holmes.

By FLETCHER PRATT

ELLIS PARKER trundled out of his office behind the two officers who were taking the prisoner away. "Wait a minute, Ed," he said to one of them, and then in a low tone, "Get over there and look at that garage right away. You know what you're after, don't you?"

"The window"——

"No, no, the window will be too small, just like he said. He must have tried to get in that way. Look at the lock. You heard me ask him what kind of a lock it was, and I guess he didn't expect the question because he answered it quick and said it was a Yale lock. Now garage doors aren't usually locked with Yale locks; they have padlocks, and it stands to reason if somebody was locking him in there, like he says, he had every reason to pay special attention to the lock, and if it turns out it's a padlock, then he's lying. . . . Now what was it you were after, young man? Oh, yes, you wanted me to tell you about the David Paul case."

. . . That was an outstanding bit of prosecution. Charles Wolverton, the attorney, deserves as much credit as anyone. But it wasn't his case or mine either, in the beginning. It belonged to Larry Doran, the Chief of Detectives over at Camden, and he had already done a lot of good work on it before I had a chance to delve into it.

It was hardly his fault that the facts he had didn't lead in the right direction. When you have only one fact, you can draw any number of inferences to explain it. When you have two related facts the number of possible explanations that will fit both is reduced, but still considerable, and it's only when you become aware of additional facts that the field is narrowed down to the one possible explanation. Take that fellow who was just in here. He was found in this garage; now that in itself looks bad, but there are explanations beside the idea that he was in there to steal something. His explanation is that he went in there to get warm and got locked in by accident. But if it turns out that he doesn't know what kind of a lock it was he heard click, why there are very few explanations that will fit.

IN THIS Paul case now, Larry Doran didn't have all the facts, and it wasn't his fault that he couldn't get all of them. I had one lot of facts from the start. I knew David S. Paul and his family. They came from Mount Holly and Paul was born and brought up right here. He took one of the first civil service examinations ever held for the post of mail carrier, and got the job. He was a bright lad in those days, not quite 20; used to be a great hand to chase around after girls, and that got him into trouble, because he spent a good deal of money on them. About a year after he got his mail carrier's job there began to be losses from the registered mail. The postal inspectors traced them to Paul; he was arrested and convicted. In view of his youth and family, he was let off with a year in prison.

When he came out, instead of going away somewhere else, he walked right into the Broadway Trust Company in Camden, told them the whole story and asked for a job and a chance to go straight. They were impressed by his straightforwardness, his father put up a heavy bond for him, and he was given the job. That was about 20 years before the time I am talking about, which was October of 1920, and he had made good. He was married by that time, had a grown-up son, and had become the bank's most trusted messenger. It's important for you to remember these things. Larry Doran had all of them as far as the outward facts go, but he didn't have the personal knowledge of Paul that I had.

Now on this date I'm speaking of, October 5, Paul started out with a heavy wallet for the Girard National Bank in Philadelphia. It contained $42,000 in checks and $40,000 in cash. Paul started at about 1 o'clock; he was due to stop at the First National in Camden for some canceled checks, take his wallet to Philly and then he was through for the day. At about 5:15 the Girard people called up the Broadway Trust to know where their messenger was. They'd been holding clerks there overtime waiting for him.

"Why, he left here at 1 o'clock," said the Broadway Trust people. "Are you sure?"

"Absolutely," was the answer. "We haven't seen him here."

"She stayed till nearly 3 o'clock and then left, looking very much annoyed."

The Broadway Trust called Camden police headquarters right away and within half an hour Doran and Police Chief Gravenor of Camden had been out looking for the missing messenger.

I wasn't in on that part of the case. It was over in Camden County, you see, and Doran handled it. All I know of his methods is what he told me later, but I do know the first thing he did was rush to the bank and look over Paul's locker, while he sent a couple of men out to his home. That's the normal first step when a bank employe disappears with a big bunch of money. It usually isn't much use trying to follow up what direction he went, because that's the first thing he thinks of when he makes up his mind to get away with the firm's money, and he is careful to cover his tracks. But if you can look over the place where he lives and works, there is usually something around to give you the tip-off on where he's going. You try to be waiting for him when he arrives.

The first thing Doran found gave the bank officials a terrible shock. It was a bunch of letters, not tied up, but just thrust into the locker. They dated back for over three years, and every one of them was from a woman. They were full of endearing terms, and rich in references to dances in roadhouses, motor rides and drunken parties.

THERE must have been a dozen different women represented, and when Doran drew up a list of the parties, they made a pretty regular series covering the whole three years —Paul had been hitting the high spots about once a month right along all through that period.

The bank people called up the bonding company right away. They sent a man over and before the next morning had circulars going out to police officials everywhere, giving photos and descriptions of Paul. Meanwhile, they put an auditor on the bank's books to see how much more the messenger had gotten away with and how he had worked it, while Doran sat down to see what he could make of the letters. It looked as though the trusted messenger had reverted to type.

The letters weren't very informative, but there were a good many of them, and after a while Doran discovered that most of the parties had taken place at a place called Lollipop Inn in Clementon, and that Paul's special companion on these expeditions was a man named Frank James. Doran had never heard of Lollipop Inn, but sent one of his men out to find it. Frank James wasn't hard to locate at all. He was well known in Camden, the agent for a line of trucks. He had a big store on the main stem there and was quite well-to-do. Doran called him up to see whether he could furnish any clew as to Paul's probable whereabouts, but found he was out of town, so went on with the line of tracing Paul's movements after he left the bank.

HE found he had visited the First National, all right, but then the trail ended. Fortunately, he had a good clew for picking it up again. The very last of the letters in Paul's locker was signed by somebody named Tessie, and promised to meet the messenger at the ferry house of the Delaware River ferry at 2 o'clock.

Doran made the ferry house the starting point of his personal investigations, and was lucky enough to find out that the ticket sellers and porters on the ferry mostly knew Paul pretty well, as he made frequent trips across to Philly by that route. They said that Paul was in the habit of meeting women in the ferry house. It was one of his favorite hangouts. But they were all certain he hadn't met any woman there on the afternoon of October 5, and one of the porters said he had seen a girl there about that time, waiting under the big clock. She stayed till nearly 3 and then left, looking very much annoyed.

"Did you ever see this girl meet Paul there before?" asked Doran.

"No," said the porter, "she was a new one on me. But then we used to kid him a lot about it. He had a new one about every month or so. Looked like one of Paul's girls, all right, though—kind of cheap and flashy."

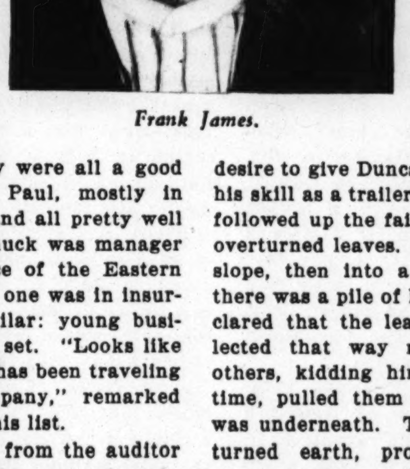
The girl must have been Tessie, all right, Doran decided. It checked with the fact that there was only one letter from Tessie in the package in the locker, and with the fact, which he got from one of the clerks at the Broadway Trust, that Paul had told him he had a date with a swell Jane that afternoon. But the evidence was negative, you see; it simply showed that Paul had not gone to Philadelphia by the ferry that particular day, which Doran knew already. It was almost three days later before he got hold of anything else, and then it was a kind of accident.

Frank James, the truck dealer, who seemed to be Paul's closest friend, hadn't come home, so Doran went round to his house to see James' wife. He was anxious to get a clew to some of the women Paul went around with, especially this Tessie, because it looked very much like one of the regular bank absconder cases, of skipping out with a woman. When he got to the James place, he discovered that the couple were pretty much estranged. They continued to live together, but James did a lot of running around with other women and his wife knew it. She said he'd been away for about three days—"probably down at Lollipop Inn," she suggested.

He pricked up his ears at that; the man he had put on the Lollipop Inn end hadn't found anything. "What's Lollipop Inn?" he asked.

"Oh, it's a bungalow my husband owns down at Clementon," she explained. "He takes Paul and some of the women down there for parties."

"Who else goes down there with them?" asked Doran, still interested in getting a line on anyone who knew Paul, and especially Paul's women.



Frank James.

She gave him a list of names, including Raymond Shuck. Doran knew most of them. They were all a good deal younger than Paul, mostly in their late twenties, and all pretty well fixed for money. Shuck was manager of the Camden office of the Eastern Telephone Company, one was in insurance, the others similar: young business men of the fast set. "Looks like our bank messenger has been traveling in pretty good company," remarked Doran when he had his list.

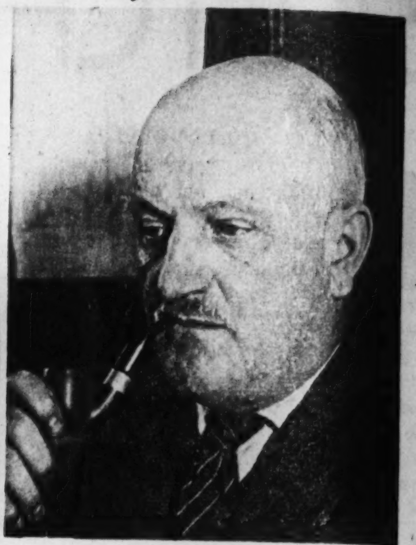
He got the report from the auditor the next day, but there wasn't anything wrong with the bank's accounts. Apparently Paul had just grabbed off this $82,000 on impulse or else planned for a long time to make a big haul. Doran saw the other members of the gang Paul went around with, including James, who got back a day later. They all told the same story—Paul was much older than the rest of the Lollipop Inn crowd, a sort of hanger-on and the butt of their jokes. None of them would give Doran the names of any of the women who went there. They climbed on their dignity right away and simply refused.

And right there Doran's case was stalled. There was no trace whatever of Paul. He had simply vanished. The routine was carried on as before. Doran went over the letters more carefully, traced down addresses and postmarks, and tried to get in touch with the women who had written them. Every one he could find claimed she hadn't seen Paul for a couple of months, and he couldn't find Tessie at all. He began to be convinced that the woman the porter had seen wasn't Tessie after all, and that Paul had made a getaway with the mysterious girl.

BUT he was wrong. The duck-hunting season opened on October 16. That morning four hunters started out in the pine woods swampland, about 15 miles north of Camden and over the line into Burlington County. They were going along a narrow causeway, Irick's Causeway, just past a little stream called Bread and Cheese Creek, when one of them, a man named Washington Duncan, noticed that someone had been there before them. He wouldnt have noticed it if he hadn't been an experienced woodsman, for the only indication he had was the fact that the autumn leaves on the slope beside the causeway had been turned over since they fell.

However, he did notice that and commented on it to his companions. They assumed somebody had been rushing the duck-hunting season, and more out of curiosity and the desire to give Duncan a chance to show his skill as a trailer than anything else, followed up the faint track left by the overturned leaves. It led them up the slope, then into a depression, where there was a pile of leaves. Duncan declared that the leaves had never collected that way naturally, and the others, kidding him about it all the time, pulled them away to see what was underneath. They found freshly-turned earth, probed into it, and struck the knees of a corpse, with the clothes almost torn off it.

That brought me into the case; the body was in my county, and I had to go over there and dig it out. It was Paul, all right; there couldn't be any question of it, although the head had been battered almost beyond recognition, and when the grave was cleared out, I found the confirmation—the bank messenger's wallet underneath the body, with the $42,000 in checks in it, as well as the canceled checks from the First National.



Ellis Parker.

I started out to look for things; you know what kind of things already because I've told you about some of my other cases—anything at all that didn't seem to belong there. Here's what I found—see what you can make of the list:

First, there was the ink on the checks; it had run in several places on different checks all through the bundle. Paul's pockets were empty; not a card, not a letter, nothing to identify him; all except the back pocket, which contained a .38-caliber revolver. I may as well say now that we checked on that; it was the bank's revolver and examination showed it hadn't been fired recently. The chamber was full. Paul's cuff links were missing.

I WENT over the ground with Washington Duncan helping me. We swept away the leaves and found faint traces of something heavy being dragged up the slope from Irick's Causeway, a heavy track in the center, with two light, thin, dragging tracks on either side. No footprints. I went through the leaves that had lain on the grave. There were some little scraps of paper mixed with them, and I spent four or five hours collecting them. The result was more or less of a disappointment; when I got the scraps fitted together, they made a letter addressed to "Dear Harry" and signed "Mother," telling about how things were at home and how "your father" will be paying a visit soon. The letter was dated October 4, and from the fragments of the envelope I learned that it was written by Paul's wife to their son in Mount Holly. There wasn't any stamp. The grave itself was only about two feet deep, and it had been made too short, so they had doubled up the dead man's knees to get him into it, and then tied them together with a rope. Also among the leaves I found a thin piece of leather of the kind they use for lining automobiles. It had a stain on one side.

While I was making the search that brought these things together, Doran had come over from Camden and brought a couple of doctors with him. Their report was a shock. They said Paul's skull had been all smashed to pieces with heavy blows from at least two different weapons, and in addition that he had been shot twice, through the face and the body. But they also said that he couldn't have been dead more than 48 hours.

"Why, the man's been missing for 11 days!" exclaimed Doran. "Are you positive?"

Both doctors were. "If that body had been lying there 11 days," one of them pointed out, "you couldn't make out the features at all. And look at those black and blue bruises on the back. Such markings disappear after three or four days."

DORAN was puzzled. "What do you think?" he asked me. "Did he run out with someone else and then quarrel with them after a week and get himself killed? It doesn't seem likely, but"——

"It's impossible," I told him. "I've known David Paul for a long time, and I don't think he'd rob that bank for any reason. Besides, the idea that he absconded fails to explain the curious mystery of the checks."

"But the checks are with the body."

"That's the curious mystery. If he ran away with the money, why did he keep the checks and leather wallet on him for nine days They were a positive danger unless he meant to cash them, and there is no trace of that. The first thing he'd do is to destroy them or plant them somewhere."

"But all the means of identification he carried were removed. It looks like a get-away."

"Removed by the criminals—and when they buried him. The fact that they destroyed the letter to his son on the spot indicated that."

"You say 'they.' What makes you think there was more than one?"

"The track up the slope. Look; the heavy track in the center is undoubtedly that made by the body when it was dragged up here. The grave was dug out, and afterward filled in with spades. You can see their marks there. They were heavy spades. The two light markings at the side of the track left by the body must be those made by the spades, which the criminals dragged along at the same time. Each of them undoubtedly dragged a spade with one hand and an arm of the body with the other. That would indicate they were men, too, by the way. It doesn't seem likely that any of the girls Paul went around with could have done all that heavy work, to say nothing of the force of the blows."

THE CORPSE IN THE CREEK

"Then we're getting the picture. What do you think of this: he was lured away by some girl, went off with her somewhere and was knocked on the head by a couple of confederates. It looks like a gang job." He sketched for me the outlines of what he had learned so far.

"I DON'T think much of your gang job theory," I told him when he finished, "or, for that matter, of your idea that he ran away with some girl."

"Why not?"

"Well, in the first place, everything points to the idea that he didn't intend to go away at all. You say you found a three years' accumulation of girls' letters in his locker. Now if Paul had intended to abscond with a woman the first thing he'd do would be to get rid of those letters. A man clever enough to build up a reputation for honesty through 20 years, and clever enough to keep his side adventures with women from his wife, wouldn't be so stupid as to leave such an obvious trail behind him."

"Yes, but"——

"Yes, but there's something more important. If it were merely a case of walking out with the money Paul acted with incredible stupidity all the way through. Why, he didn't even take the elementary precaution of actually going to the Girard and leaving those checks there. He obviously didn't mean to cash them. He could have done that easily. It would have finished his day's work, cut off the possibility of a phone call back to the Broadway Trust and delayed the start of the pursuit until the next morning at least, perhaps longer, giving him a head start with the cash. Moreover, there's that letter to his son. If he went off with some girl, no matter how forgetful he is, he would hardly carry it around in his pocket for nine days. And on top of it all, there is the peculiar incident of Tessie."

"The girl he was going to meet in the ferry house?"

"For which appointment he failed to show up. You have suggested that he may have met Tessie somewhere else. But that would imply she had some means of phoning him or communicating with him other than by letter, and in that case she wouldn't have written him to meet her in the ferry house. No, the girl the porter saw in the ferry house must have been Tessie, and the fact that he didn't meet her there makes it certain that he deviated from his normal route somewhere on this side of the river, that is, in Camden. If he were going to make a break, he'd surely go to Philadelphia. There are a good many ways you can get out of Philly, but only one railroad line through Camden. No, he must have been held up somewhere between the First National and the ferry house."

"But if he was an honest man, where did he get the money for his share of the Lollipop Inn parties?"

"I don't know. That's one of the things that need explaining. He evidently didn't get it from the bank. Another one is at what point in the streets of Camden Paul was spirited away."

"But if he didn't go willingly, where has he been for the nine days before he was killed. Could the murderers have held him prisoner for that long?"

"That's what puzzles me," I told him. "If those doctors weren't so certain, I should say he'd been killed on the fifth. Everything seems to point to that idea; the fact that we haven't had any trace of him since, the fact that the money hasn't shown up anywhere—by the way, has the Broadway Trust the numbers of the bills he was carrying?"

"No, the forty thousand was mostly in twenties and they don't take the numbers of bills of that size."

"Well, never mind. And then, the condition of the clothes and those checks—"

"You mean that the clothes were damp and the checks had run a little."

"Yes . . ." and then something struck me all at once. "I'll bet anything you want to name," I said, "that David Paul was killed on the day he disappeared!"

"What makes you think so?"

"Those checks. Look here, we found them inside that bank messenger's leather wallet, didn't we? And the flap was folded over. Well, we've been thinking it was the moisture from the ground or from rain that got in there and dampened the checks. But how could it get through that thick leather pouch in two days? No way that I know of—and if it did get in, only the outer checks of the bundle would run. No sir, there's only one way those checks could get as wet as that, and that's by being submerged in the water for a long time, so that the water gradually seeped in and filled the wallet. And if the wallet was in the water that long, so was the body, because there would be no sense in the murderers' keeping it in water for nine days and then fishing it out to bury it, with the body. And see, that trail where they dragged him leads right up from Bread and Cheese Creek."

"But water wouldn't make a body keep like that; water decomposes bodies even faster than being in the ground."

"Ordinary water does, but you know as well as I do that Bread and Cheese Creek has a funny smell and can't be used for drinking purposes. If there's something in it that acts as a preservative, that would account for everything, because it would keep that body fresh till the murderers got ready to bury it. Have you got a bottle on you?"

ONE of the doctors had one, so I took a sample of the water from the creek for analysis and we headed back to town. Doran agreed with me that the important thing now was to fix Paul's movements on October 5 as closely as possible, especially during the hour between one and two. Of course, the ground had been gone over already, but not as thoroughly as it would be in the light of the certainty that Paul had been kidnaped or murdered during that time. There were only about forty minutes to account for; he had left the First National at about one-twenty and failed to meet Tessie at the ferry at two o'clock. Doran offered the suggestion that it would be a good idea to canvass everyone who had places of business around the First National.

On the way in we stopped at Paul's house to tell his wife, and I cleaned up one of the points that had been bothering me.

"How much did your husband get a week?" I asked her.

"Why, thirty dollars," she said, as though surprised.

I knew, because Doran had already told me, that Paul had been paid forty dollars a week for the last three years. That explained where the money for the Lollipop Inn parties was coming from; you can have quite a few parties on ten dollars a week provided you don't have expensive tastes and Paul didn't. Of course that removed the last doubt; David Paul had not robbed anyone; he had remained true to his trust and had been murdered for it.

As we came out of the Paul house I had another inspiration.

"What route would Paul take going from the Broadway Trust to the ferry?" I asked Doran.

"Right down the main street," he said, "Delaware avenue. The First National is right on the street. But I've covered the question already."

"You haven't covered the question I want an answer to," I told him. "The matter wasn't so important as long as you were looking for an absconder, but now we're looking for a murderer. It's not sense to suppose that Paul was murdered on the main street of Camden at half-past one in the afternoon, especially in view of the way his head was all caved in. Therefore he must have gone some place with the murderers, and he must have gone with them willingly, because he was not only armed, but on the main street of a busy town, where a shout would have brought policemen from every direction. And if he went willingly, with all that money on him, he must have gone with someone he knew, because David Paul wasn't stupid. Therefore, when you make your inquiries, you want to know particularly whether he was seen talking to anyone he knew—I should say, at a guess, to one of the Lollipop Inn crowd."

"Do you suppose they had a woman with them?"

I DIDN'T think so, and I told him why. "No, that won't do. Paul already had a girl waiting for him at the ferry. Besides, look here; he was a man of some force of character. Running those wild parties as he did, the temptation to take some of the bank's money must have been considerable. But Paul kept his business and his social life strictly separate. It wouldn't be in character for him to run off from his job with some new girl, especially as he had barely time to make the Girard with his wallet before closing time. You can see what he meant to do; he was going to take Tessie with him to the Girard, and when he made his delivery there, go out with her for a big time. Unless I miss my guess, it would be someone with a car, offering him a lift to the ferry."

Doran thought a minute. "That makes it more like the Lollipop Inn crowd than ever," he announced. "They're the only ones that fit. But good heavens! You can't accuse those men of a thing like that. Why, they're prominent citizens! Besides, what use would they have for the bank's money?"

"Well, you see where the evidence points," I told him. "If I were you I'd be a lot rougher in questioning that crowd than I have been, even if they owned the town. Of course something new may turn up, and you can't really start work till morning. By that time we'll probably have the report from the chemists on that water, too. Perhaps it's just as well not to take any definite action yet. The whole theory we've built up rests on the question of how long Paul has been dead, and that isn't certain yet."

We didn't have long to wait for the answer to that. The next morning before I went down to my office the chemist phoned to say that the water I had taken from Bread and Cheese Creek contained tannic acid in considerable quantity. I explained the condition of Paul's body over the phone—"How did the tannic acid get there, and would it preserve a human body for several days like that?" I asked.

"As to the first question, I can't tell you," said the chemist. "You'll have to get a geologist for that. As to the second question, yes. The quantity of tannic acid in that creek would preserve a body practically undamaged for much longer than that. The doctor said your man hadn't been dead for more than 48 hours, did he? Well, allowing for the time it would take the acid to wear off, I should say, he'd probably been taken out of the water for two and a half or three days when you found him."

I sat down and held a little argument with myself about that. The gaps were beginning to fill in; the murderers must have taken Paul north out of Camden, undoubtedly in their car. Almost certainly they had killed him in the car and simply pushed him off the bridge at Bread and Cheese Creek, because, like all murderers, they would be anxious to get away and prove an alibi. When Paul was missed and all the fuss was raised about him, they got nervous, fished him out of the creek and buried him up in the hollow at the top of the hill, where he never would have been discovered if Washington Duncan hadn't been such a good woodsman. But the body showed evidence of 48 hours' decay. That meant that the body had been put in the water 48 hours after he had been killed, which didn't fit in with anything else and could therefore be discarded; or that they had fished him out of it to bury him two or three days ago. There was at least an indication here that one or both of the murderers was enough of a duck hunter to know that the opening of the season would bring numerous people down Irick's Causeway who might see the body in the creek and wonder about it. It also meant that the murderer was a local man.

There were two ways we could check up absolutely on Paul's having been in that creek before being buried, however. I called up to have his clothes analyzed for traces of tannic acid and had the autopsy doctor make the same search, then left word to have the creek dragged carefully in the neighborhood of the bridge. To make the story short, I may as well tell you now that we clicked on both ends of this test. The clothes showed tannic acid and eventually we fished a spectacle case marked "D.S.P." out of Bread and Cheese Creek. You have to check every detail like this all the time if you want to make a success of the business of detection.

Late that same morning the phone rang again. It was Doran:

"Hello, Ellis," he said. "We've arrested Frank James."

"What?" I almost shouted. "Did somebody recognize him?"

"Somebody saw him in front of the First National on the afternoon of October 5, talking to Paul."

"How did you find him?"

"Oh, that was an idea of my own. I figured that anyone along that street who had seen Paul that day would have come forward already, so I went to the First National and got from them a list of the people who made deposits on October 5. A man from out at Moorestown was the one who remembered Paul from a picture. He's positive as to the identification of James, though. He bought a truck from him a year or two ago."

WELL, that was good, and yet it wasn't so good. I was sure now, and so was Charles Wolverton, the Camden County prosecutor who was handling the case, that we had the right man. James fitted all our requirements like a glove; when the Moorestown man saw him, he had been standing on the curb in front of the bank talking to Paul, right beside James' car, a Ford sedan. The curtains in the back of the car were down tight. James was a duck hunter who knew about the pine woods section. James had been most conspicuously missing from home all the afternoon and evening of October 5 and for several days after that in addition. Also, James' financial affairs, when we set out to investigate them, turned out to be in more or less of a mess. The expense of maintaining Lollipop Inn had evidently been more of a drain on him than he cared to admit.

But you can't go before a jury with a chain of deductions like that. The evidence pointed to James, but it didn't exclude anyone else. Besides, James was, as I said before, a prominent citizen; suspicion would naturally roll off him like water off a duck's back. And when they pulled him in for questioning, he showed either nerves of iron or a perfectly clean conscience.

"Have it your own way," he said sarcastically, when Wolverton began to put the screws on him. "I suppose you've got to make a showing of some kind for the newspapers and you picked on me as the goat."

"You can clear yourself quite easily," Wolverton told him, "by simply explaining where you were on the afternoon and evening of October 5."

"I've told you already," James retorted, "that I was in Philadelphia on a party with some women. No, I absolutely refuse to give you their names and addresses. What kind of a skunk do you think I am?"

AND that was all he'd say. He felt pretty sure of himself; he knew we had nothing very definite on him. Then I remembered one piece of evidence we hadn't used as yet, because I didn't see where it fitted in—that jagged piece of leather I had found among the leaves out at Paul's grave. It had come from the inside of an auto, all right; I had checked up with several auto agencies, and they had said it was probably from the inner door of a Ford. Now James' car was a Ford and he had been standing beside a Ford with Paul on the day of the crime. I suggested to Doran that he have James' car examined.

He pounced on the James place and got the car. There was a tear in the lining of the back door and that piece of leather I had found in the grave fitted it like the paper on the wall. Besides, the windshield of the car was broken, there were marks of sandpaper on one side and more stains on the lining, and although the car was an old one the back cushion was brand new. But James only shrugged when these facts were pointed out to him.

"The damage to the car is the result of a wild party," he said. "A bunch of us drove out together. Somebody spilled whisky all over the back there. That's what made the stains."

"When was this party?"

"Oh, on the night of October 4, I think."

"What about that piece of leather?"

"The Lord only knows how it got there. I was too hazy myself to drive that night, so I let someone else take the wheel. I haven't any idea where we went."

He had an answer for everything.

But Doran kept plugging along. I don't know how he went about it, but he finally located a man at Forest Hills, between Camden and Irick's Causeway, who had seen two men driving along in that Ford on the afternoon of October 5.

"Who was the other man—do you know him?" asked Doran, quick as a wink.

"I should say I do, mister. It was Ray Shuck, the manager of the telephone company."

You could have knocked Doran down with a feather, and me, too, when that came out. Here were two perfectly respectable business men mixed up in a savage premeditated murder.

"Did the car have a broken windshield?" Doran asked him.

"No," was the answer.

"Then the windshield was broken after that," I told Doran later. Probably the windshield went and the stains were made, too, when they tried to get the body out of the car. I think it's pretty certain that Paul was dead by the time they got to Forest Hills. He wouldn't have let them take him that far from his job. It also shows James was lying about breaking the windshield on the night of October 4. But we'll never crack him on it. If Shuck is the other man in it, he's the one we'll have to break."

"Yes, but how are you going to do it? Those two have worked out their stories pretty carefully for the night of October 5. You'll find that Shuck has some good answer for that, too, like James' story of a wild party."

"Wait a minute," I said. "Those two are smart, but they aren't smart enough to cover everything, because there isn't such a thing as a fool-proof lie. You know and I know that if we get him up on trial and he springs that story of a wild party, refusing to give names in order to protect the women, he's going to get away with it. That would go over big with a jury, coming from a reputable business man. Shuck will have the same story for October 5, and we'll never break him on it. But there's another date just as important as the date of the murder, only I doubt if those two realize how important it is yet—and that's the day they pulled the body out of the creek and buried it. Let's see, we found it on October 16; that would make the important date October 12, 13 or 14. Let's not pull Shuck in for a while yet. Put a tail on him, find out who all his associates are, and see if he spends any unusual amount of money. Meanwhile, keeping it under cover, we'll try to build up a timetable of every movement he made during those days when the body must have been buried. Then we'll invite him to explain."

"Fine. But there's one thing more. You said they had heavy shovels to make that grave. How about finding out where they bought them? And that cushion, too. We may be able to locate the old one."

I was doubtful about that. "Probably got them in Philadelphia, but it's worth trying," I said.

I won't go into the story of the routine inquiries that followed. Doran and the Philadelphia police picked up the trails of both James and Shuck in that city. It seems that James had embarked on a prolonged bender beginning on the morning of October 6. He had been throwing money around like a wild man, even buying a $600 fur coat for one girl. Wolverton kept after him with every new fact that was turned up, but James never turned a hair; explained that he had earned the money in his business.

Meanwhile, we were putting together the story of Shuck's movements. It was nearly two weeks after James' arrest before we began to get anything like a complete picture. Then we found a garage man in Mount Ephraim with whom James had left the Ford on October 6 or 7. On the afternoon of October 13 he had called for it again with another man, whom the garage proprietor recognized from a photograph as Shuck. We checked Shuck's movements that afternoon; he had left the phone company office early, saying he didn't feel well, but had never showed up at home, and I felt sure that must be the afternoon the body was buried.

ALSO we lighted on something else that gave us a new lead to work on with Shuck. In the pains-taking investigation into his movements, Doran turned up the fact that the phone company man had a sweetheart in Philadelphia, a girl named Mary, with whom he had been going for more than a year. Doran didn't stop there; he saw her friends and found out she thought Shuck was single.

I got her to come over from Philadelphia. When she was in my office I told her that Shuck was being questioned in connection with this murder case and then let slip, as though by accident, the fact that he was a married man. I saw her stiffen up when I said that, but went on talking about something else, giving her a chance to turn it over in her mind, then suddenly turned to the things I really wanted to know.

"How often did Ray come to see you?"

"Almost every night."

"Did you see him on the night of October 5?"

"No, not till the next day."

"Did he have any money with him then?"

"Yes. A big roll. It was mostly $20 bills. He said he had won a big bet on the world series."

Twenty dollar bills! Like those that were in Paul's wallet.

"Did you see him the night of October 13—Tuesday?"

"No. The double-crosser, he made a date with me and then didn't keep it."

That settled it. I let her go, and that afternoon I went over and arrested Shuck. It was taking more or less of a chance, because he was a prominent business man, and while the evidence against James was strong enough to warrant his arrest, we didn't really have much on Shuck but the identification of the man in Forest Hills who had seen him go through in James' car on the afternoon of October 5. If I couldn't break him he would have a whopping big suit for false arrest.

I started in on him by going over the details of his movements between October 6 and 13. "You went to your sister's house on October 11 didn't you? And stayed there till about 10"—you see the line I took. I wanted him to think we knew everything about his movements, and I could see he was getting more and more nervous as I dragged him through the details. Finally, I dropped the bombshell.

"What did you tell Mary about the money you had with you on October 6, Raymond?"

He knew then we knew about her and she must have talked.

"I—I told her I won it on the world series," he stammered.

"And where did you really get the money?"

"I—I—can't tell you now."

It looked as though he might be going to shut up. I switched the line of questioning.

"Where did you buy the shovels you had in the car the afternoon of October 13, when you drove out to Irick's Causeway?"

That finished him. He didn't say anything more then, but when I went to his cell the next morning he reached through the bars and grabbed my arm. "I'm going to tell you the truth," he said. "James killed Paul. We planned to rob him some day when he would have a large amount of cash to carry to Philadelphia. I drove the car, and James sat in the back seat. Paul was beside me. When I turned the car up a side street, James hit him on the back of the head with a hammer and then pulled him over into the back seat. He seemed to go crazy then, and instead of knocking Paul out, just beat him all to pieces, he even tore the inside of the car and smashed the windshield. He threatened me with a gun and said if I told he'd kill me, too."

HE WENT on to give me the story in all its details, before witnesses, one of whom was his own lawyer, but I wasn't satisfied even then. James had been in jail for more than two weeks before we had arrested Shuck. If Shuck were an unwilling partner in the murder, all he had to do was come forward with the whole story then. And he hadn't said a word; instead, he had gone around spending a lot of money. I saw that before we'd get the whole story we would have to make James talk, too.

So Wolverton and I staged a little scene to break his nerves. Shuck had told us where the shovels used in burying the body, the hammer, and a piece of old spring with which Paul's head had been battered in, as well as the old, bloody cushion, could be found. We gathered up all these exhibits and went down to Camden. Wolverton read over Shuck's confession to James. As each of the objects was mentioned I had it brought in and laid before him. When the reading was finished we sat there, looking at James. His face had gone gray and he was biting his lips.

"The dirty dog!" he shouted. "It was him who got up the whole plan, and it was him that used the gun on Paul. Ask him where he threw it! And he's the one that got the money, too. All he gave me was $2000."

They went to the electric chair like that, each screaming curses and accusations at the other. They hadn't a defender in the world, those respectable business men of Lollipop Inn, and each one seemed anxious only that the other one should get his dose, too.

FEEDING A FAMILY OF 14

$2 a month for kerosene. "You can't eat that," moans Mrs. Schulz.

When the little twins were born, the family picture got into a Chicago paper and since then the Schulz mailman has been laden. Two letters were from canny persons who would just love to give Julia a job. One, from an 11-year-old Iowa girl with the "best, kindest, most loving mother anyone ever saw," begged for the twins. Her mother, who never had any twins, was 42. Her father, too, wished somebody would leave a pair on the door step.

"We aren't rich," the little girl explained, "but we are farmers and Daddy has lots of milk cows and hogs and sheep and isn't in debt. . . .

"Some night before it gets too cold about 9:30 leave them on our porch and beat it back to No. 60. . . . We have a dog but it never did bite anyone. . . ."

On the whole, the Schulzes rather liked that letter, though they couldn't think of giving up even one twin. They worried about kidnapers for months after, a few years ago, a stranger made an insistent attempt to buy one of the boys from them for $1000—"Wouldn't take ten million," says Schulz.

They were even more interested in another letter, from a Chicago newspaper man. It told of a job open for Schulz on a big painting contract, at 75 cents to $1 an hour, if he could go in to Chicago for it. Schulz was going.

"Maybe," says Mrs. Schulz, "we can buy shoes now."

THE CHARACTERS

WALLY AND WILMA WADDLER—A pair of migrating ducks.
BILL BUNNY—An inquisitive little rabbit.
BETTY BUNNY—Bill's sensible wife.

The Waddlers, having spent the night at the home of Bill and Betty Bunny, are ready to continue their journey South. Bill is sorry to see them go; he would like to have them stay at least a week. Indeed, it would take those traveling ducks that long to answer all the questions Bill asks them about their trip and about their southern home. But the ducks can't delay. And we see them with their luggage in front of the Bunny home, with Bill still asking questions, as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BILL BUNNY—You said it is warm in the South all the time. Do they always have clover and carrots and lettuce and—

WALLY WADDLER—Yes, they have those things all the time.

BILL BUNNY—Gosh, it's too bad that there aren't any bunny people living down there.

WALLY WADDLER—But there are. I've seen quite a few of your kinfolk in the South.

BILL BUNNY—There are? Gosh, how long do you think it would take me to hop down there?

WALLY WADDLER — Oh, it would take an awful long time. But, Bill, we'll have to be on our way. Thanks very much for letting us spend the night with you. We'll see you again next spring. Come, on Wilma. (And with an exchange of goodbys, the Waddlers fly away, the Bunnys watching them until they are out of sight.)

BETTY BUNNY—My, don't they fly fast. Wilma said it would probably take them about two days to get home.

BILL BUNNY—Two days? Gosh, I guess it would take me a week to hop that far. (Then to himself.) But a week isn't so awful long. (He turns to Betty.) Say, how about you and I going South this winter? (Betty looks at Bill to see if he is joking, and when she sees how serious he is, she just can't keep from laughing.)

BETTY BUNNY—Ha! ha! ha! You go ahead if you want to. But I'm going to stay right here. Ha! ha! ha! (Poor Bill, he feels very foolish when Betty laughs at him, and he sits down to think things over. The more he thinks the more determined he is to go South. At last he gets up, walks into his house, packs his things in a big red handkerchief, and starts on his long journey. Betty is still laughing at him.)

BILL BUNNY — Goodby. I'll send you a postcard of me sitting in the shade of a tree eating a big red carrot. (Betty says goodby. But she can't say any more; she's laughing too hard.)

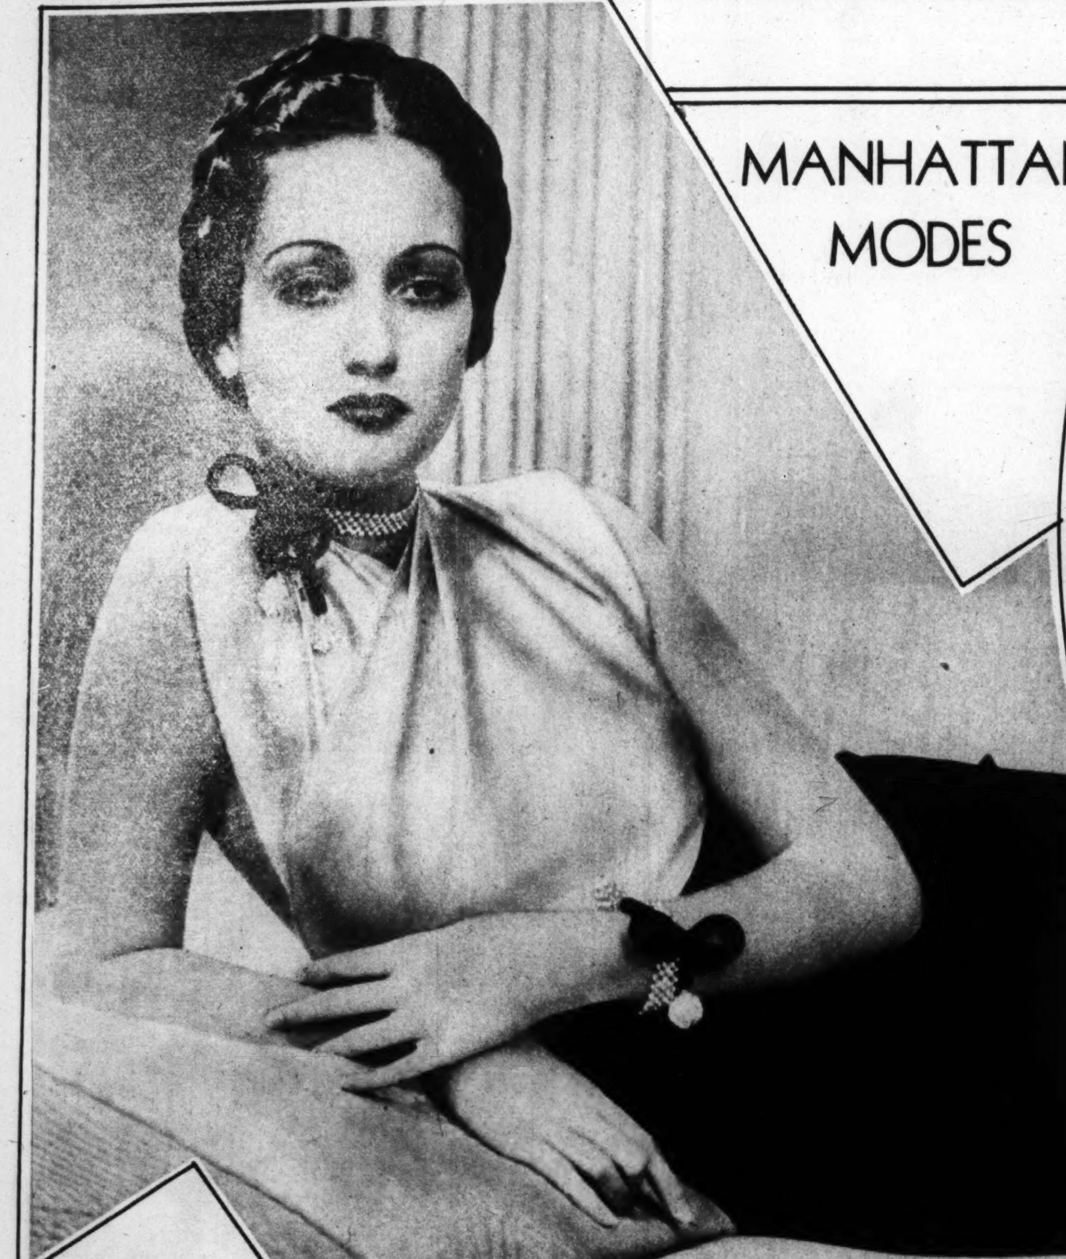
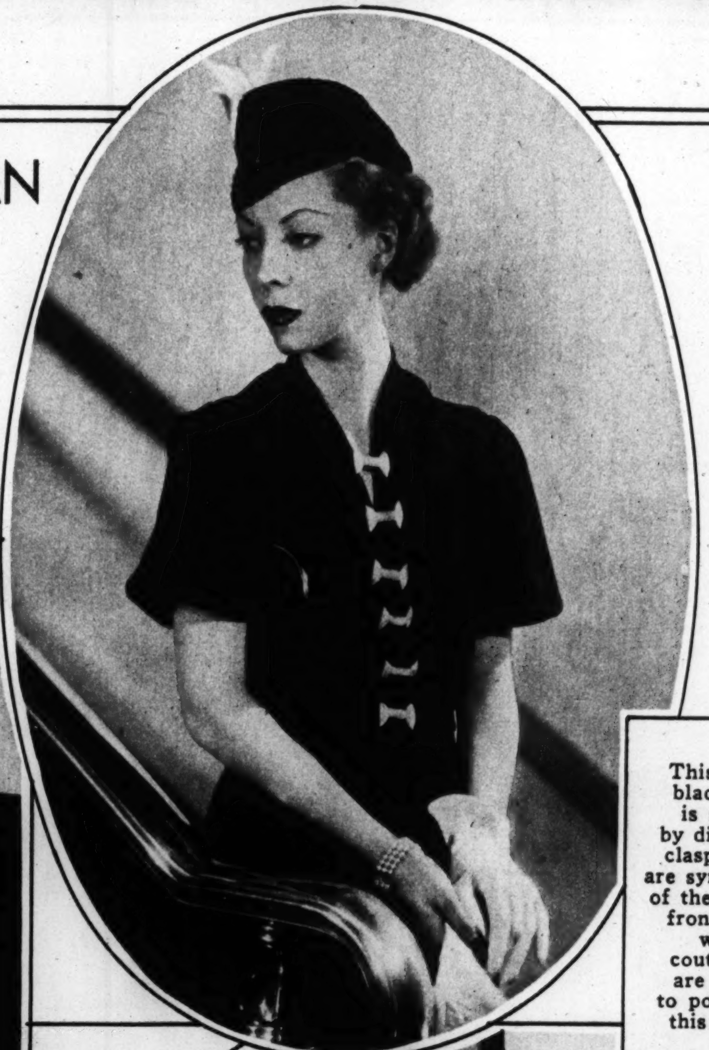
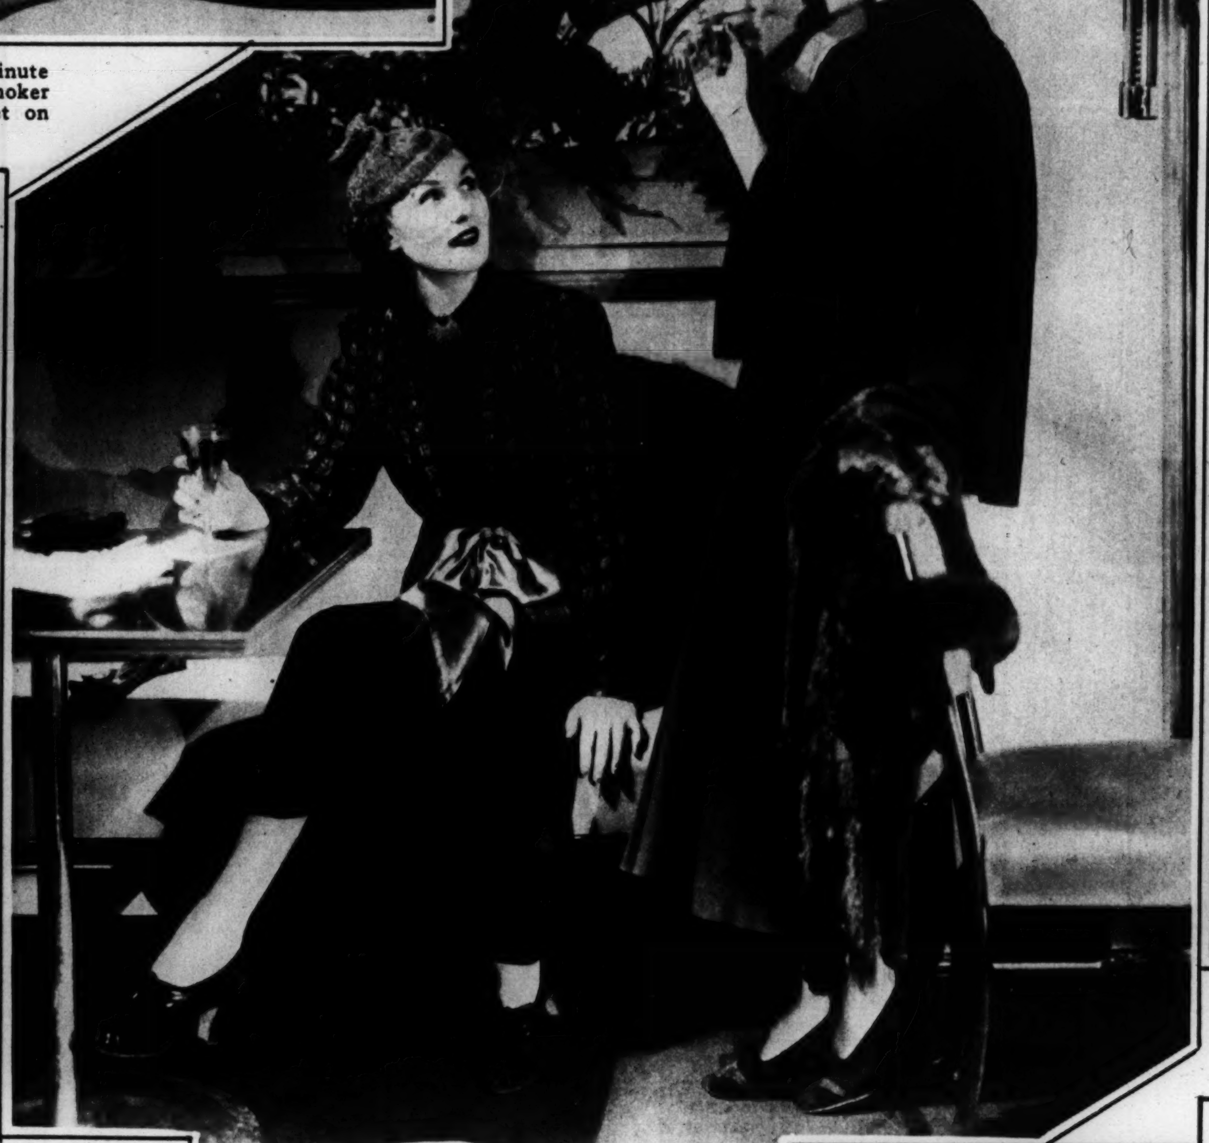
MANHATTAN MODES



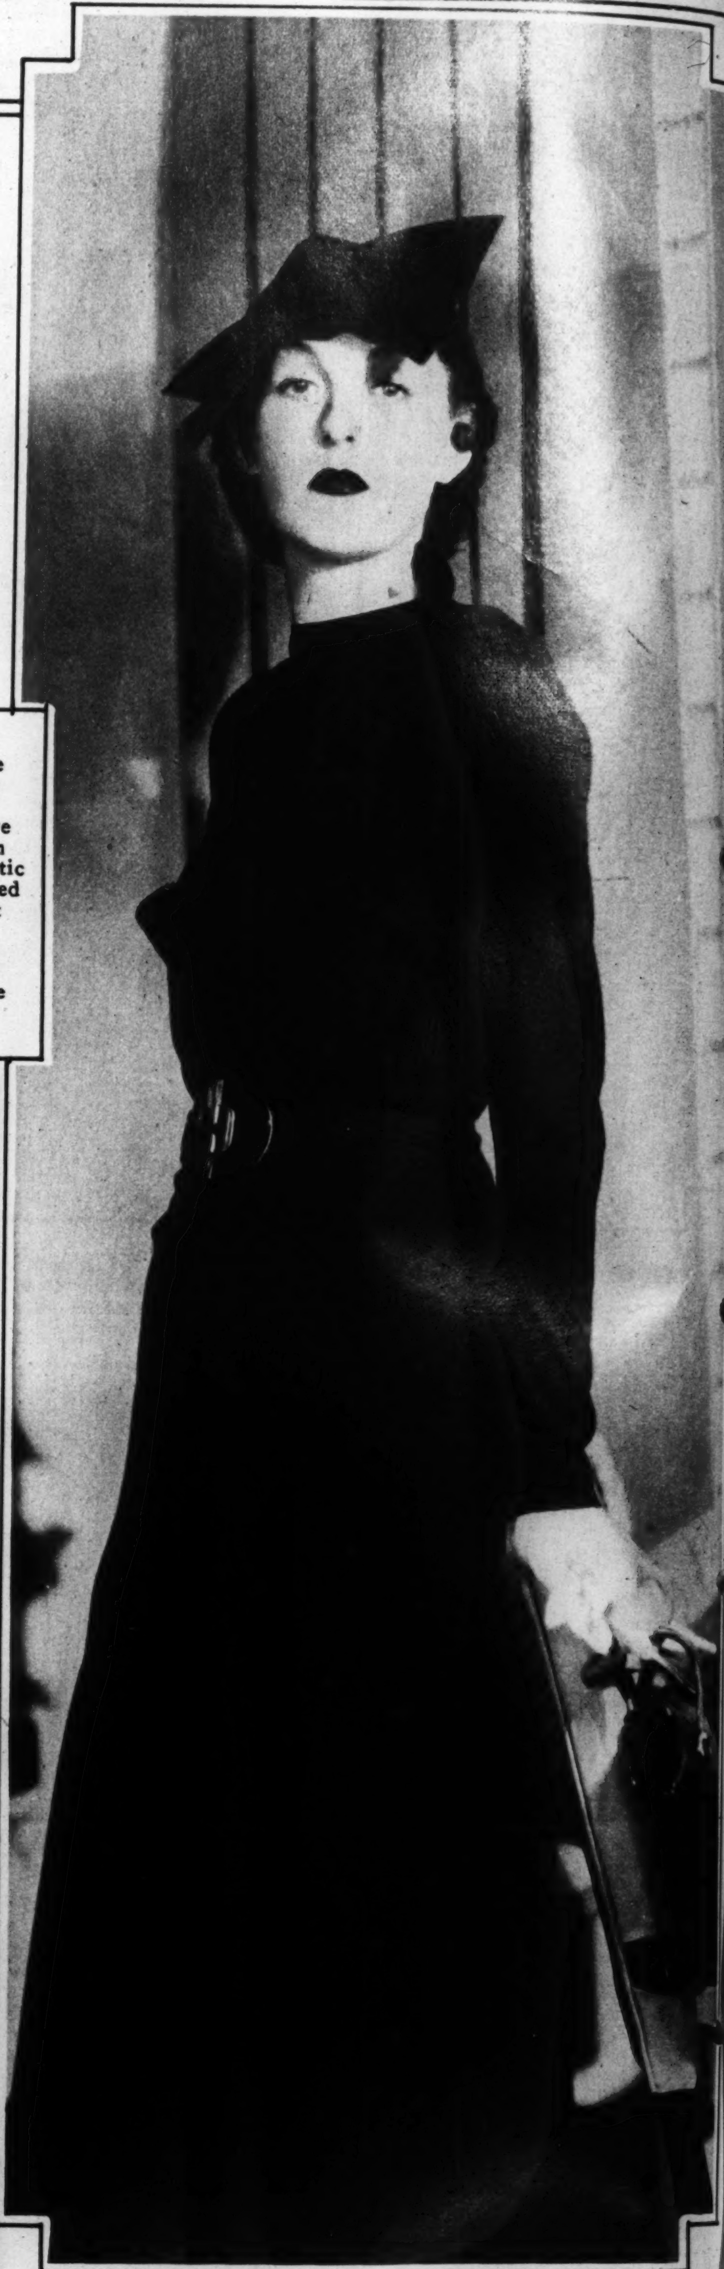
Dorothy Lamour, a singer, illustrates an up-to-the-minute version of the "dog collar." It is a woven pearl choker trimmed with a black bow and matched by a bracelet on the same plan.



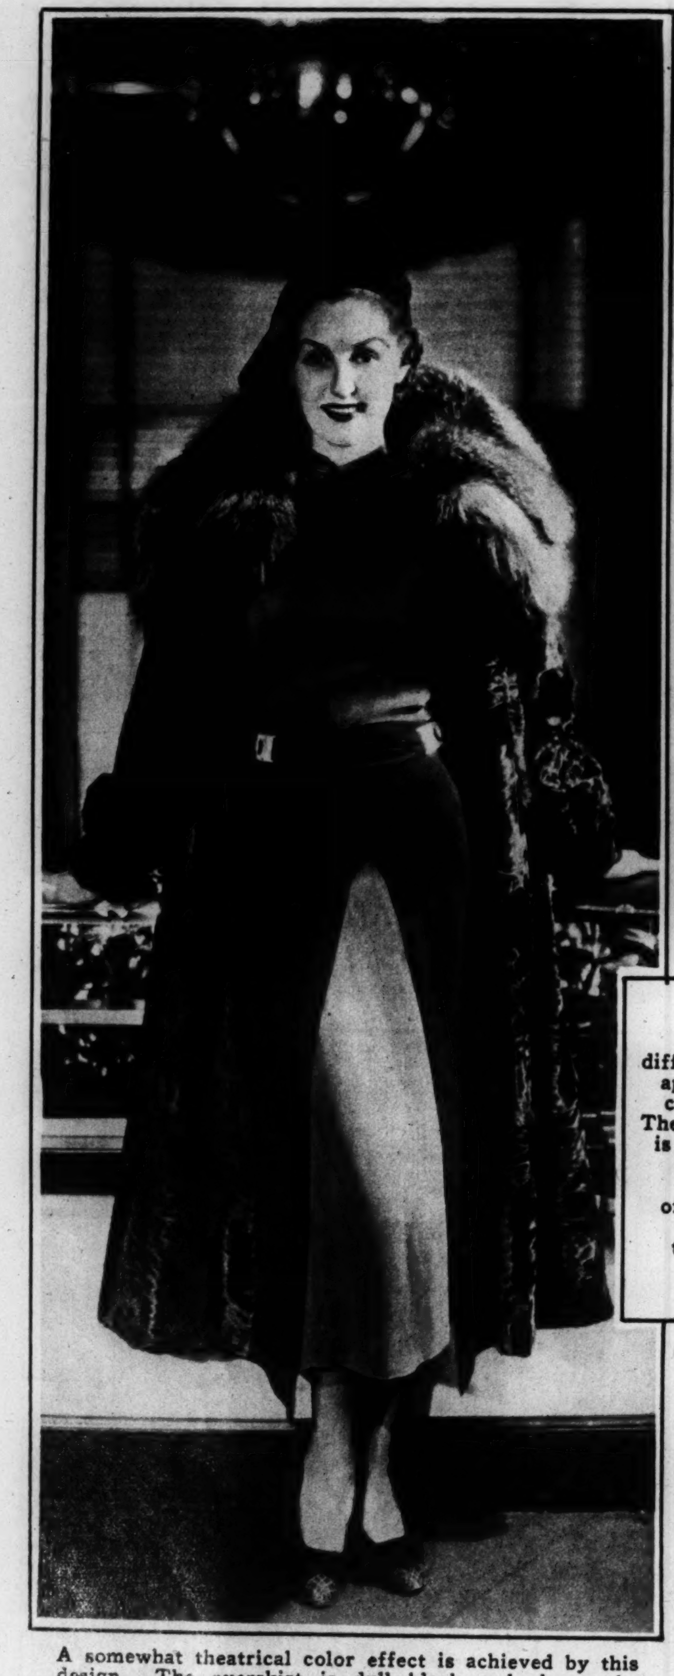
This simple black crepe is set off by distinctive clasps which are symptomatic of the gathered front effect which coutouriers are trying to popularize this season.



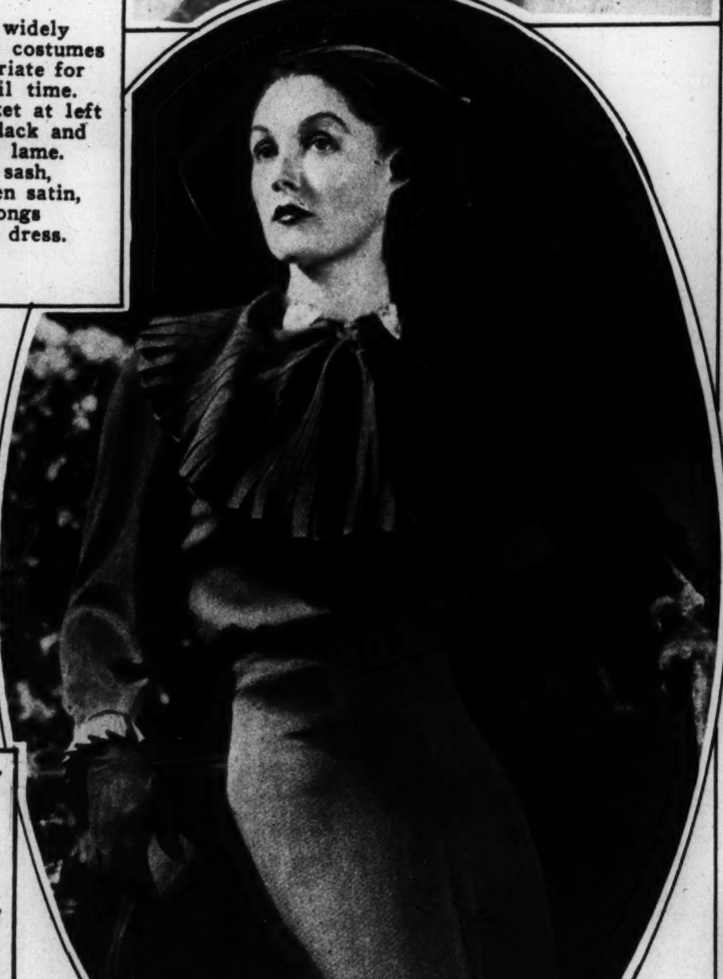
Two widely different costumes appropriate for cocktail time. The jacket at left is of black and silver lame. The sash, of green satin, belongs to the dress.



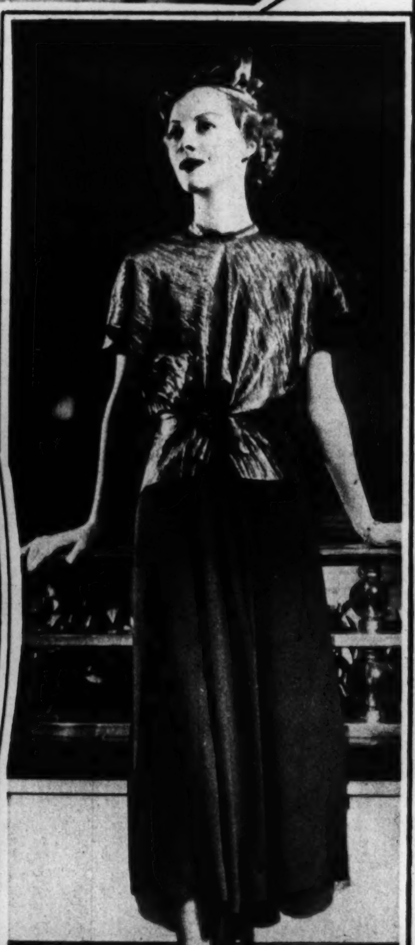
Another gathered front, this time concentrated at the bodice by a large brass buckle.



A somewhat theatrical color effect is achieved by this design. The overskirt is dull black and shows the melon red silk sheer skirt beneath.



This frock is in dull green crepe of an unusual weave. The collar is stitched-down fan pleating.



In this design gold lame is used to imitate the drape of a peasant smock. As in most gathered-in-front waists, the lines might be equally well employed to cover a back.

A NEW DEAL GIFT TO ILLINOIS

Marquette State Park, 18 miles up the river from Alton and about 40 miles from St. Louis, has been extensively improved by CCC workers. It is now the largest park in the State ([illegible] acres), has [illegible] miles of bridle paths, four miles of new auto roads, much reforested woodland, a [illegible] public lodge, horse barns and other sport facilities. A waterfront highway from Alton to the park is being considered by the WPA board. This aerial view shows one of the two CC Camps and a section of the park, which will be opened next spring. —From the Airphoto Company.

NED BRANT By BOB ZUPPKE DRAWN BY B W DEPEW
WE'LL BE IN THERE BATTLING THE WRECKERS ALL THE WAY!
Ned Brant and his sensational Carter College football team are speeding across the country for the intersectional game that interests the entire country—
THESE WRECKERS, AS THEY CALL THEM, JUST HOW GOOD ARE THEY, NED?
THEY'RE SO TOUGH THEY SCRIMMAGE ON A FIELD OF BROKEN GLASS AND TIN CANS!
PIPE DOWN, SHOTGUN—YOUR REMARKS ARE THE MOST UNNOTICED IN HISTORY!
CONFIDENTIALLY, JAKE, THEY'LL PROBABLY BEAT US BY MORE POINTS THAN THERE ARE ON A COMPASS ALL OUT, GANG—WE'RE PULLING IN!
YOU GUYS HANG BACK SO THE PHOTOGRAPHERS CAN GET A GOOD VIEW OF THE FAMOUS BLUDGEON PROFILE!

TO TREET
I'M COACH BATT OF THE WRECKERS—YOU GUYS WANT TO WORK OUT?
THE GREAT "BRICK" BATT! EVERYONE'S HEARD ABOUT YOU—YES, WE'LL LIMBER UP AS SOON AS WE CAN CHANGE CLOTHES
YOU HAVE ABOUT THE GREATEST TEAM IN THE COUNTRY, BRICK, AND CARTER IS HONORED AT BEING CHOSEN FOR THIS GAME
DON'T KID ME, BRANT—I KNOW YOUR TEAMS AND WE'LL HAVE TO FIGHT EVERY SECOND TO HOLD CARTER
HERE COMES CARTER!
THERE'S RED LIGHT, THE BACKFIELD SENSATION!
WHY, THE WRECKERS'LL MOP THE EARTH WITH THAT BUNCH OF KIDS! CARTER WILL BE OUTWEIGHED 30 POUNDS TO THE MAN!
WAIT AND SEE—THOSE BOYS LOOK PLENTY FAST AND SMART TO ME!

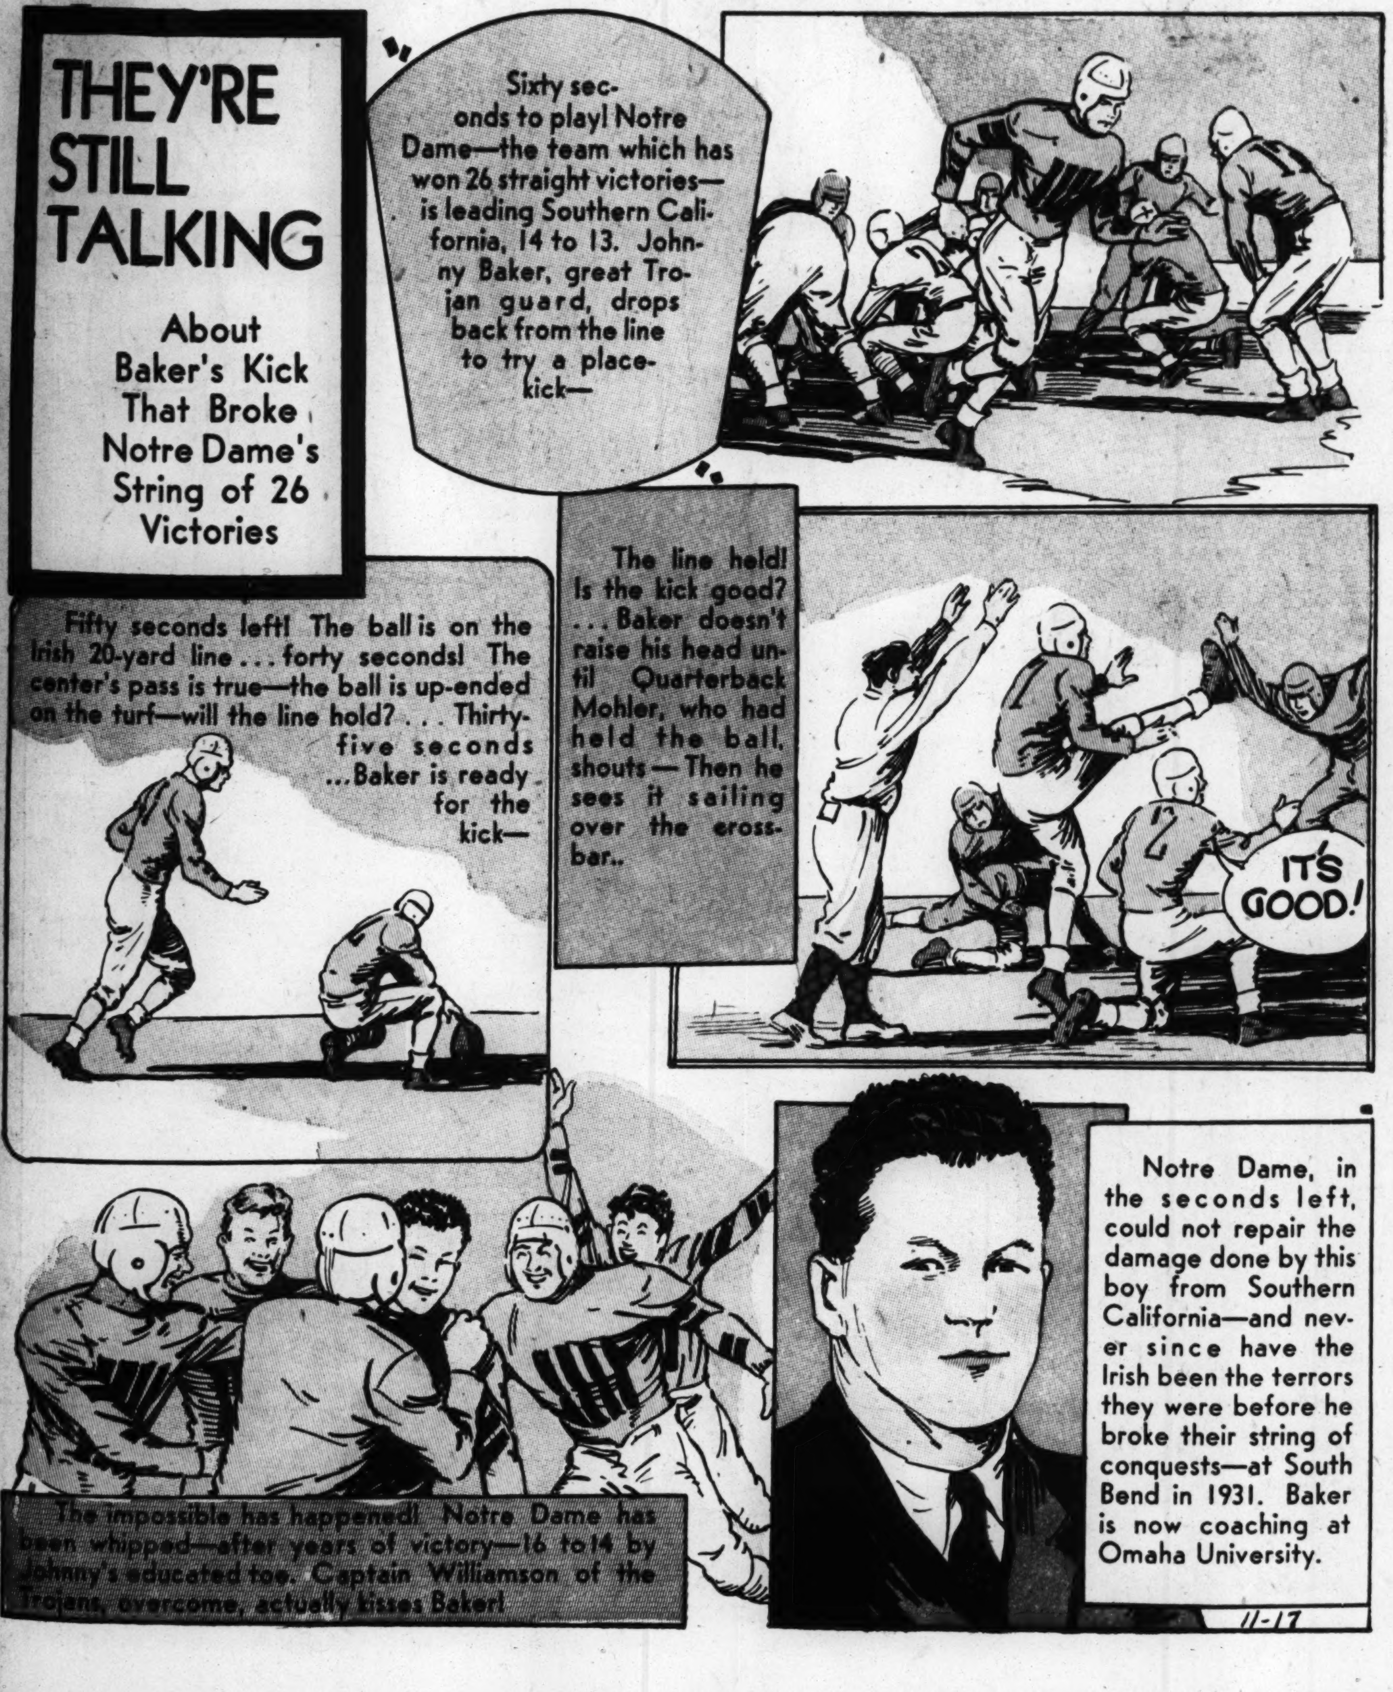
THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About Baker's Kick That Broke Notre Dame's String of 26 Victories



"Sixty seconds to play! Notre Dame—the team which has won 26 straight victories—is leading Southern California, 14 to 13. Johnny Baker, great Trojan guard, drops back from the line to try a place-kick—"

Fifty seconds left! The ball is on the Irish 20-yard line . . . forty seconds! The center's pass is true—the ball is up-ended on the turf—will the line hold? . . . Thirty-five seconds . . . Baker is ready for the kick—

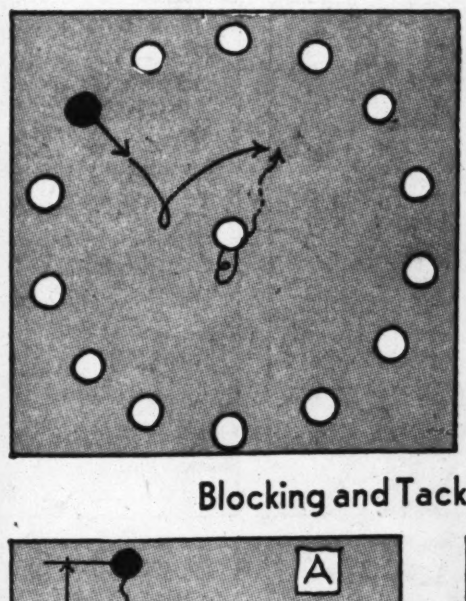
The line held! Is the kick good? . . . Baker doesn't raise his head until Quarterback Mohler, who had held the ball, shouts— Then he sees it sailing over the crossbar..

The impossible has happened! Notre Dame has been whipped—after years of victory—16 to 14 by Johnny's educated toe. Captain Williamson of the Trojans, overcome, actually kisses Baker!

Notre Dame, in the seconds left, could not repair the damage done by this boy from Southern California—and never since have the Irish been the terrors they were before he broke their string of conquests—at South Bend in 1931. Baker is now coaching at Omaha University.

Football ...... By NED BRANT

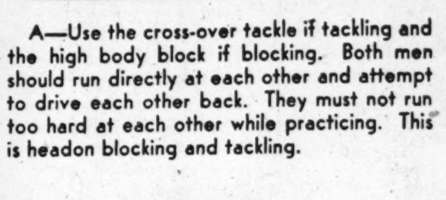
MORE FUNDAMENTALS

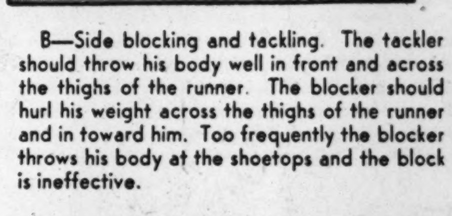


Falling on the Ball

Coach stands in center of circle with ball, which the players fall on in turn after he tosses it along ground. Player should start fast and run low toward coach, who may feint passing the ball in one direction and suddenly toss it in another. Player should throw himself beside the ball and draw it into pocket formed by thighs, stomach and arms.

Blocking and Tackling Drills, A and B





A—Use the cross-over tackle if tackling and the high body block if blocking. Both men should run directly at each other and attempt to drive each other back. They must not run too hard at each other while practicing. This is headon blocking and tackling.

B—Side blocking and tackling. The tackler should throw his body well in front and across the thighs of the runner. The blocker should hurl his weight across the thighs of the runner and in toward him. Too frequently the blocker throws his body at the shoetops and the block is ineffective.

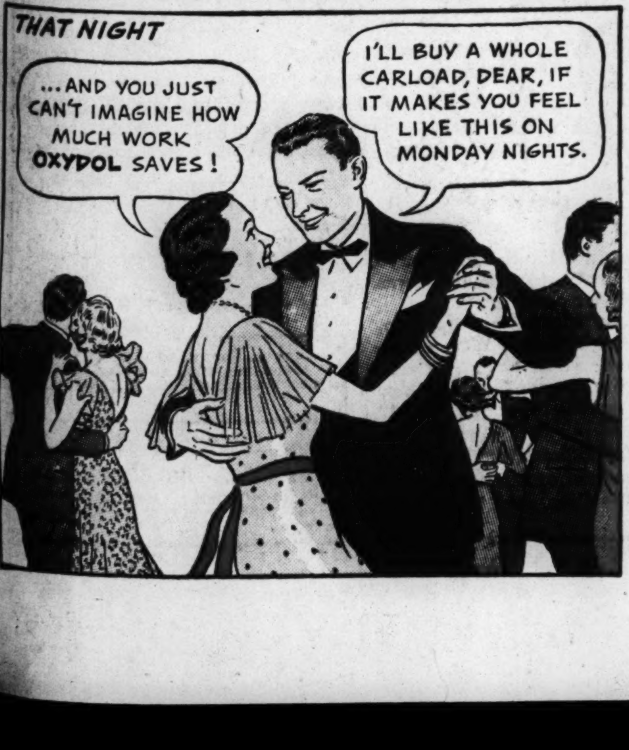
MAMA, IF YOU HAD A WISH, WHAT WOULD YOU WISH FOR?
RIGHT NOW, DEAR, I'D WISH TO NEVER SEE A WASHBOARD AGAIN.
NEXT MONDAY
REMIND ME TO GET A NEW WASHBOARD, WILL YOU, ETHEL? MY OLD ONE'S....
WHAT, WINNIE? YOU STILL SCRUB CLOTHES IN THIS NEW DAY OF "NO-SCRUB" SOAPS?
BUT AREN'T THOSE "NO-SCRUB" GRANULATED SOAPS HARSH? DON'T THEY FADE....?
BUT HAVEN'T YOU HEARD? THE IVORY PEOPLE HAVE DEVELOPED A NEW SAFE ONE - OXYDOL. IT'S SO MILD--YET IT SOAKS OUT DIRT IN 15 MINUTES WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING AT ALL.
AND YOU SAY IT GETS CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER, TOO?
ABSOLUTELY!
MY WIFE SAYS IT'S ALMOST A MIRACLE HOW SUCH A MILD SOAP CAN WASH SO FAST AND WHITE.
OXYDOL
LATER
WHY ETHEL, IT'S THE WHITEST WASH I EVER SAW--AND ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING!
AND IF YOU STILL DON'T THINK OXYDOL'S SAFE FOR COLORS, LOOK! HERE'S A COTTON PRINT DRESS I'VE WASHED SCORES OF TIMES-ISN'T IT FRESH AND BRIGHT!
THAT WHOLE BIG WASH ON THE LINE ALREADY- I CAN'T BELIEVE IT!
AND DID YOU SEE WHAT A LITTLE SOAP I POURED IN - OXYDOL'S AWFULLY ECONOMICAL.
GOODBYE, OLD WASHBOARDS AND BOILERS-- THIS CERTAINLY IS MY LUCKY DAY!
RAGS! OLE IRON!
JUNK



THAT NIGHT
...AND YOU JUST CAN'T IMAGINE HOW MUCH WORK OXYDOL SAVES!
I'LL BUY A WHOLE CARLOAD, DEAR, IF IT MAKES YOU FEEL LIKE THIS ON MONDAY NIGHTS.

HOW 15 MINUTES' SOAKING

Gets Clothes Whiter Than Hours of Scrubbing and Boiling . . . This Amazing New Way

THE latest amazing "no-scrub" soap invention, OXYDOL, comes to you from the makers of gentle Ivory. It is the result of a patented process which makes mild, gentle soap much faster acting . . . a formula that makes it 2 to 4 times whiter washing.

Just 15 minutes' soaking to the tubful . . . no scrubbing, no boiling . . . and white clothes come so white it will amaze you!

Yet OXYDOL is safe and mild. Even sheerest cotton prints, soaked through 100 consecutive washings in OXYDOL suds, show no perceptible sign of fading. By comparison, it makes old-type "no-scrub" soaps seem harsh, hard on colors, unfit for hands.

With OXYDOL you get thick, 3-inch suds instantly—even in hardest water. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, stains, 2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

White clothes come 4 to 5 shades whiter, by actual Tintometer tests. Yet every washable color stays brilliant, fresh! No wonder women by thousands are quitting bars, flakes, chips, and old-type "no-scrub" soaps for this remarkable new invention.

"I Could Scarcely Believe My Eyes" says

Mrs. J. J. O'Donnell,
St. Joseph, Missouri

"I always have a number of dirty pieces of washing, and when I say dirty, I mean dirty. I could scarcely believe my eyes when I soaked these dirty pieces in OXYDOL suds, and found how the dirt soaked out of them. It used to be a case of boiling, scrubbing and scrubbing to get clothes clean, but now I get everything ready, and soak the clothes, and while they are soaking I do my other housework.

"My, how easy OXYDOL has made washing! And the clothes come so clean and white, and smell so fresh. And I'm not at all worried about my colored things. I'm certainly enthusiastic about OXYDOL."

THE SHOW GOES ON!
OH, MOTHER... I'VE BEEN CHOSEN FOR THE LEADING PART IN OUR CLASS PLAY!
WELL, YOU CAN'T BE IN THE PLAY—AND THAT'S THAT!
WHAT ARE THEY TRYING TO DO... GIVE HER AN EDUCATION OR MAKE A CHORUS GIRL OUT OF HER?
MR COFFEE NERVES
WHAT'S WRONG, EDITH? YOU LOOK AS THOUGH YOU'VE BEEN CRYING!
OH, MOTHER WON'T LET ME BE IN OUR CLASS PLAY! SHE NEVER LETS ME HAVE ANY FUN!
WHY CAN'T EDITH BE IN THE PLAY? I THINK IT WOULD BE GOOD FOR HER!
IT'S TOO MUCH TROUBLE TO MAKE HER COSTUMES—WHEN I'M HAVING SUCH HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION!
WHAT DOES HE CARE HOW HARD YOU WORK... AS LONG AS EDITH HAS A GOOD TIME?
MR COFFEE NERVES
I HATE TO SEE YOU FEELING THIS WAY, DEAR! WHY DON'T YOU GO SEE THE DOCTOR?
OH, DON'T START THAT AGAIN! I'VE TOLD YOU BEFORE... I DON'T WANT TO!
TELL HIM IF HE MENTIONS IT AGAIN... HE'LL BE THE ONE WHO NEEDS A DOCTOR!
MR COFFEE NERVES
BUT, DEAR... I INSIST! COME ON ... LET'S GO SEE THE DOCTOR RIGHT NOW!
WELL... I SUPPOSE IF I DON'T GO, I'LL NEVER HEAR THE END OF IT!
YOU'RE MAKING A BIG MISTAKE! DON'T LET HIM BULLY YOU... SHOW HIM WHERE TO HEAD IN!
MRS. BARCLAY, I BELIEVE THAT COFFEE-NERVES IS CAUSING YOUR TROUBLE. I SUGGEST YOU GIVE UP COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD!
CURSES! I WAS AFRAID HE'D MENTION POSTUM! NOW I'LL HAVE TO SCRAM!
THERE'S BEEN A REMARKABLE CHANGE IN YOU, DEAR... YOU'RE GETTING MORE FUN OUT OF THIS PLAY THAN EDITH IS!
THAT'S BECAUSE I FEEL LIKE MY OLD SELF AGAIN... SINCE I SWITCHED TO POSTUM!
30 DAYS LATER

"It seems strange that coffee could hurt me! I thought it was bad only for children!"

"Oh, no! Many grownups, too, find that the caffein in coffee disagrees with them! It can cause indigestion, upset their nerves or prevent sound sleep!"

JAPAN TO SET UP ITS OWN NORTH CHINA GOVERNMENT

New Nation, Separate From Nanking Control, to Be Established Under Sponsorship of Mikado's Armed Forces.

FIVE PROVINCES TO BE AFFECTED

They Are Hopeh, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar and Suiyuan—Territory Has Total Population of About 95,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 18.—Japanese dispatches from Peiping and Tientsin unanimously and unreservedly announce tonight that a new government, that of North China, will be formed this week.

These dispatches, by the Rengo Agency among others, state that the new nation, like Manchoukuo, will be created under the protection of Japan's mighty military machine which the Chinese National Government at Nanking is powerless to oppose.

It seems likely that five more provinces of China will follow the fate of the four Manchurian provinces which at present form Japan's protectorate, the empire of Manchoukuo.

Expected Dates of Decree.

Rengo and the newspaper Asahi confidently predict that the declaration of independence will come Nov. 20, while the newspaper Nishi Nishi says it will come Nov. 23. It is stated that the new nation will be made up of Hopeh, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar and Suiyuan provinces.

The population of these five provinces totals about 95,000,000 persons. If and when this population becomes a Japanese-protected community like Manchoukuo's 32,000,000 inhabitants, it will mean that Japan has been instrumental in wresting from Chinese sovereignty a number of persons nearly equal to the population of the United States.

The Japanese dispatches say the new State will be called Huapeh Liensheng Tzuchih Chengchuan, which can be translated as "The North China United Provinces Autonomous Regime."

Leaders of Government.

The leaders, it is said, will be Gen. Sung Cheh-yan, commander of the Peiping-Tientsin garrison, and Gov. Han Fu-chu of Shantung Province. Their chief associates are expected to be Gen. Shang Chen, Governor of Hopeh Province; Hsiao Cheng-ying, Governor of Chahar; Gen. Hsu Young-chang; Gen. Fu Tso-yi, head of the Suiyuang Provincial Government, and the Mayors of Peiping and Tientsin.

The Japanese communications, with a unanimity of detail indicating a common and well-informed source, recount the alleged iniquities of the Nanking Government and the Kuomintang—the Chinese Nationalist party—then assert that the Declaration of Independence will declare four principles:

1. The complete autonomy of North China.

2. The severance of all financial and economic ties with the Nanking Government.

3. The co-operation of the Japanese army in the prevention of the spread of Communism.

4. The promotion of cordial relations among North China, Japan and Manchoukuo.

Comment in Tokio.

A Tokio foreign spokesman said armed intervention in the crisis would be warranted if Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, military overlord of the Nanking Government, sent forces northward against the autonomy movement.

He cited an agreement concluded last June between Chinese War Minister Ho Ying-ching and Lieutenant-General Yoshijiro Umezu, then commander of the Japanese garrison in North China, in which the Chinese Government undertook to send no Central Government troops to the Northern provinces.

"Should Chiang Kai-shek send an expedition to North China, it would lead to a clash between Chiang Kai-shek's troops and the North China people seeking autonomy, producing a very dangerous situation," the Foreign Office spokesman said.

As to whether the Japanese Government would recognize a new North China Government, the spokesman said: "It depends upon the nature of the new Government
